25 MARATHON DANCERS PACK

Deportation Ordered For Illegal Entry Into Canada

Hull, Que., July 1—(CP)—Immigration officers ordered the deportation of 25 Americans here today, claiming they had entered Canada illegally to take part in a marathon dance at a roadhouse near here. It was charged they had been denied entrance to Canada earlier in the week at Prescott but had crossed the river at other points, according here.

The officers raided a local hotel today, rounded up the Americans, most of whom gave New Jersey addresses, and took them before boards of investigation who ordered them out of the country.

J. DIAMOND'S WIDOW SHOT

Found in Apartment And Had Been Dead Since Wednesday

New York, July 1.— (AP) —The widow of the notorious Jack Diamond was shot to death in her Brooklyn apartment last night, it was revealed a half after her gangster husband was slain in an Albany hotel.

The body of the 30-year-old woman, whose maiden name was Alice Schiffer, was discovered on the fifing-room floor by the superintendent of the building, to whom neighbors expressed the belief something was wrong.

The medical examiner found a bullet wound in her right temple and determined she had been dead since early Wednesday.

Mrs. Diamond's dress was torn up the back, and chairs in the living room were overturned. On a table in the kitchenette were three coffee cups, leading police to express the belief two persons were with her at the time of the shooting.

Two or three bullets holes were found in the walls of the apartment and in the residential district. Questioning of other occupants of the building by the police failed to bring out any information that might help solve the mystery. The officers said apparently preceded the shooting.

Mrs. Diamond, who occupied the apartment under the name of Alice Lyons, had lived there only since last August.

Her name seldom had been connected with her husband's gang activities. Diamond was more frequently accompanied in public by Marian ("Kiki") Roberts, a show girl.

The custom of throwing rice at weddings started people believed to be a survival of the ancient religious practices of the Hindus and Chinese.

TWO QUESTION MARKS DANCE BEFORE POLICE

Motive Behind Killing of "Legs" Diamond's Widow Believed

KNEW TOO MUCH

Lived in Poverty With $1,000 a Week Coming in

New York, July 1 (CP)—Two question marks danced before detectives today after an all-night inquiry into the murder of Mrs. Jack Diamond, 33-year-old widow of the notorious "Legs."

1. Why did the dark-haired widow practice marksmanship so intently for several weeks before a killer fired a bullet into her temple after a struggle in her Brooklyn flat?

2. Who sent large sums of money—sometimes as high as $1,000 a week —to Mrs. Diamond, who nevertheless lived in comparative penury in her $40-a-month flat?

Strange disclosures followed in quick succession after the widow's body was found last night, sprawled before a little table on which were three coffee cups, drained to the dregs.

The dominant police theory was that the woman, whose gang chief husband was shot to death in a Albany Dec. 18, 1931, was killed because she may have "known too much."

Recently, in a speakeasy, her longest boonsat a bit.

"I am tired," she complained to friends, "of protecting a lot of mugs."

Almost that she lived in fear was bolstered eventually, by sustained practice with shotgun and rifle. She had been seen in a Coney Island shooting gallery, knocking over rabbits and ducks with unerring after round of shots. She also visited a rifle-shooting ranger, to improve her skill with shotguns.

Inspector Joseph Dunlop announced today that he had found memoranda in her apartment indicating that much money had come into her hands, sometimes $1,000 a week.

There were reports, unverified by police, that the slayers may have come from Albany.

BASS FISHING OPENS IN DISTRICT TODAY

Licenses Scarce in City as Anglers Hike to Bass Waters

Fishing licenses were scarce in the city today as the first day of the bass season opened. Game Warden Pront street stores reported a completete sell out of the licenses on Saturday, and were waiting further consignments from the government. The limited number of licenses issued to tourists south of the borders has been considerably more than the number issued during the open. The season, consequently, the fishing license have also been overhauling during the past week-end. Many days in preparation for the opening attack on the wily and lusty fighting bass. Guides of the district report more business over the week end than they can comfortably handle, while numerous fishing parties from the city will also augment the number of fishermen, who will be on the bay and adjoining waters over the week end.

HISTORY OF CASE

Lifting of Embargo on Soviet Exports to Britain Forecast

London, July 1—(AP)—It was understood in well-informed quarters today that the release of British engineers imprisoned in Moscow, and the lifting of the British and Soviet trade embargoes, will in all probability be announced tonight.

Five British electrical engineers were found guilty of espionage and sabotage in Moscow April 18. Three of them were released from the country and two received prison sentences. L. C. Thornton was ordered out of the country and W. L. MacDonald two years.

In retaliation the British government declared an embargo on Soviet imports, which greatly slmilarly shut out British goods.

The report that the Anglo-Russian dispute probably will follow the arrest and trial of the engineers had been expected, followed a visit made by the Russian ambassador, Jean Maisky to the Foreign Secretary Foreign Affairs. In the last few days Sir John had several interviews with Maxim Litvinoff Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs.

Roosevelt Gives Hint of Acceptance of Plan to Check Currency Gyration

President Really to Accept Currency Controlled by Central Banks

NO MOVE

Roosevelt Spends Quiet Day With Friends in Canada

By Frederick A. Storm
United Press Staff Correspondent

CAMP BELLO ISLAND, N.B., July 1.—Temporary currency stabilization is a problem that will be left to the central banks, to solve, President Roosevelt indicated today, after a series of setting and for Washington to resume the grind of Federal affairs at the White House in the executive, he was his advisers, made it clear that the world could not expect the problem to be settled within 48 hours by the London Economic Conference.

At the same time he let it be known that there was no objection on the part of the United States for the central banks to proceed with temporary stabilization measures and do what they can in reaching an agreement.

The President was represented as feeling that there was little or no use in Governments themselves agreeing on a temporary solution because of the fiscal complications some of the nations which are running as high as half-billion dollars behind in their annual budgets.

This reflection of the administration attitude came after reports which said that France was threatening to withdraw from the London Conference if stabilization were not effected immediately.

President Unconcerned

So far as the drop in the value of the dollar was concerned, Mr. Roosevelt was said to feel not the slightest concern.

His friends pointed out that the dollar was dropping in price, not fluctuating or gyrating, and that the administration clearly recognized the condition as such.

Conservative reports that Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain had called him urging action toward stabilization, the President reiterating that he had had no such communication, explaining that it had been three days since he was in touch with Washington and the World Economic Conference.

Mr. Roosevelt, looking the picture of rugged health after two weeks of sailing along the New England coast, prepared to embark in the morning on the new 10,000-ton cruiser Indianapolis for Hampton Roads, Va.

The Indianapolis, however, will not get under way until late in the afternoon, escorted by the cruiser Simpsons Ellis and Bernadou.

Mr. Roosevelt was expected to be at sea over the week-end, returning to Washington the morning of the 5th. He will then proceed to the destroyer Ellis at Hampton Roads, Va., and thence to Portsmouth to the capital.

Today Mr. Roosevelt lo-day gave a picnic luncheon on the beach at Camp Bello for the naval officers and the Washington newspaper correspondents.

GATE GUARDS INTAKE PIPE

No Danger of Man Being Sucked Through Funnel

Belleville bathers who might happen to swim near the end of the intake pipe for the city pump house, fourteen hundred feet out from the station, in the bay, need have no fear of duplicating the horrifying experience of Ralph Thomson, 17, who was whirled for miles through the intake pipe of the pump house in that city. At the local station a peculiarly constructed gate guards the end of the pipe, which narrows from a five foot opening to the thirty-inch intake. Employees at the station declare that a few inquisitive fish now and then which are pumped through the pipe constitute the only casualties.

WILL THESE MARKS HOLD?

Expect Records to be Broken in Across The Bay Swim Monday

Checking over the swim records for the past few years, and during which the Across the Bay Swim has been held, Physical Director Ralph Morden, found the following swimmers holding the best marks for the different races, that is, at the time and place to date.

Juvenile Record by Robert Liddle, 1931, time 17m. 10 secs.

Senior record by Charles Shroder 1931 time 18m 8 secs.

A number of these marks, particularly the Ladies and the Junior will require some smart work on the part of the 1933 swimmers if they are to better them. However it would on occasion no great surprise if both the Senior and Juvenile records should be lowered at the week-end of the 3rd. It is quite possible that the Ladies time may also be cut down as under unfavorable weather conditions last year, Miss Lorna Miles came within 30 seconds of the previous mark. Miss Miles expects to compete again this year, along with at least two other ladies of considerable aquatic experience, which should make this event one of the closest contested of the entire Garfield Kelly, the Kingston flash who holds the title for the junior record, although only 17 years of age, has designs on the Senior Title having entered this division of the race instead of either of the two younger groups in which he is entitled to compete. In the Junior Race Bob Summers of Albert College is expected to be the pick for the entries competing for the trophy donated by the Rotary club. A good showing in last year's race is a much stronger swimmer this year and may attack somewhere near the mark made by Kelly last year. Ridie Donnan is in the field as the youngest entry this year.

Youth of Today Preeminently Honest, Says Rev. Dr. Semple

New Minister of Bridge Street in Champion of Youth

HIS INTERESTS

In the midst of a litter of books which lay in profusion in the study of his new home, the gentleman at 100 Bridge street east, the Rev. James Semple, B.A., B.D., S.T.M., Th. D., who arrived in the city today to take over the duties of minister of Bridge Street United Church, succeeding the Rev. R. H. Bell, who has accepted a call to Aurora, took time out for a few moments to bid a reporter of the Daily Ontario Intelligencer a gracious and warm welcome.

In spite of the heat the Rev. Doctor was busy stowing away book after book in the shelves that line the library and study.

He was dressed for comfort.

Clean cut in appearance, he begged the silent, kindly clergyman. With a wave of his hand he indicated the profusion of personal effects so evident in the room. A chair was found forward.

Cordial Relations With Press.

"Have you ever interviewed a doctor?" was the reporter's opening shot.

"Many a time," agreed the doctor. "I have always had cordial relations with the press, and I always find a quick smile, that even the oppressive heat which the afternoon of the day of the morning of Thursday could not dampen.

"Semple," pursued the reporter after a moment's silence, "do you find the transition from study to life pleasant?"

"Perhaps some of the congregation might call it a headache. I find it little different from what they have been accustomed to. Yet, the world isn't standing still."

Defence of Youth.

"Youth today?" The minister repeated the question. "Youth is the same as always. Boys and girls of this age were never better. Take any of their parents of fifty years ago," and the good doctor warmed to his subject which was so sadly neglected, "and put the shoes of the younger generation of to-day on their shoulders and I can see if they'll be any better than the boys and girls right now. I question if they would handle themselves as well."

"You have the younger viewpoint," doctor.

"Absolutely. I am not set by any means."

Spontaneous Honesty.

In his close contact with the Oxford Group of Confession and other eastern cities, Dr. Semple has found that youth who make up the groups for the greater part have always been more spontaneously honest than the older generation. "Their's is a trustful honesty," he explained, "My idea of building the City of God today," continued Dr. Semple, "is in each bringing to the situation what he can. There must be patience and understanding to help people find what they seek. Perhaps I could be described as an unbelievably of good-will come to Belleville and I shall endeavor to live up to the best of my ability. Yet, I need help in this task. I'm sure that I shall find it here."

A firm believer in the aims and objects of Rotary, Dr. Semple was in a past president, declared the association one of the finest known to any community. "Even in that," he remarked, "a minister was responsible for the inclusion of the last object of Rotary—the sixth."

With Dr. Semple were his wife and three children, two little girls of 10 and 12 years, and one boy of thirteen. All were busy unpacking household effects, the many them piles of gifts that had been given the worthy minister and family before they left Smith's Falls.

Dr. Semple is a self-confessed ardent fisherman. Along the Rideau Lakes he has hauled trout and pike from the clear depths. Also he's a golfer, but thinks that sports are necessary to young and old.

Native of Ireland.

Dr. Semple is a native of Ireland, whose fluency dates the early years spent in the Emerald Isle. Recently generally have made good when they have been promoted to Canada and any other men's Dr. Semple's career in the church in Canada has been marked with successful ministrations.

He entered the ministry of the Irish Methodist Church in 1910 and the Irish Methodist Church formed Conference of the United Church by the Irish Methodist Church.

Ordained in 1917.

He was ordained in Third Avenue Church, Saskatoon, June 10, 1917. Since that time he has had the following charges, Sutherland, Ont., Palmerston, Ont., and Smith's Falls, Ont.

On account of his abilities and scholarship he received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Manitoba University, that of Bachelor of Divinity from Wesleyan College, Montreal; that of S.T.D. from the University of Boston, and Th.D. from the United Theological College, Mc-Gill University, Montreal. He has done post-graduate work at Chicago University and Union Theological College, New York.

Dr. Semple is a member of the General Board of Evangelism of the United Church, a past president of the Rotary Club of Smith's Falls, a past District Deputy Grand Chaplain of the St. Lawrence Masonic District and a member of the I. C. O. F. and Orange Order.

Mother's Team Wins

Harry LeRoy and his Foreign Legion softballers defeated the Colored Orads last evening at Orads. The Legionaires put two new articles before the crowd for the first time, new red and white sweaters, and a new pitcher in Mosier. The game was well played with the Legion coming out ahead after losing their games, as a rule, in the last stanza. Mosier was in the box for Orads and one on in the first to start the ball but Brant annoyed a beautiful one in the second with two on and incidentally took the tin of fifty cigarettes from Manager LeeBeau for his trouble. Mosier then settled down with but four hits. Derry batted for Orads but was not placed in the second after walking four batters. The last four innings found Mosier in the Orads. The Legionaires pulled a nice double in the first inning when Bolton and when McMillan hit to Mosier who threw him out at first to home catcher Bolton.

The line up:

Legion—Whitehead, Johnson, Loft Whiley, Macaie, Sero, Brant, Simmons, Mosier.

Orads—Roberts, McMillan, Mitchell, Jones, Lamore, Anderson, Pix, Derry, Mosier.

Score by innings—

Legion ..... 270 001 0—10
Orads ..... 211 000 0—4

Hits, Legion 13; Orads, 4; errors, Legion 2, Orads 3; batteries, Mosier 6; by Derry 1; by Pox 1. Left on bases, Legion 6, Orads 4. Struck out by Derry 1, by Pox 1. Home runs, Jones, Brant. Umpires, plate, R. Burtt; bases, G. Johnson.

LIBRARY CORNER

Martin Anderson Nexo, Danish novelist sees Spain not as a tourist but as a person come suddenly upon the scene. He is already a favorable travel book in Scandinavia and Germany. "Days in the Sun" presents the shrewd observation of a Northern European viewing the different ways and customs of the Southerner. The book differs from the usual type of travel book in that it stresses people rather than places. The author has wandered among the townspeople, the gypsies, the cottager in the mountains, the Andalusian basking in the sun, and has written of them with insight and humor. He has written about bullfights and bullfighters is a particularly interesting one since it exposes the brutality of terms used in this national sport of Spain.

Dr. Charles W. E. Elliott, Chaplain to the King, and Vicar of St. Michael's Chester Square, London, has written with originality and sincerity "The Christian in His Blindness." He has represented the attitude of mind of a man anxious to reconsider his scale of values and see more clearly into moral truths. His chapter "A Defence of Incredulity" is filled with a pleasant faith in so many in the apparent inaction and silence of God, a subject loved for its last.

Sir John A. MacDonald, Boy and Man — By Fred Williams

"A BRITISH SUBJECT I WAS BORN, A BRITISH SUBJECT I SHALL DIE."

Sir John A. Macdonald, 1891

On Dominion Day the thoughts of Canadians should go back to the birth of our nation. The Dominion of Canada was not a womb of political troubles, not all the making of the Canadian people. Many of the difficulties which perplexed the leaders in the decade between 1857-1867 were the price of our British allegiance. Too often were the affairs of Canada discussed with an eye to the foreign and colonial offices in London rather than to the best interests of our own people. The old province of Canada was a compromise that failed of success. The reunion of Lower and Upper Canada created new problems of race, or religion, of conflicting political ideals, of divergent mentalities, all of which were sufficient to test the acumen of the statesmen of the time. Had there had a free hand unhampered by the tie that bound to Downing St., it is possible they might have done better than they did.

Yet when we considered they did well. Baldwin and Lafontaine laid the foundations of democracy in money, having from the seed sown in rebellion by Mackenzie and Papineau; the idea of the federation of Canada to-day we owe it to the statesmen of the 60's, and especially to John A. Macdonald and George Brown. No two men in our political history stand out in such contrast. Both were Scots; both were Canadians by adoption. Both were men of strong will; yet when the crisis came they each made differences, formed the coalition, and for once compromise was fruitful.

History deals but in some of the circumstances of that pre-confederation era, but mainly it records but is not in the histories. Wire-pulling and intrigue; financial disturbances, which may be called bribes, were held out; coercion from London upon the provinces generally added to the fear of absorption by the United States, were factors there. It was not, much as we would like to imagine, a union of hearts, a combination of mutual interests; but a union necessitated by conditions, a union which in the main sums up the dream of maintenance of British rule in the western world, and sentiment was to be abandoned.

And deny it who may the man who availed himself of all the wire-pulling; all the compromises, all the subterfuges, all the hidden opposition, bent solely on the determination to realize the dream of a united Canada then and for the future, was John A. Macdonald. He had his faults, many of them, but he experienced the ups and downs of both private and political life, he made enemies...but he made more friends by his wizard's power over his fellows.

Born in Glasgow.

John A. was never a great orator, yet he was able to sway a multitude sometimes with the power of facility. He had, too, although his life that appeal to the emotions enjoyed only by those who have carved their own career out of the mass of human destiny. He was only five years of age when he came to Canada with his parents from Glasgow to their new place, so that, though he was a Scot by birth, he was a Canadian by upbringing. It was his fortune that his childhood was passed in the centre of a Loyalist settlement, where allegiance to the monarch was bred in the bone and sinew of the very simple schools to new-comers, who had not the tradition of Loyalist ancestry. Just as many of our people to-day born in the motherland are standard Canadians, so he, born in Glasgow, but of Canadian parentage, was Canadian in every fibre of his being.

Settled in Kingston.

Down at Adolphustown, the cradle of the United Empire Loyalist settlement, Sir John A. Macdonald was born in Upper Canada, there are many traditions about the children of the land who was to be the first prime minister of the Dominion of Canada. There are men and women living there to-day who can recall stories told by their grandmas of the coming of the Macdonald family to the Bay of Quinte. Hugh Macdonald, the father, was a man of ambition and a poor business man. On arrival in Canada he settled in Kingston, but his mercantile ventures were failures more than once and were helped by relatives that he could do better for his four children in a smaller place he moved to Hay Bay and opened a small store in the front room of his log house. There again he failed to succeed in trade; but, despite all handicaps, he did his duty as a father, and added by a worthy wife, left the impress of a strong intellectual character upon his son.

Hot-Tempered Youth.

John A. Macdonald was just an ordinary boy. Down in the Bay of Quinte country they still tell you of his playing hookey from school, of his pranks, of his fiery temper, of his fist fights, of his spearing fish in the summer, of his trapping and shooting, of his ability as a pilferer of apples from orchards, of building fires for corn roasts and of his other boyish adventures in study, his determination to win an education, his attendance at church and Sunday school.

Many years after, when the universal figure became the prime minister of a united Canada, a knight and one of the greatest statesmen, time was rolled back and the curtain lifted upon those boyhood days. Sir John was advertised to speak in the old town hall at Adolphustown. An excitement was keen; party feeling was at fever heat (they took their politics very seriously in those days) and while there were cheering supporters of Sir John A. present there were also many "hard shell Grits" to whom his very name was anathema.

One of the early speakers had made a very drastic attack upon Sir John both for his political sins and his lapses from conventional things, and the Tories were fighting mad. It looked as if the meeting would wind up in disorder and a riot, and the chairman decided on a diversion. He called on Gilbert Casey, familiarly known as "Guy", to make a speech. The old man was willing and began to tell reminiscences to tell tales on "Young John".

"As you know, my father adjoins the Paul Ruff farm on Hay Bay. There Sir Macdonald family lived when they moved up from Kingston to Adolphustown. The Macdonalds and Ruffs were neighbors in their home, while I was fishing at Hay Bay in front of our place, I noticed the lad. John A., coming along the shore to where I was catching some very good fish—perch and bass and pickerel. As he came up I flung out a pretty big one, and, knowing it from my line up on the bank, I spoke to the big-nosed youngster. He came over and while I was putting another worm on my hook. He told me his name and then we lived about his two sisters and his father and mother, as he examined the fish flopping around on the bank. He was really excited and rushed down to the water as I pulled them out and then up the bank as I threw them in safely. This went on for some time and then, as I turned to throw up another fish, I saw the rascal legging it for home as fast as he could go with my smallest and biggest black bass. I yelled at him, but he only ran the faster and never let up till he reached home. Now, Mr. Chairman, before this large audience of electors of Adolphustown I charge this candidate (Sir John was then running in Lennox and Addington) of that dishonest theft many years ago; and if he will not acknowledge it here and now and ask my pardon I shall vote and use my influence against him in this election."

Sir John Makes Answer.

Sir John was then called to the rost and there were some in the crowd who feared he might take offence at "Guy's" frankness, but they were soon mollified as the old man talk went on.

"Mr. Chairman and yeomen of Adolphustown, I have had many the biggest boyhood days, what my old neighbor has told you about my theft of his beautiful fish is absolutely true; and I can recall as though it were but yesterday how frightened I was at that untoward act of our good friend, and how it caused me to drop the fish so as to make better speed; for I thought to hold on to it when I saw he was not chasing me. I was clean out of breath by the time I reached home and fell headlong with it on the floor and gasped for breath as I told my father where I found it and that there were lots more where this one came from. I humbly beg your pardon, Guy, and my only regret is that I did steal another one like it from you to-night and have it for breakfast in the morning. Mother said it was the best black bass she ever cooked."

Everybody laughed, Sir John carried the meeting and a day or so later won the election.

The days of youth were as hard as those of childhood. As soon as young John was able to work a little he determined to go to Kingston, where he worked his way through grammar school. At one time, after selling boxes of candies and lightening of bolt fees sometimes food was very scarce, he passed his examinations and was called to the bar of Upper Canada a few days after his 21st birthday. Seven years later his public career began, for he was elected to the Kingston town council and in 1844 was sent to the assembly for Kingston, which he continued to represent, save for nine years, until his death in 1891.

Macdonald was not one of those born with a silver spoon in his mouth, at once make themselves known by frequent speeches. He was a member of the legislature for over a year before he made his first speech; but it marked him as a coming man, so well prepared was it; its pretence at oratory, but "plain common sense" was. Many times after that speech he was in the cabinet.

Married in 1843 to his cousin, Isabella Clark, Sir John A. had his share of happiness and sorrow, like other men. Their first son, named John Alexander, died in infancy; he was left a widower in 1857 with a seven-year-old, who afterwards became Sir Hugh John Macdonald. Thus in the life of his political career John A was alone save for the watchfulness of his sister Mrs. Williamson of Kingston. He had no sympathetic wife to share his political stress, to care for him in times of illness and discouragement, no helpmeet in the midst of an earthly public career; he was just an ordinary individual, lonely sometimes, baffled often, subject to temptations which beset a vigorous man in his ages, and especially in that hard-drinking age, yet amid it all he kept his head and won the confidence of his fellows.

Marries Second Time.

It was not until confederation was assured that he took a second wife, Miss Agnes Bernard, whom he married in London a few months before the Dominion of Canada was born, and who survived his as Baroness Macdonald. Lady Macdonald died but then but 51—we have an idea that the fathers of confederation were old men, when really they were but in the prime of life—and he began that second home. It was not like the same determination as had made his youth. He had, of course, by that time realized his power over men and had developed that remarkable magnetism which enabled him so well with individuals as with crowds; he had grown better in circumstances as much as by self-determination. The spokesman for that new Canadianism which had breadth of vision and purpose to make its future secure, had much of the credit due for the development of the Canadian west, the achievements such as the acquisition of the Hudson's Bay territory, the bringing in of British Columbia, which really made the Dominion one extending from sea to sea, the railway policy carrying through of the C.P.R., before Sir Hector Langevin had received the honors of biology.

Macdonald's power put on swank. He was a good deal of a theatrical Betty Thomas's Gino Thomas; Geo. Watson.

FROM GAME TO WORK

"Game postponed on account of work." No more delightful note was ever read by steel workers in a U. S. city when they had to delay indefinitely their games because their jobs called upon them to go into the mill.

Two things stand out in this story.

First, the times are the worst, if steel reports are any indication. At least a large number of men have been taken on to work.

Second, these men played when they were idle. Here is a thought for other unemployed. It was a wise idea which was back of the sports, for sports is one of the finest means to preserve the initiative and sanity of mankind.

Their game will not indefinitely have to be postponed that is the best part of it. The men will find a place in their schedule for their game.

STRANGE

Something is wrong somewhere.

Reports of drought put up the prices of grains and there is a feeling of prosperity in the air though the farmer who loses his crops to a large degree is not one of the shouters. Rain comes and ruin is talked though it gives promise of larger crops and the stocks fall.

In the ideal state of affairs it would seem that news of good crops would make the people joyful, whereas the public expression on the situation is that it is very depressing to the market.

There has been talk of overproduction and the market glut. Yet in China there is famine, and there is carry-over of one-third of a billion bushels of wheat, keeping prices down, set against widespread suffering in Shanghai Province which has had no rain in five or six years.

It is surely a strange way man has of looking at things.

LOOK TO YOUTH

Tens of thousands of young fellows the world over who are being disgorged by high schools and universities this month, we have no doubt, feel that a shabby trick has been played on them. For years they have been undergoing training courses intended to equip them to take their places in the professional, business and industrial fields. Now, they are ready and eager to go to work and they are making the disconcerting discovery that there aren't nearly enough jobs to go around. The immediate outlook admittedly is discouraging, but what we have it on the word of Dean Christian Gauss, of the University of Princeton, that the new crop is to be envied, rather than pitied.

Here is what he had to say on the subject a few days ago:

"The impressions of men over 40 cannot be changed. They have built their lives on a plan evolved when they were in their twenties. When they come face to face with a changing social order, such as we are facing today, they are helpless. They must lean upon the younger generation. The men of generations that received their training in the '90's. Success in those days meant following the example of certain great men. The great men were millionaires. Where have our examples gone today? Many of them have lost their fortunes, their positions. They are powerless to adapt themselves to the new order in which the millionaire has vanished as an ideal."

Admitting that the youngster leaving college today and casting about for employment faces a perplexed and blinded world, Dean Gauss believes that in the long run he will have reason to bless the fate that brought him to manhood just at this time. The world, he says, will call on him for the very best he has to give.

If he is man enough to grasp it, it will offer him an opportunity dazzling in its size.—Hamilton Spectator.

Happiness consists in the attainment of our desires, and in our having only right desires.—Augustine.

The strength and happiness of a man consists in finding out the way in which God is going, and going in that way, too. —H. W. Beecher.

A page digested is better than a volume hurriedly read.—Macaulay.

You and I toiling for earth, may at the same time be toiling for Heaven, and every day's work may be a Jacob's ladder reaching up nearer to God.—Theodore Parker.

No people were ever better than their laws, though many have been worse.—Priestly.

It is only necessary to become old to become more indulgent. I see no fault committed that I have not committed myself.—Goethe.

THE AWAKENING

I was so sure that black was white,
I was so sure that brass was gold,
I was so sure that wrong was right;
Ah, well, the tale is old!

The tale of faith, the tale of trust,
The tale of loyalty betrayed,
The tale of dreams all fallen to dust,
The tale of hope dismayed!

And now I am no longer sure
Of things that once seemed certainty,
Of whether mountains will endure
Or tides come to the sea.

And though at first, so hard and strange,
The wakening left me hurt and pained,
I find in all this world of change
That I have grown and gained.

For who would be a child, to trust
Those things that are of little worth?
Though life is cruel, life is just,
And wisdom more than mirth.

CRITICS AND CROAKERS who predicted Babe Ruth's finish as the home-run king of baseball, for the past several years, will be interested to know that the Bambino batted out his seventeenth homer of the season Wednesday, with two runners on bases to beat Detroit Tigers. Not only that but it was second longest drive ever hit outside the fence at Navin Field. The ball cleared the centre field barrier, a distance of 455 feet.

MELONS AS A HOBBY—Arthur Stringer, novelist, admits that he gets a great kick out of raising and eating the Montreal Melon which in his opinion is the finest flavored melon ever developed. He says that so jealous are the Montreal fruit connoisseur of the Montreal melon that no seed is permitted to be sold. He had to buy melons in Montreal and save the seed and plant it, on his farm on the shores of Lake Erie—and does he take pleasure in eating his Montreal melons—any disparagement of Montreal melons as raised by Arthur Stringer means the breaking of friendships, or duels, or worse.

ALL MOTORISTS in the Province of Quebec must come to a full stop at railway crossings or be liable to a penalty, according to a law in force there, which it is said has reduced the number of level crossing accidents. Notwithstanding the law there were 93 cases of accidents at crossings from negligence reported from August 1 to November 30, 1932, in that province on the C.P.R. and 49 on the C.P.R. Most of the accidents reported are alleged to have been the result of an apparently insane desire to race the locomotive to the crossing. Generally the locomotive wins and the sport has lost its savor for the motorists who took part in it.

Attempt to Form Ratepayers Association is Adjourned

Apparently Lack of Interest Noted at Meeting in City Hall

A half-hearted attempt to form a ratepayers' and property owners' association in this city failed dismally last evening for lack of support by the small number which turned out in the city hall to hear the move suggested. Seventy-five more were present.

Opening the meeting ex-Mayor William Panter, who explained that he had been requested by Mr. James Patrick to do so, outlined the need for some association of the sort. He spoke briefly of a former association of like nature which was once organized in the city, but was disbanded some years ago.

"Now," he declared, "another crisis has arisen, and the need for such an organization is great."

James Patrick, explained ex-Mayor Panter was the original spirit in the new organization and was attempting to have it formed immediately for the protection of the ratepayers of the city. The association he mentioned was not formed in any antagonistic purposes, but merely to assist local ratepayers. The question he asked was whether the audience felt the need for such a move.

To find this feeling Acting Chairman Panter called for a show of hands. Practically the whole audience of upraised hands which signalled agreement to the formation of the organization nominations were then called by the chairman.

David Harrison President

Nominated unanimously by a number of the audience, Mr. Panter claimed he has refused to accept the position of president of the organization was declined by Mr. Harrison, who had spent too long a time in public service. Mr. Bert Ayling was then nominated by Mr. Patrick, but withdrew in favor of Mr. David Harrison, who was seconded by Mr. Wm. Lancaster. Mr. Harrison then accepted the chair, there being no other nominations.

An explanation of the meeting was asked for by ex-Mayor Harry Greenleaf, previous to the naming of Mr. Harrison president. Some discussion of the meeting was needed in the opinion of Mr. Greenleaf before the officers were elected. "What is the organization," asked the ex-Mayor.

"What this organization will do is not known yet," explained Mr. Panter, "as the previous organization, however, took active part in city politics. It influenced them to a great extent. It is quite in order to discuss the meeting," he added.

No discussion was forthcoming and amid scattered applause the newly elected president took the chair.

"We don't want to tear anything apart," explained Mr. Harrison in his opening address as chairman. "It is generally time for considerable controversy on matters regarding the city council and that we want to avoid is the feeling of the people. The city council don't know what the people want. We're here to tell them." Chairman Harrison pleaded for further support for the nomination of new officers to help the association.

Wanted to Know Reason

A number of the audience suggested that Mr. Patrick be called upon to inform and explain why the meeting had been called. Mr. Patrick had left the hall. The audience, among which was a sprinkling of city councillors, hummed with open conversation. The newly elected chairman appeared ill at ease on account of the lack of support being shown.

"We need other officers for the association," he suggested to the audience.

A number of people got up and walked out.

Again Chairman Harrison suggested that nominations be made for secretary and treasurer.

This time nearly half the audience arose and filed out. Only a few remained in the hall.

Mr. Panter reappeared, mounted the platform and explained that owing to the very small turnout, and the lack of interest that was being shown he was unwilling to ask that the meeting be adjourned until September.

TAKEN FROM HIS ROADSTER

John Factor and Al Epstein Kidnapped Leaving Roadhouse

CHICAGO, July 1.—(AP)— Two men reported to be John (Jake the Barber) Factor and Al Epstein were kidnapped from the former's automobile early today just after leaving "The Dells", a roadhouse west of Berwyn, Evanston.

Considerable excitement was added to the case when Sam Hare, manager of the roadhouse, said Factor and Epstein, accompanied by two women, had been at the place last night and had left early today before the alleged kidnapping in Factor's roadster.

Furthermore, he said he had talked with Factor by telephone since the reported kidnapping and said there was nothing to it.

However, policeman Emil Heins of Suburban Miss Center, who took the first report of the kidnapping said it was made by two women, who said a car carrying five men had stopped their automobile and at the point of gun forced the other men companions to get into their machine.

Amelia Earhart and Ruth Nichols Matching Ability Against Men

NEW YORK, July 1.—(AP)— Four male speedsters of the air and one woman—Miss Amelia Earhart—shot away from Floyd Bennett Field early today on a $12,500 race to Los Angeles. A fifth pilot, Russell Boardman, was the last to go to the starting line.

Miss Earhart, the wife of George Palmer Putnam, publisher, got away first in her red plane. She smiled, jaunted briefly for the cameras, and was off in a flash at 2:48 a.m. Eastern Standard Time.

Soon afterward the men hit the same western air trail, travelling fast. They are Col. Roscoe Turner of Los Angeles, who holds the east west record of 13 hours, 23 minutes; Russell Boardman of Springfield, Mass.; Russell Thaw of New York; and Lee Gehlbach at 4:42 Wedell at 4:47 and Omlie at 4:52.

The prizes were offered in connection with the sixth annual National air races, opening today at Los Angeles. Winners will be determined by comparison of elapsed time. A seventh contender, Miss Ruth Nichols, announced she would get off tonight.

LITTLE GIRL HAPPY WHEN HER DOG WINS

Guelph, Ont., July 1 (CP)—Among entries in the pet show held here yesterday was a medium-sized Boston pup, about two shades cleaner than the little girl who sat hugging the pup affectionately around the stomach. The dog's ears drooped and on its face was an expression of unfathomable woe.

But when the pup and owner left the show the little girl wore a look of extreme pride. On her blouse was pinned a blue ribbon won by her dejected dog.

THIS OLD WORLD is gradually shaking off its somnolence and everywhere there are signs of brighter and better days for everybody. The best brains of the world are busy planning united effort to bring better and brighter days to All the people—confidence is restored and business is assuming that rosy, healthy tinge, which has been absent for some considerable time.

A NEW BUSINESS ERA has started, and with it as a natural matter of course, a tendency toward rising price, more than a tendency, an actuality — and most encouraging is the fact that prices of products of the farm are rising, so that the farmer, the backbone of the nation, will get a better reward for his labor in providing the foodstuffs of the world.

THAT THIS IS THE TIME to spend money as an investment is certain—labor and materials are cheaper than they will be again for years—clothing, jewelry, furniture and groceries and all kinds of goods are cheaper now than they will ever be again in this lifetime in all probability.

MONEY INVESTED NOW in building homes, improving homes, or even buying a building lot, will return big dividends. Also money invested in the purchase of necessary things for the person or the home will be profitable investment. Prices are steadily rising and one of these days you will be surprised to learn that the purchase you have postponed so long will require half again as much money.

THE JOYS OF SUMMER ARE MANY — fishing, boating, motoring, swimming, camping — meeting old friends and making new ones and forgetting entirely that there was ever a winter or that before long all the joys of summer will be in the past—the winds will commence to blow "and we shall have snow" and what will you do then? You cannot like poor robin "hie to a barn and keep yourself warm by hiding yourself under your wing"—you will have to take a look at the furnace and if it is in ill condition start a fire which will make the house nice and warm—if BUT—there is often a BUT—if you have neglected having the furnace, which requires repairing and cleaning, attended to during the summer, then you are out of luck and you will have to shiver possibly for a few days while the furnace is being put in condition. Why not prevent this by telephoning to Murray Black at number 1335, or see him at 42 Gordon Street and arrange with him to look after the furnace now.

A SCENE FROM THE FUNNY ENGLISH SCREEN COMEDY "LETTING IN THE SUNSHINE"

The importance of clean windows is shown very forcibly in the very funny English screen story shown this week at the Capitol Theatre, and very aptly named "Letting In The Sunshine." Four years ago Clare Bros. began letting in the sunshine on stores and homes in Belleville and have brightened up the business section ever since, besides helping the housewives in the residential section to realize that housework can be made a pleasure, with the right helpers. Clare has a complete equipment for high, lofty and ground floor window cleaning, experience and the required ability. His motto is "Clare Cleans with Care, No Fuss, No Muss, That's Us."

THERE ARE PEOPLE WHO HAVE A REMEDY FOR ALL AILMENTS—if you are bald they will tell you how to grow hair—if you have hair they will tell you how to prevent it—if you are fat they will tell you how to reduce and if you are thin they will tell you how to become fat. All their suggestions and prescriptions are not, of course accepted and followed, but when they recommend the drinking of buttermilk for the relief of fatigue on a hot day it is a lazy time for that matter, the majority of people agree with them, and if they have not a supply already in the refrigerator they hasten to telephone the Langmuir Dairy at number 1500 or 2304 for a supply which is sure to be delivered promptly when wanted. The buttermilk supplied by the Langmuir Dairy is pasteurized and it is delicious and wholesome as is also the sweet milk and cream supplied by this dairy to hundreds of homes in Belleville daily.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK : TORONTO - WINNIPEG

New York Market Boils Over And Gains of One to Three Points Registered in Active Trading With Strong Close.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, July 1 (AP)—Financial markets bolstered over renewed inflationary fires today following administrative pronouncements that the dollar was still too high in terms of leading foreign exchanges. Stocks, with gains ranging from 1 to 3 or more points over a wide front, closed strong in active trading. Transactions approximated 2,000,000 shares.

Allied Chemical opened up nearly 4 points on an initial transaction of 5,000 shares, then eased several points. Union Pacific, Case and Johns-Manville showed similar gains.

Recent upsurges of the Canadian and United States dollar in terms of sharea has again revived rumors that the government is considering establishment in the United States of a stabilization fund of $2,000,000 shares, to be administered by Secretary Woodin.

Commodity prices were irregular this morning gave President Roosevelt an ideal weather to carry out his scheduled departure from here late today aboard the cruiser Indianapolis for Washington after a two weeks' sailing vacation.

It was made clear that the President is standing firm against inflationists who would "wreck" the world economic conference — a demand which has been made by the gold bloc headed by France.

The Roosevelt position on this is believed to mean that the latter can think there can be stabilization of the currency of all nations while one is likely to go off the gold standard. It was pointed out that a dollar valued at $1000,000 cents for a year in its budget may have to go off the gold standard.

Anyway, so far as the London economic crisis is concerned, United States officials think currency stabilization is now clear and Mr. Roosevelt is believed to think that will be "back to work" movement in his own country.

He does not regard that currency stabilization affects internal economic conditions to any great degree, and has no intention for central banks rather than for governments.

Understanding of Banks.

Monday, July 3 will be the most tangible part of the currency truce submitted to President Roosevelt although he has been in conference day as an understanding of central banks of the world's gold standards and smooth out fluctuations in dollar exchanges. Central banks are understood to have agreed in an agreement to smooth out currencies since George Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank left for New York more than a week ago. At that time it was understood quarters explained that the plan was only for preventing sharp fluctuations and not for preserving even a relatively fixed ratio.

U. S. VIEW IS NOT CHANGED

Roosevelt Feels Budgets Must Be First Balanced

Campo Bello Island, N.B., July 1 (AP)—President Roosevelt this morning gave President Roosevelt an ideal weather to carry out his scheduled departure from here late today aboard the cruiser Indianapolis for Washington after a two weeks' sailing vacation.

It was made clear that the President is standing firm against inflationists who would "wreck" the world economic conference — a demand which has been made by the gold bloc headed by France.

The Roosevelt position on this is believed to mean that the latter can think there can be stabilization of the currency of all nations while one is likely to go off the gold standard. It was pointed out that a dollar valued at $1000,000 cents for a year in its budget may have to go off the gold standard.

Anyway, so far as the London economic crisis is concerned, United States officials think currency stabilization is now clear and Mr. Roosevelt is believed to think that will be a "back to work" movement in his own country.

He does not regard that currency stabilization affects internal economic conditions to any great degree, and has no intention for central banks rather than for governments.

JOHN BIGHAM WINS WEEK AT Y.M.C.A. CAMP WITH PRIZE ESSAY

Out of the large number of essays written by children from Prince Edward to Prince Arthur on "Why I Like the Capital Theatre" the children's editor of the Campbell Street, proved to be the winner.

Consequently Master Bigham becomes entitled to all privileges as a member of the Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp to be held at Moira Lake on July 6th. for 13 days.

Manager Holmes made this announcement at the matinee today when the essays were read aloud and the revealing of the winner's name met with deafening applause.

Herewith is the winning essay and in it the reference to British Films is a noted feature of the theatre now submitted.

This is a very gratifying mark of appreciation from the children of today who will be the adults of tomorrow, and shows that there is being instilled into the minds of the younger generation a definite preference for everything British:

"Why I like the Capital Theatre.

"I like the Capitol Theatre because of its many attractive features. The sound equipment is excellent, making it a pleasure to view pictures and hear the conversation and music, while the ventilation is due to the comfort of the patrons in the hot weather.

"The style of picture shown is mostly talking, especially the British productions. The "horror" films shown send many chills through your body but this feature is not liked by the children in live comedies, news reels and serials.

"There is a refined and dignified atmosphere that makes you sense at once the homelike feeling in the theatre.

"The manager and staff are most courteous and obliging to their patrons.

"The prices are low and within reach of most people."

FREDERIC MARCH IS EAGLE IN' A NEW THRILLER OF THE AIR

Hollywood, Paramount in particular has done itself proud!

They've taken a book by the author of "Wings" injected the most thrilling air episodes we've ever seen witnessed, spiced it with crisp and effective dialogue, provided it with a thrilling fall of mirth, added a tender and appealing love interest, and then given a complete and authentic picture of the devil-may-care days when a flier with death in the clouds and are just as adventurous on the ground.

That's a mighty big order. But that's what they've done in "The Eagle and the Hawk", the widely-heralded film, at the Bells Theatre today and tomorrow and to-day only. The cast is a director's dream, Fredric March as the "Eagle", loving flying, abhorring killing; Cary Grant as the "Eagle Hawk", quick-tempered and quick-triggered observer, blonde and effeminate; Jack Oakie as the beautiful English society girl, Jack Oakie, as the actress who can see nothing seriously except his meals and his medals.

The story is that of "The Eagle", an expert flyer whose sensitive temperament revolts against the idea of incessant murder in the air, and "The Hawk", a valiant air-fighter who revels in his vicious, death-dealing fights with enemies, but they fly and fight together until "The Eagle" breaks completely down.

He goes on a furlough to London and finds a beautiful actress in the arms of a beautiful girl. He returns to discover that his buddy has been murdered by a treacherous ace, Voss. Infuriated, he tours the sky, finds his foe and destroys him. His discovery that his famed adversary is but a mere youth fighting for his life, is the climactic frame of mind.

Then follows the climax, utterly different from anything you've seen in the air.

"The Eagle and the Hawk" is unconditionally recommended.

Zasu Pitts and Thelma Todd are appearing on the same program in one of the funniest comedies of the year, "Roadhouse of the Century", "Hollywood on a Parade", revealing your favorite screen stars at work and play, and a delightful, hilarious offering, "Reaching for the Moon" will be exhibited on the same program. A new and interesting episode of the popular "Jungle Mystery" will also be exhibited on the matinees on Saturday.

Coming Attractions Sun-Mon

Constance Bennett comes to the Bells, Tuesday in her latest Radio Pictures starring vehicle, "Our Betters". It is an adaptation of Somerset Maugham's excellent stage success.

Concerning itself with society's upper crust and the bartering of the rich and fashionable, it is told against a background of royal palaces and mansions of the rich and famous.

Miss Bennett as no leading man in "Our Betters", wields her amorous proclivities around beautiful Gilbert Roland, Alan Mowbray, Minor Watson and Grant Mitchell portray some of the supporting roles. Others in the cast are Charles Starrett, Hugh Sinclair and Tyrell Davis and the women are represented by Anita Louise, Phoebe Foster and Violet Dunbar-Crane.

"The Warrior's Husband", billed as "Amazon Love Story" wherein women wore the pants and did the fighting, fell flat on its face, at cash of any feature production made this year.

Miss Fairbanks Broost Truex, Marjorie Rambeau, David Manners, Reginald Mason, Evelyn Burne, Helene Madison, John Sheehan and Clifford Brooks were the cast of principals. Others include Ann Westcott, Lillian Worth, Ann Dvorak, Catherine Nordstrom, Paul Porter, Kay Laurell, Dunningham, Blanche Payson and Robert Rose.

"The Warrior's Husband", is the second feature playing at the Belle on Tuesday and Wednesday.

HARD TIME OF HITCH-HIKERS

Thumb-Wagging Goes Unrewarded in These Days

It's tough on the hitch-hikers these warm days. Thumb-wagging on highways in the district doesn't mean a thing to the car owners who brave, along the roads at their forty-five mile gait. When they see one of the above comedy hikers with his little thumb in the air, they simply step on the gas and leave the old boat up to sixty. Too much trouble to slow down ahead to see the veterans of the open road declare. On one day last week I tried to get only motorist to stop and pick you-up, but when it's hot it's too much energy a mile or so out of Trenton during the morning's hike from there. Motorists have been passing me in their clouds of dust and leering laughs. Their hearts were set on reaching the destination and that he said. But a week ago he could have ridden in the next town to another without a hitch.

LIGHTNING BOLT SETS FIRE TO BARN

Bancroft, July 1.—A heavy electric storm accompanied by wind, hail and a heavy rain passed over the Bronson district on the afternoon, causing a heavy loss on the farm of Mr. Frank Card. A bolt of lightning struck the large frame structure. A high wind soon fanned the fire into blazing inferno. A couple of cows were freed from the building before it collapsed. Mr. Card's loss is partly covered by insurance, says the Bancroft Times.

R.M.C. PROFESSOR FEARED DROWNED

Ottawa, July 1.—Fears that Reginald Letourneau, 19, a student at the Royal Military College, Kingston, has been drowned in the Ottawa River, about nine miles west of Britannia, were strengthened by finding his shoes on the river bank. Professor Letourneau has been missing since about 5 o'clock last night, when he went for a swim.

When he did not return after some considerable time, a search was instituted, although it was believed that he might have gained out some cool place wherein to escape the heat of the afternoon. Dragging operations were conducted today.

16,264 WORKERS ADDED TO INDUSTRIES DURING MAY

Big Increase Over The Corresponding Month of Last Year

OTTAWA, July 1.—(CP)—During the month of May 16,264 workers were added to the payroll of manufacturing industries as compared with an increase of 12,000 to 1,000 in May of last year.

Employment is one of the most reliable tests of industrial activities, says the Weekly Statistical Review of the Trade and Commerce Department. The increased activity was general in most industries and was most marked in the animal products, iron and steel and electric groups, and in lumbering and paper manufacturing.

Another reliable index of the returning confidence of the purchasing public is the sale of automobiles. During May, 2,315 new vehicles and 3,777 used cars and trucks were purchased through financing corporations, as compared with three per cent. and 34 per cent. respectively for the preceding month. These sales constitute only a portion of the actual sales of new cars because statistics for the corresponding of the year showed that more than half of the cars purchased were paid for in cash, the Review says.

Production figures for Canadian industries show in most case, increases in output. Most recent statistics show that coke production in May at 134,775 tons was 11 per cent. greater than in April, and five per cent. more than in May, 1932. Production of silk commenced at 2,913,480 pounds in May showed an increase of 37 per cent. over the preceding month and five per cent. over May of last year. Industries showing greater activity than last year are those producing animal food, leather products, boots and shoes, wood distillates and extracts, agricultural implements, non-ferrous metal products, and miscellaneous articles.

ARMADA-SHIP IS CAPSIZED

One Occupant Missing And Three Hurt at Amsterdam

Amsterdam, July 1 (AP—An accident, apparently inexplicable, fatally marked the end today of the great armada of the skies. All of the Italian armada or 25 seaplanes bound from Italy to the Chicago Exposition, except the plane of Italo Balbo, soared after landing and one of the occupants was missing.

The other three men in the ship were rather seriously injured and were removed to a hospital.

The plane meeting the accident was one which descended some distance from the landing place of the others in the armada. It was therefore, several minutes before assistance could reach the scene. Motorboats immediately started a search for the missing aviator.

Hallifax, July 1 (CP)—Air Italy's air armada arrived at Amsterdam from Orbetello today, preparations for speeding the 24 seaplanes on to Chicago went forward at North Air-rican refueling points.

Two Italian submarines and two lighters were expected to leave St. John's, Nfld., at any moment to take up their positions as convoy ships between Labrador and Greenland.

IN MEMORIAM

CROSHAW—In loving memory of our dear father, Charlie Croshow, who passed away July, 1, 1932.

One year is gone, no one can tell,
The loss of one, we loved so well.
Short and sudden was the call
He left us all, to mourn by all.
The blow was great, the shock severe
We little thought her death so near God took her home, it was His will
But in our hearts she lingers still.
The pain of saying a last farewell.
Sadly missed by father, son, sister and brothers. 1yr-1t

Spying on Sports

BY

William Ritt

Central Press Canadian

THE VICTORY of the Honorable Michael Scott in the British amateur golf championship tournament at Hoylake comes as a great relief to all we oldsters who have voted in at least two presidential elections. Scott, the incredible cables from England insist, is 55 years old. That's great. But the best part of the story is that during this ancient's trek toward the title he smacked over a long string of bad wonders.

There have been so many boy wonders—and little girl wonders—grabbing off all the sport headlines the last few years that any athlete who had attained the hoary age of 25 found himself referred to as a "grand old man" of his game.

x x x

THE YOUTH movement is a grand thing, but they were carrying it too far in sports. It was making folks in their early thirties feel far from chipper, causing them, after a perusal of the day's sport page, to spend much valuable time peering into mirrors in search of gray hairs and tell-tale wrinkles.

All of this was pretty bad for the world's program of climbing out the slough of depression.

The conquest of the sport world by the kindergarten kids reached its climax when Dunky Jesse Owens, a 19-year-old Clevelander, several weeks ago scampered the 100 yards in world record time, something the greatest sprinters in track history had failed to do.

x x x

OWEN'S FEAT was the last straw for it followed such disturbing, to mature folk, occurrences such as the slapping around of Davis cup tennis stars by 17-year-old Frankie Parker, the diving triumphs of Dorothy Poynton, a mere babe in her early teens, and the golf conquest of Johnny Fischer, college undergraduate.

But along comes the Honorable Michael, a grizzled knight, riding down the dragons of time to rescue us, who shave every day, from the fear of the Old Folks' Home.

This champion has not only put the kindergarten kids in their place, but he has brought a wonderful, new hope to millions of North Americans whose golf game hasn't been what it could be—because they have spent so much time worrying about bay windows.

x x x

WHO'LL WIN the A Century of Progress ball game?

The answer to that is more than just a guess at the outcome of an interesting diamond struggle between the two major circuits.

The answer—to millions of big league clubs as Detroit, Washington, Cleveland and the National league has always seemed a sort of overgrown minor circuit. And Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Brooklyn the doings of the American league are regarded with profound indifference—just an upstart corn belt hoop with one or two good ball players.

In the five communities which are represented in both wheels exists a sharp difference between the American and National league fans, especially in Chicago and New York.

x x x

THE SUPPORTERS of the league whose representatives will be victorious in the July 6 interleague clash will always regard the outcome of the contest as conclusive proof of their contentions. That's to be expected.

But—of course — they will be wrong.

The outcome of the Chicago game may turn on a lucky hit, a wrong guess by a pitcher or a single error. Of such stuff baseball triumphs and defeats are usually made.

A season-length interleague schedule of games would be necessary to determine superiority. I am sure that both the American league clubs and half of the National would finish in the eight-club first division of such a circuit. Should one league prove definitely stronger than the other all that could be determined would be that one circuit was the better THIS YEAR. And the two leagues have been contemporaries for 33 years.

THE INTERLEAGUE game, despite the hoo-ha it will precipitate is the most interesting ball game ever scheduled. It brings together those in the first judgement of baseball leaders, are the 36 best players in baseball. NO such slight has ever before been presented on one diamond.

However, we have wandered far from the original question.

What will win?

On paper the American lineup looks the stronger. The National cannot present such a trio of sluggers as Gehrig, Ruth and Foxx. The American pitching staff is potent with two brilliant southpaws.

However the National team has as many consistent hitters, as many .300 average players as the American. And the National league has produced better fielding this year than ila younger rival.

Give the American team a slight edge—but no more. The game should be plenty close.

PLAYERS ARE SUSPENDED

President Delaney Rules With Iron Hand After Riot

Dear Sirs:

I, Joseph T. Delaney, president of the City League Softball Association, hereby suspend the following players for participating in tthe riot at the College Field, June 29th, 1933, between the College Hill Cubs and the Delaney Bearcats.

Frank Murray, College Hill, suspended for one full game.

Victor Hannah, Delaney Bearcats, suspended for one full game.

Frank Perraro, College Hill Cubs, suspended for two full games.

Jack Caddick, College Hill Cubs, suspended for one full game for fighting with his manager.

Please note in reference to Frank Perraro that the umpire-in-chief will be warned to put him out of the game if he gives the slightest resemblance of fighting and his two game suspension is due to the part that he started the second riot by pounding Victor Hannah when he and other principals in the fight were firmly held by their team mates.

In conclusion I warn every manager, coach and player if there are any more fights or riots the principals will be severely dealt with in the future.

I remain,

Yours in clean sport,

Joseph T. Delaney

President of City League Softball Association.

Grills' Garage has made application to have all games transferred to Queen Mary School grounds while both Grills' Garage and Delaney Bearcats have made application to have their games scheduled with College Hill Cubs transferred to Queen Mary School Grounds.

This will be arranged by the President before Saturday evening.

GOLF FACTS

NOT THEORIES!

By

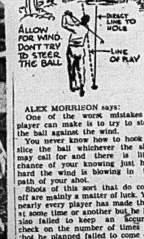
Alex J. Morrison

Always place heel of club to the ball when taking starting position.

ALEX MORRISON SAYS:

One of the biggest worries a player has is how far away from the ball he should be.

Some days he doesn't have this to even think about. Other days he never seems to judge it close enough to enable him to get into a comfortable position.



One reason for this is that he seldom places the same part of the clubface opposite the ball.

One time he addresses the toe of the club to the ball. Sometimes, the middle of the clubface.

The player avoids placing the heel of the clubface to the ball for fear of hitting the ball off this part of the club.

However, such a thing shouldn't happen and if he would address the heel of the club to the ball on every shot it would solve many problems about his swing.

NEXT:—Wind Allowance.

ALEX MORRISON says:

One of the worst mistakes a player can make is to try to steer the ball against the wind.

You never know how to hook or slice the ball whichever the shot may call for and there is little chance of your knowing just how hard the wind is blowing in the path of your shot.

Shots of this sort that do come off are mainly a matter of luck. Yet, nearly every player has made them at some time or another but he has also failed to keep an accurate check on the number of times that shot he planned failed to come off.

It's best always to stand around and allow enough so that you don't have to steer the ball.

JOE CRONIN now has a double ambition. The young Washington manager wants to win the American league pennant and batting championship in the same year. George Sisler, Ty Cobb, Larry LaJoie and Rogers Hornsby all had the same ambition.

VICTORIA IS STILL ON TOP

Carrying Place Comes Strong in Last Frame Nosed Out 14-12

Mountain View, June 30th—(Special)—Going out into the lead during the early innings, the Victoria A. C. defeated the Carrying Place nine by the score of 14 to 12 at Carrying Place last evening. The win keeps the Victoria club well to the fore in the Amelissburg Township League race having won five of their six games.

Owing to the recent hot wave, however, the game was not attended by a very large crowd Crawford and G. Creavey teamed as the battery for the winners, while Herrington and Rich officiated under the hot sun as batterymates for the Carrying Place nine.

A splendid softball game has been arranged for Monday evening, when Rednerville and Victoria, the two ancient rivals in the league will meet at Mountain View with the winning team of the game being entertained free of charge at a large ice cream social at Mountain View that evening.

POLICE NEWS

Activities in the local police department were rather quiet during the past 24 hours. Mr. George Meagher, 118 Caiberine street, reported the loss of his small terrier dog on Thursday evening. Mr. Meagher was walking along Catherine street when the dog ran out in front of a local bread truck, was run over and killed.

Constable Arnott investigated an accident on Front street yesterday afternoon when a car driven by G. McCaffrey, R. R. No. 2, Belleville, collided with a car driven by Ross Spencer, R. R. No. 7, Belleville. Mr. McCaffrey was backing out from in front of a main street store when his automobile collided with Mr. Spencer's, who was driving southward at the time. The matter was settled between the parties. Another automobile owner was taken to the police station for leaving his car on Front street all day yesterday with a "for sale" card displayed on it. The merchant in front of whose store the car was parked complained to the police. The owner was told to discontinue the practice.

"It was not a 'for sale of the cow's in the meadow" but, on the contrary the residents on Yeomans street ob-

Fame's Golfers Show You How to Improve Your Golf

This is the first of a series of illustrated lessons in which outstanding professional golfers, men whose names are by-words in golfdom, demonstrate how the average golfer may improve his game.

All good golfers know the importance of the wrist movements and the grip. Craig Wood (LEFT) and Horton Smith here illustrate some fundamental points. Both of these great players make the left hand do as much work at the right.

Use of the left hand is all-important, but to most "dubs" the left is more of a liability than the right. These photos show how the left hand should be made to work properly. The back of the left hand should be over the shaft with at least three knuckles showing.

Horton Smith calls special attention to the relation between the hands and the clubhead. The first thing a golfer should learn, he says, is that the hands, wrists and clubhead must work together perfectly. Body action is secondary. The action of the hands and wrists in swinging the club must be graceful and easy.

Shannonville Cemetery Is Decorated

Belleville, June 30. — A pleasing event took place on Wednesday afternoon at Shannonville when a large number of friends and relatives gathered at River View Cemetery, Shannonville, to visit and to beautify the graves of their loved ones.

About 2:30 Mr. J. F. Hill, M.P.P., chairman of the cemetery board, called the crowd together and in a very brief words told of the great work which had been done toward the cleaning up of the cemetery, extending much thanks to the Quinte Women's Institute.

The gathering was fortunate in having present R. Swain from Consecon whom Mr. Hill called upon for a few words. He also spoke encouragingly of the work that had been carried on although he had the best cons buried there. He considered it a pleasure to be with the gathering.

Mr. E. Tummon, M.P. of West Hastings, was next called upon. Mr. Hastings was next called upon. He spoke on the neglected cemeteries and of the great undertaking and cleaning of Shannonville cemetery. He thought much more of this work should be done throughout the district. Last but not least, one who has helped to see the work accomplished was called on, the pastor, Rev. Clark of Shannonville, who like the others thought it a wonderful task well undertaken.

A hearty vote of thanks was then extended to these men for their encouraging words from the Women's Institute and all joined in singing the doxology.

JULY 1 MR. AND MRS.- HUSBANDS ARE SO AGGRAVATING

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

An hour later, Jad-bal-ja emerged silently from the jungle. In his jaws was a torn leopard skin. This he brought and laid at the feet of his master. The ape-man picked it up, examined it and scowled. "I believe he killed the wretch after all," he remarked. "We will search for him in the morning. I would like to have the diamonds again." Then he told Jane the strange story connected with his acquisition of the great wealth represented by the little bag of stones from the palace of the gorilla-men.

Next day Tarzan searched in vain. Esteban's trail disappeared in the river and finally Tarzan concluded the imposter had been devoured by crocodiles. "That is the end of the man who would be Tarzan," he exclaimed. Flora Hawkes shuddered and bursed into tears. "Because of my wickedness, many men have died," she wailed. "You have paid a heavy price for your folly," said Jane Clayton. "We will see that you reach England again, for I believe you have learned your lesson."

The three and Jad-bal-ja had been two days on the march toward Jane Clayton's home. Tarzan halted, raised his head and sniffed the jungle air. "I sent the Waziri home," he said with a smile, "but evidently they did not obey me. They are still searching for us." Soon they encountered them, and a great war party rejoicing of the faithful blacks when they found both their master and mistress alive and unscathed. Greetings over, and Tarzan said: "Tell me what you did with the gold you took from the camp of the Europeans?"

"We hid it, O Bwana, where you told us," replied Usula. "I was not with you, Usula," said Tarzan, "it was another who deceived you, a man who so cleverly impersonated me that it is no wonder you were all imposed upon." Great was the joy of the Waziri simple blacks to find it was the white chief who had fled from Sabo, the rhinoceros, and otherwise disgraced himself. Constructing litters for the wounded men, the party marched in buoyant spirits toward the spot where the Waziri had cached the gold for Esteban.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Yesterday's precipitation was undoubtedly the most welcomed rain in many a moon. Baseball, softball and other sports gladly gave way to such a welcome down-pour that was worth its weight in gold to the countryside.

As there is no other baseball game scheduled for the holiday Monday, the Belleville Victorias arranged to have the Brighton Intermediates play their regular scheduled game of July 5th at the local Exhibition Park on that day. With no counter attractions the Vics should enjoy their best turnout of the season. Shannon, who hurled a pretty fair sort of a ball game against the Vics here in Belleville recently, will again assume the pitching duties of the visitors, while either Carl Casey or Ralph Dorey, who stopped the Brightonites previously will hurl for Mr. Fanning's charges.

The Vics are in a tough spot in their loop and must win this game to pull into a prominent place in the league standing. Coach "Champ" Greene is far from being disappointed following the rather weird shooting of the locals in Picton last Wednesday as he feels, that his charges got a bad game out of their system.

Previous to the ball game the annual across the bay swimm will hold the sport spot-light. This annual affair is set to start at 10 a.m., from the Government Dock and should be completed in less than an hour. Charlie Shroeder at present holds the senior record of 32 mins. and 30 secs., that is for the swim over the bay and back again. This record was established in 1931. Miss Lorna Ridley, who holds the ladies' record of 35 mins. and 38 secs. established in 1930. Cap Kelly, of Kingston, who won the junior class last year in just 39 minutes, is planning to enter the senior race this year. Instructor Ralph Mendon has worked long and hard to make the 1933 edition of this annual aquatic the best ever.

All-week long an ever-flow crowd of interested town boosters have been practising at the local lawn bowling green for Monday's annual Scotch Doubles. The participants start in recently. Oshawa were always a good drawing card in Belleville and the season's outstanding baseball game should be seen at the local ball yard on Wednesday. After the showing that "Timmy" Uttendal made against the Dukes in Oshawa the fore part of the season, the ex-Renfrew hurler will undoubtedly get the local pitching assignment.

Word came to our sare yesterday regarding the ejecting of two local Front St. merchants from last Wednesday's ball game. According to the story we heard, the two business men crawled over the fence to the ball park but fortunately were seen by one of the club's officials, who marched them to the gate and made them purchase a ticket or get out. (They got out.) When successful business men have to "steal" into a ball game, it is any wonder that the finances of the club are not sufficient to make ends meet. It may be news to some but the gate receipts during the last three home games of the Nationals have not been sufficient to even pay the visiting club's guarantee of $15.00. No club can exist long under such circumstances.

S.E.A.C. GIRLS EARN A TIE

Defeat Fruit Lassies 16-8 And Draw Even For 1st Place

The South End A.C. girls softball team pulled up into a tie for first place in the local girls' softball league when they won from the league leading Belleville Fruit lassies at the Victoria Park diamond last evening by the score of 16 to 8.

The game marked the official opening of the new diamond on Victoria Park and was well patronized considering the short time in which the league had to advertise the change of the locale of the match.

Behind the steady hurling of Bessie Doolittle the S.E.A.C. girls pound of their way to victory when they capitalized to the fullest measure on the many glaring errors committed by the champions. Molly Gray, Belleville's veteran girl pitcher, was on the hilltop for the Fruit team and hurled good enough ball to win the average game but was afflicted rather poor support in the field. Miss Doolittle let the champions down with seven hits, three of which were registered in her direction. Doris Bland led the Fruit team at bat with two singles and a double, while Mary Leavey hit out one safe for a triple.

To Hilda McMichael short stop of the S.E.A.C. goes the honor of hitting the first home run on the new diamond, which incidentally is some what rough as yet. Miss McMichael hit one of Molly Gray's slants and into left field for a home run in the sixth. She also had a single and a double to lead her team mates at bat. Pat Ethier collected two singles while Beadie Doolittle had a double and a single to her credit.

S.E.A.C.—Thurston, Burley, Doolittle, Ethier, Morgan, Littles, H. McMichael, M. McMichael, Cousins.

Belleville Fruit—Kelleher, Tuttle, Thrasher, Simmons, Morgan, Leavey, Day, Dennis, Bland, Gray, Canning and Gray.

Promoter Corcoran has arranged a supporting card in which outstanding wrestlers will appear and the program as a whole is comparable with the best shows held in Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, and even Madison Square Garden, New York.

For the first time in Belleville Al Getzewich, the unmasked marvel, will wrestle without his mask, he having been obliged to meet Bruno Gorassini of Italy in the forty-five minute semi-final. Getzewich removed his mask following the bout with Szabo at the last show and proved to be a fair-haired good looking young athlete. He has agreed to wrestle without the mask from the commencement of next Wednesday's bout and he will probably be glad that he does not have it as a handicap for Gorassini, who hails from sunny Italy, is a wrestler of re-

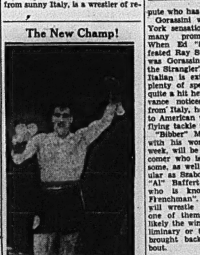
CARNERA KNOCKS OUT JACK SHARKEY



Primo Carnera, gigantic Italian gladiator, became the heavyweight boxing champion of the world, when he knocked out the defending champion, Jack Sharkey, of Boston. The fight, a scheduled fifteen-round affair, ended abruptly in the sixth round, when Carnera floored Sharkey with a terrific right uppercut. Tile Madison Square Long Island bowl was scene of action. Jack Sharkey's body is shown lying in the ring, while the referee is ordering Carnera to a neutral corner. Central Press Photo

When Ed "Strangler" Lewis defeated Ray Steele last December it was Gorassini who was chosen as the Strangler's next opponent. The Italian is extremely powerful, has plenty of speed and should make quite a bit here if he lives up to advance notices. Though he comes from Italy, he has adapted himself to American wrestling and uses the flying tackle to very good effect.

"Bibber" McCoy, who impressed with his work against Pinto last week, will be back to meet a newcomer who is said to be as handsome, as well-built and as spectacular as Szabo, the new man being "Al" Baffert of Hollywood, Cal., who is known as the "Flying Frenchman". McCoy and Baffert will wrestle thirty minutes unless one of them scores a fall. It is likely the winner of either the preliminary or the semi-final will be brought back for the next main bout.

BROWNING IS GIVEN RIDE

Sandor Szabo Makes Night Interesting For Champion

Hamilton, July 1—Given a stiff battle for 32 minutes before successfully affixing his spectacly, the airplane scissors, Jim Browning, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, last night defeated Sandor Szabo, Hungarian champion, with two straight falls to feature the Hamilton Wrestling Club's weekly outdoor program here last night.

Before the largest crowd that has ever witnessed a wrestling bout here, Browning took a ton of abuse from the aggressive Szabo before he crashed the Hungarian with stiff elbow blows and clamped his legs about Szabo's body to whirl him and then drop him in 32 minutes flat. Four minutes and thirty seconds after the rest period Browning had gained the second fall with the same attack.

Szabo at 210 pounds was outweighed by 20 pounds, but he threw everything he had into the battle and made the bout a splendid exhibition of modern wrestling with considerable tobacco thrown in.

MOUNTAIN VIEW GIRLS WIN SOFTBALL GAME

Florence Wallbridge is Big Sticker on Either Team

Mountain View, July 1 (Special)—The Mountain View ladies' softball team defeated the Quinte A. C. ladies here last evening in an exhibition game by the score of 13 to 10. NO DECISION BY STEERING COMMITTEE

Question of Adjourning Laid Over to Thursday; Conferees Deadlocked

Gold Bloc in Europe Holds Conference Continuance in its Hand

PARIS MEETING

Committees Will Remain Intact is General View

LONDON, July 4.—(CP Cable)—After three-quarters of an hour discussion as to whether the World Conference should be adjourned, the steering committee of the great world gathering tonight failed to reach a decision and adjourned until Thursday.

Decision as to the future progress of the World Conference, brought to a seemingly hopeless deadlock over the question of currency stabilization, was put off for another two days.

Before the steering committee met secretly this evening, it had been confidently forecast that the outcome would be a call for a plenary session on Thursday, after which the World Conference would adjourn indefinitely.

Little Chance of Continuing

Whether the delay in reaching a decision by the steering committee meant the heads of delegations thought there was a chance of the conference continuing, was unknown.

It seemed hardly likely, in view of the fact the powerful European Gold Bloc, which formed the only group that adhered strictly to what can be done without currency stabilization, while the United States flatly refuses to consider currency stabilization at this time.

The general expectation was that the conference proper would be adjourned while the steering committee and such committees as are under consideration entirely apart from monetary policy are kept in being.

Gold Bloc Chiefs in Paris

Paris, July 4.—(AP)—The "Gold Bloc" chiefs of six European countries will probably gather in the Bank of France forums shortly to formulate their currency strategy.

Governors of the banks of France, Holland, Switzerland, Italy, Belgium and Poland are understood to have agreed to talk over the situation possibly Saturday.

The Bank of France officials say action is neither necessary nor desirable, asserting the gold countries are able to take care of themselves and that the mere knowledge they can cooperate would lessen any chances of a concerted attack upon any one of the group.

Return to Gold Is Time

LONDON, July 4.—(CP Cable)—The British Government's policy, stated in the House of Commons today and a return to the Gold Standard by the United Kingdom is ultimate objective, when the proper conditions are assured.

Leslie Rore-Belisha, financial secretary to the Treasury, stated at the same time however "we must reserve complete liberty to choose our own

The government took note of the statement of the questioner, he continued. That a large volume of bank notes remain in British felt any attempt to stabilize the means of exchange without first ensuring there was an adequate volume of trade would be a reversal of the proper procedure and harmful to commercial interests.

Port Alberni, B.C., July 4 (CP) — Charlie Sam, Indian of Kildonan, who lies in hospital here with six stitches in his heart, was reported much improved today.

Stabbed through the heart with a knife during an altercation with another Indian Thursday last, Sam was rushed to hospital where Dr. William Higgs, graduate of University of Alberta, performed the delicate operation. Today, Dr. Higgs held fair hopes for his patient's recovery.

Andrew Moses, who allegedly wielded the knife which struck down Sam, is held on a charge of attempted murder.

FIREWORKS IN PRECIPITOUS DROP IN U. S.

July Fourth Celebration Observed With Due Ceremony

ONE BOY KILLED

Firecrackers Running Out He Uses Dynamite Bombs

New York, July 4 (CP) — The United States observed Independence Day with the customary fireworks, outings and oratory today; the 157th. anniversary of the country's birth as a republic.

With much of the country overcast by cloudy skies, thousands headed for beaches and inland resorts hopeful the weather would clear by afternoon.

First fatality of the annual firecracker festival was the death in Washington of Joseph L. Simmons, 36, who with his twin brother continued the celebration with a dynamite bomb after their firecrackers had run out. The bomb exploded prematurely. The twin brother escaped.

All financial, commodity and security markets were closed, and business south of the country's commercial centres were deserted.

Abroad, the American holiday was celebrated with the usual enthusiasm. Twenty thousand Americans observed the holiday in Paris where the customary exchange of friendly sentiments was made at the L'Arc-en-Ciel's tomb in Picpus cemetery.

At hallowed Independence Hall in Philadelphia, where the Declaration of Independence was signed, the document was read to a large gathering by a high school student.

Across the country colorful ceremonies and parades, pow-wows, rodeos and baseball games filled the days, dotted the holiday program.

Fewer fireworks are being used this year according to official statistics. The figures show use of fireworks has dropped 50 per cent since 1929.

KILLED AFTER TOUCHING HIGH TENSION WIRE

Beamsville, Ont., July 4.—(CP) Arthur Burgess, nine year old Campden boy, was killed instantly today when the full force of 40,000 volts of electricity from the Hydro Commission line four miles south of here passed through his body.

Provincial police investigated and an inquest will be held next week with preliminary hearing today.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Burgess of Campden.

20 Expelled As Communists From Worker's Ex-Services Men's League

Hamilton, Ont., July 4 (CP) —At a meeting of one or the Workers' Ex-Service Men's League branches here last night, 20 members were expelled following a motion of the executive committee on the grounds they were not 100 per cent. members of the League and Communists. There are two branches in the city and neither recognizes the other.

Members of the Provincial executive held a meeting at the same time in a lot near Gregory Hall and a notice from the Ontario executive outlawing the group which had done the expelling was read.

The meeting was attended by John Miller, provincial chairman and the treasurer of the organization.

The ex-Service Men's League was then re-formed with F. Widdup as secretary.

Police were called in preserve order during the double meeting.

SINGLE COFFIN OF WHITE PINE HOLDS FIVE CHARRED BODIES

Flames From Explosion of Gasoline Cause Tragedy

Coddie's Harbor, N.B., July 4 (CP)—Saddened by tragedy, residents of this little fishing community were preparing today for the funeral of five persons who perished yesterday in flames that destroyed their home.

Neighbors planned a common burial for Mrs. Richard Luddington and her four children. Today, a single coffin of white pine enclosed the five charred bodies.

They died early yesterday when flames from an explosion of gasoline swept through Richard Luddington's cottage, leaving four dwellings and bereft of his whole family. Luddington himself was under a doctor's care for serious burns.

He had arisen early yesterday morning, leaving his family in bed, to tend his nets. He lit a lamp, an explosion followed and in a few seconds the home was afire. Luddington was drenched with burning gasoline with which his 35-year-old wife had apparently filled the lamp. Smoke drove him out of the house. He shouted to his wife and young children. There came no answer. With the help of a neighbor, Roy Sponagle, he pushed a ladder to her bedroom window. He was forced back by fire and clouds of choking smoke.

From the ground he watched the house burn, to emit some from within. In less than an hour the building was a mass of smoking debris. Luddington stood silently by while neighbors searched among the embers for the victims.

They were brought out, almost unrecognizable, two-year-old Brian was clasped in his mother's arms. Jean, 8, and Bernard, 11, embraced each other in death. Last to be found was nine-year-old Margaret, the only girl in the family.

Head Wedged In A Tree But Rescued In Time

Mitchell, Ont., July 4 (CP)—His head wedged in the forked branch of a tree, Roy Norman hung dangerously suspended in mid-air for several minutes Saturday until he was noticed and saved from strangulation.

Roy was descending a tree from which he had been watching a baseball game when he misjudged the distance between the fence and the branch. Trying to drop to the fence he found his head wedged in the branch fork and his feet not quite touching the fence. His cries for help were not heard for some time owing to the noise from the ball game. He was rescued in time to recover.

35,000 Rail Shopmen Will Not Accept New 10 P. C. Cut

Workers Agree to Work For Another Year Under First Cut of 10 Per Cent in Wages But Say New Wage Slash Not Justi fied

Montreal, July 4 (CP)—The Canadian branch of the railroad employees department of the American Federation of Labor, representing 35,000 shop tradesmen, has informed the Railway Association of Canada, representing all Canadian railroads, that its members have undergone enough sacrifice on the point of reductions in pay, lay-offs and reductions in working hours and will not accept the proposed additional 10 per cent. cut in basic rates it was learned here today.

The workers announced their willingness to continue working for another year under the ten per cent cut now in force, but stressed the fact that any new wage cuts are not justified.

The men did not vote on the matter, according to Charles Dickey, Secretary of the Shopmen. Protest letters came in without request. The next move is up to the companies, he stated, adding that they will probably apply to the Minister of Labor for a board of conciliation. A meeting of his organization will be held some time next week, Mr. Dickie said, and the policies to be followed in the forthcoming negotiations will be decided on.

No statement could be obtained from the Railway Association of Canada except the announcement that the decision of the men had been submitted to the different railroads affected.

CHAMBERS IN PROTEST OVER TRADE WALLS

Criticism of High Tariff Walls of Canada Heard

CLOSING DOOR

Preferential Trade Resolution Adopted at London Meeting

(By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 4 (CP) Cable) — Lively exchanges resulted in the congress of the Empire Chambers of Commerce today over increasing Empire preferential trade when one of the British delegates asserted Canada had not reduced her tariff barriers to the same extent the United Kingdom had.

Col. Henry Cockshutt, of the Brantford, Ontario, Board of Trade, proposed the congress register approval of the initial steps taken through the Ottawa conference in increasing preferential trade between the units of the Empire. The motion, seconding by F. Newman of the Ontario Association of Trade, was:

Granville Gibson, representing the Leeds Chamber of Commerce, and Conservative member of the House of Commons, while supporting the Empire trade resolution, said Empire trade complained the Canadian tariff barriers had not been reduced to the same extent as those of the United Kingdom.

"At one time," said Mr. Gibson, who was once connected with the lastline lines with Canada, "Canada was a happy hunting ground for us, but the Canadian administration increased duties from an average of 15 per cent. to from 47 to 123 per cent. This closed the door to me, for

Tariff Board to Work

"I understand the Dominions desire to foster their secondary industries but they must not close the door altogether. Goodness knows when Canada will start working her way back."

He referred to the new Canadian tariff board before which will shortly come the application of British industries for a review of the tariff affecting their products.

A. O. Dawson, chairman of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, replied to Mr. Gibson. He said, said laughter from the delegates from all parts of the Empire: "I am interesting to hear of Canada being a big hunting ground, but I would have you know that was at the expense.

"We were making a life and death struggle in the wool industry. If there had not been a tariff we should have gone on the scrap-heap, turning thousands of workers into the streets."

Lord Marsan of Huddersfield, spoke of the disappointment among British textile men that the interference by Canada with the prices of their industry and the new tariff had not been reduced.

Eventually however the motion was adopte i unanimously.

Marriage At Sea Not Legal But Happy Pair Not Worrying At All

Ramsgate, England, July 4—(CP Cable)—This is a tale of frustrated ingenuity but undaunted determination.

Young Samuel Clark and his bride-to-be, Florence Brice, arrived at the Ramsgate Church to get married. They found through a technical oversight in publishing the marriage notice the rector was unable to perform the ceremony.

The bride was distracted, the bridegroom gloomy, but the best man was struck by a happy thought. Why not proceed to sea and be married by a captain.

So the eager pair, accompanied by parents and witnesses, left this seaside resort in a big motorboat and voyaged beyond the Goodwin Sands lightships. There they gave to the skipper in prescribed form pronounced the couple man and wife.

After a two-day honeymoon came the marriage lines from the Registrar-General's office. He called the ceremony entirely invalid. "This question of marriage at sea," it was explained, "crops up regularly. There is a persistent fallacy that such marriages are permissable."

But the bridegroom is not worrying unduly. "If we hear anything more," he said, "we shall get married again ashore."

Bond Transactions No Violation of Act, Says Premier in Defence

Defence Filed Against Motion by L. J. Lafferty to Unseat Him

LAFFERTY'S VIEW

Exchange of Bonds No Contract Henry Claims

Windsor, Ont., July 4 (CP)—In his defence filed against a motion to unseat him as Premier of Ontario, Hon. George S. Henry today declared his bond and debenture transactions in connection with the Ontario Power Service bonds did not constitute a violation of the Legislative Assembly Act as claimed by Louis J. Lafferty of Comber, the plaintiff.

A writ was issued to the complainant in the Supreme Court at Sandwich last April 3 to which the Premier's answer was filed by the Toronto legal firm of Tilley, Johnson and Carpenter.

The Premier denies the exchange of his bonds for Hydro debentures was a contract or agreement with His Majesty the King as argued by plaintiff; nor was it a contract or agreement with any public official or department with respect to public servic of Ontario within the meaning of Section 19 of the Legislative Assembly Act, he submits.

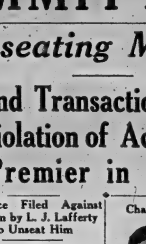
Admits he Voted

The Premier pleads the provisions of sub-Section one of Section 11 of the Act, also denied, that the vote of the plaintiff, Lafferty, to maintain the action.

The Premier admits his election and that he sat and voted in the Ontario Legislature on certain days of the session which commenced on January 12, 1933.

Plaintiff Lafferty, in the writ last April, described Premier Henry as a farmer living near the village of Tudmordon, York County, and submitted the Province's bond and debenture deals had been contrary to the Legislative Assembly Act in the revised Statutes of Ontario of 1877, Chapter 11, Section 18.

In view of that, Lafferty argued, Premier Henry now "is ineligible as a member of and disentitled to vote or move in the Ontario Legislature".



Plaintiff also submitted Premier Henry was liable to a $2,000 fine for each day he sat in the Legislature after his exchange of bonds and he sought $78,000 in accumulative penalties for 39 days and costs of the action:

In the statement of plaintiff that Premier Henry had carefully "entering into a contract with His Majesty the King, and his agents, the Electric Power Commission of Ontario, by exchanging bonds for debentures, payment of which, both as to principal and interest, is guaranteed by His, Majesty the King."

100 ROOMS IN CLIFF HOUSE

Vanished Race Lived in Canyons in State of Utah

Flagstaff Ariz, July 4—(AP)—In the same pockets with a prosaic request for more beans and coffee, scientists announced the discovery of an Indian cliff house, hidden for centuries.

The ancient dwelling was really an apartment, as described by Jess Peter and Lloyd W. Lowrey, members of the monument valley historical expedition in southern Utah. They said the three storey structure contained hundreds of rooms and was cleverly hidden in a canyon which the rays of the sun did not penetrate.

The Prehistoric settlement is in the San Juan river district, some 30 miles from Bluff, Utah.

The cliff dwellers, the scientists said, will be made to yield secrets of the past. The building is almost perfectly preserved. It is not alone it; his majesty, however, for in the surrounding canyons rich archaeological finds still await the student of prehistoric times. It is to these canyons that the future anthropologist will come to study and to delve into the records of the cradle of American civilization."

Another discovery was that of an American cave and council chamber." Above the ruins was a reservoir cut in the rock and a watchtower for the protection of a spring. Walls of the rooms and pot "abreds" are expected to yield to trained eyes much history of the people who once inhabited the perching bat-like on the faces of cliffs in dark canyons.

HOME LIFE IS PARAMOUNT IN NATION'S LIFE

Baptism of Honesty is Need Says Rev. Dr. Semple

JULY 1ST SERMON

"Is Canada Worth While?" was the theme of the Rev. Dr. James Semple, minister of Bond Street Church, Peterboro, at the union service of the Bridge Street and Tabernacle congregations at the Tabernacle Church on Sunday evening.

Dr. Semple pointed to the fact that there are a great many persons who are asking this and many articles cheaper in New York than in Toronto, and another group of people claims that it costs less to rear a family in Chicago than in Toronto, that another group of people claims that it costs less to rear a family in Chicago than in Toronto, that another group which tells that government in Canada costs many times as much as the government of the United States with its 120 times as much money and so on. And he added: "My sympathy is with the above mentioned organizations. In Canada some of them of twenty years ago have disappeared now facing unemployment.

"Then again many people claim there is enough machinery to make automobiles for two continents, one per North America.

"Then there is unemployment near on the highways and in the trains. Now we want to find out if Canada is worth while. Is it worth this—is that Canada is worth while," declared Dr. Semple.

Dr. Semple went back to Deuteronomy 30 and 19 where we read the words: "When thou builtest a house thou shalt make a battlement for thy roof that thou bring not blood upon thine house if any man fall from thence."

Home Life

The home life he found the greatest national asset. It makes life dignified and worth while. Out of churches if the homes are allowed to languish, the highest type of character is reached in the home.

Homebuilding was the first act of the pioneer forefathers of this country, after which came churches and schools.

If we in Canada forget what are the rights of the common people as they have in the past, people should like to be," the minister warned his congregation.

He told how centuries kings like Henri Fourth who was much concerned about the welfare of the common people it would have been well that that man, the greatest king who was that every peasant might have a chicken in his pot on Sunday. Dr. Semple said he was not impressed with the building of large apartments in Montreal as they tend to detract from the development of the home. Modern houses in Western Canada fifteen years ago were built as homes and were homes.

The family is the key of the new world," Jesus saw God as the head of the family of men and all the good women's hearts followed. Dr. Semple pointed to the interesting and unique housing problem that in Montreal that the chastity of the French Canadian women. The home is one of the greatest contributions of that race to humanity.

"We must emphasize the betterment of the home, on the east, reverence; of the Sabbath day, the north purity; and on the west, love of righteousness and of the law of social service.

Reverence for God

Mankind needs a new reverence for God, for the sad reflection from the deadening familiarity with the sublime and the commonplace. In the mind of the minister. "We are going to fight in the next world war. We have built for the Sabbath." "I am not thinking of the Sabbath made more dreary but one sanctified by reliance," he referred, "to old conceptions of what was permissible and what was not permissible on Sunday. Man might do anything with book not with an axe; he could brush his hair and not his shoes; in some parts of the country he could go for a walk on Sunday if he went to the cemetery. These things seemed simple. "I do not want to be narrow," said Dr. Semple, "but somebody must stay at home from church to give your children a note of ice cream on Sunday."

He claimed that reverence for

44 YEARS AS RAILROADER

W. K. Kerr Relates Story of Other Days on "Old Line"

When the Canadian National train No. 1, the world's fastest scheduled train, arrived in Belleville on Wednesday, May 31, Mr. William K. Kerr of this city, the engineer, had completed 44 years service with the Grand Trunk and the Canadian National Railways and retired from his responsible activities on that date.

Mr. Kerr was born in Ayrshire, Scotland, in 1867 and came to Canada in 1889, going to Toronto to live. In 1894 W. K. as he is familiarly known in railroading circles, journeyed to Scotland and brought back to Canada a Scotch lassie, who has shared and sorrowed since. Mr. and Mrs. Kerr came to make their home here in 1910, and in the following year moved into the splendid home they had erected at 286 Bleecker Ave., where they have since resided. They had planned a trip this year to their native heath, to celebrate Mr. Kerr's retirement after his 44 years of railroading activities, but Mr. Kerr's present health would not permit of it and the journey has been postponed for the present.

44 Years a Railroader

W. K. Kerr started his railroading career firing the engine in the Toronto roundhouse in 1889 with 36 other young fellows at the bottom of the list all with hopes of the time when they would be running Canada's fastest trains. In the years time Mr. Kerr was firing a yard engine, and following a year of that advanced job at $1.10 for a 12 hour day was promoting to firing on the main line.

Reminiscent of those days of 40 years ago, Mr. Kerr said railroading at that time was rather a hard game, and required a good deal of stickto-itiveness to get along. The engines were small and mostly overloaded and doubling grades was a common occurrence. It took a long time to get over the road, but the pay was the same no matter how long it took. Trains were often tied up by snow storms for several days and train crews had often to shovel snow into the tender so as not to water to keep the engine alive.

In 1892 he was promoted to be an engineer on the spare list, and, he says, "it was spare indeed in those days." From that period he was placed for regular freight runs. Then in the passenger service he has lately been running the world's fastest scheduled train between Belleville and Toronto. Mr. Kerr has run every type of locomotive owned by the Grand Trunk and Canadian National Railways, including the oil electric engines. The engines on the fast trains, he says are wonderful, and the electric signal system makes it possible to handle those fast trains with ease and safety.

Horticulturist

Mr. Kerr for many years has been an ardent horticulturist and Mrs. Kerr also has a strong bent in that delightful interest. For a number of years they produced beautiful dahlias that received major awards at the Belleville Horticultural Shows. They are now interested chiefly with roses, delphiniums and gladiolas of many varieties. Their lawn and gardens on elegant Bleecker Avenue have always been among the neatest and most attractive in the city, and their many friends throughout the community trust Mr. and Mrs. Kerr will long be permitted to live and enjoy the unobtrusive occupation or still further-their horticultural pursuits, in which Mr. Kerr's well earned years of retirement.

Memorial Pulpit Is Dedicated A Picton Church

At last Sunday morning's service at the centennial of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Picton, the dedication of the pulpit, recently presented to the congregation by the family of the late John and Eleanor (Buchannan) Illsley, was made. The new memorial Communion Service marking the 100th. anniversary of the founding of the church was also dedicated. This was the gift of Captain Gilbert Arthur.

The services of Sunday in this fine old historic church are reported to have been most interesting and delightful. Many members of former worshippers of long past years were present and warm-hearted shookhips renewed. From 60 years ago downward to more recent years, representatives of decades of members and former members of the congregation filled the worship last day last.

The celebration of the Centenial is to continue till Sunday next.

So far as existing records show, the first session of the Congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held on May 3, 1833, and was constituted by Rev. Alexander Mordy, who was the ministerer. Rev. McLean resigned the charge in 1845 and was succeeded by Rev. Wm. Hamilton. Ministers succeeding Rev. Hamilton were Revs. Wm. Reid, Thos. H. Chandeas. R. C. Swinton, John McMechan (13 years), Walter Coulthard (13 years), D. G. McPhail (10 years), W. W. McLaren, Wm. Ebenezer, J. A. Shaver, M. N. Ormond, A. V. Brown, C. L. Cowan, W. M. Peeney, Rev. S. M. Scott, who was ordained into the Christian ministry and inducted into the charge of St. Andrew's on April 24, 1928.

Vacation Bible Study Explained

The community gathering affair in Dundas Street United Church Mission was quite largely attended especially by the youth who were connected with the daily vacation Bible School sessions there the previous year.

Pattern slides from headquarters regarding the range of activities throughout Canada of this movement were most interesting and artistic.

The local Y.M.O.A. officials kindly loaned their lantern for this occasion.

Mr. F. H. Henry who in the past has been principal of this school acted again as chairman. The partable of the Good Shepherd was recited in unison along with the Lord's prayer. Suitable hymns enlivened the proceedings with Mrs. W. Donaldson as pianist.

Two splendid readings were given by Miss Bernice Arbuckle to the delight of those to whom she ministered before as teacher of elocutionary work in the various school of 1933 when the daily vacation Bible School endeavor was recently here. Another volunteer assistant of the year, Miss Helen Deakle rendered a charming solo and also responded to an encore. Miss Helen Jones favored as accompanist.

A most feature of last Friday night's entertainment was that of several boys and girls taking part in reviving the scientific temperance lessons learned last July and August for the benefit of older folk too.

Quaint songs were sung by little Lillian Parker and because of her perfect attendance for twenty nice mornings last year she was presented by copies of the four popsets autographed by Rev. George Buckingham, Canadian Secretary.

Possibly the climax of the evening was the awarding of the twenty useful prizes to the winners of the athletic contests during the past season.

Expression of thanks for services contributed brought the pleasing function to a close.

Provided sufficient helpers can be secured and some needed monetary assistance secured to carry on the work properly will be factors in determining the resumption of vacation season's plans under the full board meeting conclusions of Dundas Street United Church missions.

BUSINESS IS BETTER THAN IN TWO YEARS

Stephens-Adamson Co. Absorbing Old Employees

Another indication of returning prosperity here is the activity around the plant of the Stephens-Adamson Mfg. Co. of Canada Limited on 15th street. Business conditions there have considerably improved the past few weeks and though no new help is being taken on members of the old staff are being put back on the job, and a gradual absorption of old employees is under way with increasing working hours.

Mr. G. A. Freeman, general manager of the plant, reports the business of the firm at present better than at any time in the past five years and the future appears bright. There are some 60 men employed now at the works, 50 of whom are on full time. Orders have been received of late with prospects of still more to come, that vouch for Mr. Freeman's optimistic view.

An order for cold storage and reclaiming equipment for one of the large docks at Toronto will require two months to fill. In all there is a feeling that the volume of pre-depression days is starting in at the Stevens-Adamson plant.

UNARMED PEACE

A sign of peace and amity which the world should regard is pointed out by President Roosevelt in a foreign land, Canada, marked from the United States only by customs-houses and not by guns and forts. Conditions between France and Germany are different, but fortifications which mark the eastern boundary of France bristle did not keep the foe back. On our boundary, there is no foe, on the north boundary of the United States, is no foe.

Cannot the nations see the lesson, President Roosevelt has been pointing out to them?

This could not have been in an ancient world. In the first place there would have been no security. But here we have the actual security, that intangible something which advocates of armaments say is provided only by the most guns. Yet the United States and Canada in their lack of suspicion of one another, give the lie to the charge that you cannot trust nations whose boundaries you only get what If neighbor nations will only trust Canada and the U. S. have back of this security they may some day abolish their forts, too, remove their soldiers and go to sleep without fear. The North American neighbors have lost fear and suspicion which are the causes of war and discord.

Of course things are different in the Old World. There is a past which bristles with battles and conflicts. Differences of races tend to create doubt and old diplomacy to make friends suspect one another. Europe and the East have had many examples of broken faith. But the United States and Canada have never given a single example for one hundred and twenty years.

The real reason why we can trust our neighbor do not require millions on their border is because they are unconsciously co-operating for mutual good. Neither can fear reason to think the other. Their aims are largely one, though their political associations differ. The reply to any attempt to arm the border would be a howl that was a way so much money and possibly sow the seeds of strife?"

These peaceful neighbors are a light shining in a murderous world, telling of the possibility of unarmed peace.

Six years have passed since Canada celebrated the diamond jubilee of Confederation and in four years the seventieth anniversary of the event will be marked.

Through good times and through times of stress the Dominion is making history. In the life of a nation, times of strain and turmoil count as well as the placid years which are marked only by the smooth current of events.

The last three or four years have tested the mettle of the people of this land as they have tested the mettle of the peoples of other countries. But as Canada had emerged to the successes to which some went she has not had to suffer what some have had to endure during the events of heartracting years which have passed. Canadian stability has stood well in the time of crisis and that is what was to be expected of this country.

The Dominion suffered one grave lapse and that was in expenditure. But then individuals and nations romped pell-mell into the maelstrom of debt and now they are trying to figure their way out of it.

While this strain has been felt, and no doubt has influenced the character of, a number of persons disastrously, the lack of disorders indicates the same stand of the people. This very sanity will pull the people through, for if people will bear and keep their heads when the tendency is to throw sanity to the winds, they will surely maintain their balance in the times when things begin to improve.

While the natural resources of the Dominion are great and unexplored treasure-house the surface of which has scarcely been indicated, this country like any other depends in the final analysis upon the character of her people. Should these have deteriorated in the trying years, the result would have been calamitous. But the people have the same steadfast resolve which led them through a war crisis some fifteen years ago.

A few years hence the testing time of these days will be analyzed and it will be seen that even in the bewilderment of this age there never was doubt of the outcome of great forces over the forces of economic disintegration.

These years accordingly have a part to play in the development of the people. Britain's folk have learned many lessons in their long and heroic history and Canada is likewise learning.

Age does not depend upon years, but upon temperament and health. Some men are born old and some never grow so. — Tyron Edwards.

Agitation is the marshalling of the conscience of a nation to mould its laws. — Sir R. Peel.

Poverty is no disgrace to a man, but it is confoundedly inconvenient. — Sydney Smith.

BY VALLEY AND HILL

By forest and plain, by valley and hill,
Ever changeful, the road I must travel still;
With never a day through the sunlit land,
With meadow lark singing on either hand,
But there must be seasons of gloping rain
Through gut forests whose branches obscure the dawn
With never an hour on a high hill's crest
And the tides of rapture a-flood in my breast,
But there must come times when the thick mists rise,
And the valleys lie dim before me eyes.
By forest and plain, by valley and hill,
Even so through the world I must journey still,
With never a lift to life's happy heights
But is reached through some valley of lost delights.
Thus the plan has been ordered and thus must remain
By valley and hill, by forest and plain.
— Aline Michaelis.

"A LARGE CITY, THESE DAYS, must be a hot, cruel place in which to live," remarks the Napanee Beaver in an editorial praising life in a small town as preferable to that in a city, during the present heat.

Slums and overheated apartment houses, monoxide fumes from gasolene, traffic jams, red hot pavements and building, all spread a kind-ness of midsummer in the city are contrasted by the Beaver man with lovely little Napanee (not so little, either, is the town a way the happy hours in the good old summer time. Says he, "What finer or more happy sight could greet the eye of the visitor to Napanee than the quiet loveliness of its Friday evenings. The streets for block around the park are lined with cars, the children are gratulated upon the lovely wee park which attracts so many picnic parties—plenty of shade, a miniature river and a bustling, bustling waterfall, which makes a great show of going somewhere, but apparently just twists around a corner or two and comes back. Then the spring with its ever-living and everlasting water cold as the eternal rock from which it springs, adds the finishing touch to an outing spot of rare beauty and attractiveness.

DURING THE RECENT HOT SPELL Victoria Park was thronged with citizens of both sexes seeking cooling breezes—in the Corby pool hundreds of children splashed and enjoyed themselves to the limit giving tired mothers a chance to relax and enjoy a little peace and rest. Victoria Park with its Corby pool and pavilion is more or less a memorial to Hon. Senator Harry Corby whose generosity to his beloved city continues in various beneficiation, particularly in remembering the poor during the winter season. Victoria Park is the mecca of folks who have no motor cars and would seem to deserve more attention from the civic government than it has been getting. Even the benches in Victoria Park are becoming fewer each year and the pavilion without paint is a shabby memorial of better days gone by. In fact, the pavilion is also disappearing. The railing of the bandstand has vanished, and a board here and there missing marks the passing of time, also the building in the near future, unless this civic investment is better protected.

World Conference Enters Last Scene Of Brief And Eventful History

May Adjourn Main Body When Whole Meets on Thursday

REJECT PLANS

Believe Conference as Effective Body "Blown" by "Bombshell"

By George Hambleton
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 4 (Cable)—The World Conference today enters the last scene in its brief and eventful history.

The present plan is to call the conference in plenary session on Thursday and then adjourn. The Conference Bureau, the directing organization of the conference would be kept intact. Committees considered still likely to do useful work would be retained. But the conference itself would go out.

This is the idea in mind. But it lies with the conference bureau itself to make the definite recommendations and the bureau does not meet until 4 p.m. (10 a.m. E.D.T.)

The little steering committee met today and a deadlock resulted when Britain and the United States opposed the motion for adjournment put forward by Dr. Hendrik Colijn, Premier of Holland, and supported by France and Belgium. The question probably will come before the conference bureau tonight.

Belief that adjournment was set today Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, chairman of the world gathering, was in consultation with the heads of various commissions and the delegations from the dominions. The general impression is that it is understood, was that, in view of the situation the better course would be for the conference to adjourn, leaving the committees in being.

Call Bureau Thursday

If the bureau adopts this view this general conference will be recalled, probably for Thursday. It is considered the bureau may take a different view or that this general conference itself may make changes in the adjournment procedure. But the delegates generally regard adjournment as almost inevitable.

But if the committees and the bureau are to remain in being, the conference as an effective body has blown up in the conference's face, shell. For days it has been moving unceasingly along divided over the issue of stabilizing currencies, demanded by the European gold bloc, refused by the United States. Varying statements from the American delegation which in the observers' opinion seemed not only divided within itself but also out of touch with the close policies of the President, have repeatedly left other delegations puzzled and confused.

No one seemed to know what the American policy was except President Roosevelt. Then came Professor Raymond Moley, Assistant Secretary of State and head of the President's brain trust, hailed as the saviour of the conference. With the other delegations he coincided Friday's provisional peace terms, and these were embodied in a joint declaration, which would have called for a measure of stabilization and looked for a return to gold as an international monetary measure.

Moley assented to this declaration provisionally on its acceptance by President Roosevelt. President Roosevelt rejected it, sharply, and apparently the American delegation in London was as surprised as the others.

Heir To Throne Demands Confidence Of Empire In Success Of Parley

U. S. And Britain to Line up in Fight Against Adjournment

VOICES FAITH

Thomas Terms Rejection of Monetary Plan "Rebuff"

London, July 4—The Prince of Wales Monday night told London's leading business men that the success of the whole world "we must all hope" depends upon the success of the World Economic and Monetary Conference.

Speaking at the same dinner, Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of Dominion Affairs, declared "we are not going well. We have received a rebuff, perhaps the greatest rebuff ever received by responsible government. But I am still an optimist."

The Prince referred to the Imperial Economic Conference in Ottawa a year ago, when that gathering of Britishers "showed the world the great British Empire was not by the very nature of its composition, to act in unison, but without any trace of that obstacle of progress, that evil of narrow-minded nationalism."

"We all know," he said, "that the work of the economic conference would be beset with very great difficulties, but we must be confident for the sake of the world.

"Not the least impressive feature (of the World Conference)," he declared, "is participation in it representation of various parts of the great British Commonwealth of Nations." These nations of the Commonwealth he said, came with the best wishes to the "great task of helping put the world on the road to economic and financial recovery."

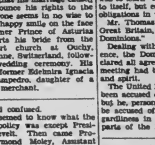
Congratulates Bennett

Amid laughter the Prince added that Dominion Secretary J. H. Thomas, who had spoken before him had taken away the best joke of his own speech when he wished Prime Minister Bennett many happy returns of his 63rd. birthday which coincided with London's celebration of Dominion Day.

Mr. Bennett, thanking the Prince and Mr. Thomas for their birthday wishes, said Canada regarded the Prince as a Canadian residing at present abroad.

Canada, he continued, represented an adventure in nation building against geographical and economic forces, and was in the best sense a product of industry and perseverance.

Of the Ottawa agreements the Prime Minister said although they had been negotiated in less than a year, the extent to which they had been effective was borne out by figures.



One of the greatest responsibilities of the nations, he concluded, was to learn "no nation can live unto itself" and that "with great power obligations in world-wide terms."

Mr. Bennett also spoke for Great Britain, "the youngest of the Dominions."

Dining with the Ottawa Conference, the Dominions' Secretary declared that the success already of the meeting had been fulfilled in letter and spirit.

The United Kingdom, he said, had been accused of being too generous. He, personally, would rather not be accused of generosity than niggardliness in dealing with other parts of the Empire.

5 LBS. OFF IN SIX WEEKS

Kruschen Stopped Her Increasing Weight

AND RID HER OF RHEUMATISM TOO

Here is a woman who was rapidly becoming too stout, and who was troubled with rheumatism too. Her doctor had told her to cut out bread and potatoes. She found a better way. Here is what she says:

"I had been in the habit of doing, as I had recently put on flesh to an alarming degree, going up from 12 lbs. to 168 lbs. To my delight I found I had lost about 5 lbs. in 6 weeks, so I determined to go on taking Kruschen. At the end of the second bottle I was weighed again, and that I am now only 146 lbs., at which I am so pleased that I should take Kruschen for reducing alone, but I have lately felt my rheumatism much less, which had been an troublesome in my knees. I must say I think Kruschen a splendid weight reducer."—(Miss) E. L. F.

Overweight and rheumatic poisoning almost invariably arise from the same cause—a sluggish liver and bowel, impelled waste, like a furnace choked with clinkers by wood, allows accumulate, this waste matter is turned into layer after layer of fat, and at the same time the liver lays in a stock of rheumatic poison. The six salts in Kruschen assist the internal organs to throw off each day the wastage and poisons that encumber the system. Then, little by little, that ugly fat goes—slowly, yes—but surely. The pains of rheumatism cease. You feel wonderfully healthy, youthful and energetic—more so than ever before in your life!

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 4s. and 7s. 6d., per bottle.

Nationals Swamp Black Hawks of Toronto with Base Hits and Excellent Work on Mound

Win Opener 14-1 And Complete Raid With 12-0 Victory

FINE HURLING

Ernie Smith and "Vinny" Utronki Always Had Big Edge

In the second game of Saturday's double header between the Belleville Nationals and the Toronto Black Hawks Ernie Smith, elongated and youthful hurler of the Hallcraft Just inlaned entering baseball's hall of fame when "Ira" Rebick of the Hawks, with one out in the last inning, nicked Smith for a double, the only hit registered against the local hurler in an abbreviated seven innings game which the Nationals won by the score of 12 to 0, after having won the opener by the score of 14 to 1 with "Vinny" Utronki assuming the hero role on the hilltop for the Nats by letting the visitors down with four hits.

But twenty-two batters faced Smith when Joe Just fell short of pitcher's life's ambition. Two walks were meted out but on subsequent double plays those sumpers were turned into outs at second.

Taking advantage of the loose playing of the Black Hawks the locals capitalized to the fullest measure the opportunities that were afforded them to win a twin bill and pull up in the league race. Both games count as wins and losses in the club's respective loops as arranged in the interlocking schedule between the C.O.B.L. and the West Toronto loop. The Oshawa Dukes of the West Toronto loop were to play here on Wednesday next to participate in another interlocking fixture but, all probability either "Doxy" Ogden, their speed ball artist, or Wally Knox, who recently starred in a perfect effort by hurling a no hit no run game in the Dukes' favor loop will get the Duke pitching assignment.

Utronki Was Great.

The opening game saw "Vinny" Utronki return to the hilltop to literally lash the Hawk batters to the mast, shutting them down with four hits, only one being of the extra base nature. The Hawks scored in the opening frame but failed to cross the plate again. Sonny Green batted the ghosts of Utronki in big league fashion. The game was the manager "Peeney" Mills who gathered in two of the most sensational flies that ever was caught in the local ball yard. The hitting of the locals managed crew was outstanding.

The second game saw the locals all to their best and they literally rose to heights to play errorless ball and add to the achievements of Smith in his attempt to hurl a perfect game. Their fielding and batting were perfect. The locals opened the pastime by scoring nine runs in the initial frame and practically coasted to victory. Two lightning fast double plays featured the accompaniment as host scores tell the detailed story.

VICS BLANK BRIGHTON 4-0

Intermediate Team in Second Place in Bay of Quinte Loop

Behind the pitching of Earl Bawden, hurling his first game of the season, the Bellville Victorias blanked the Brighton intermediates at the local Fair Grounds on Monday by the score of 4 to 0 thus taking possession of second place in the Bayof Quinte League just one game behind the league leading Picton club.

Bawden, the local portsider, was in rare form allowing but four singles during the pastime, finapsy fielding on the part of the Victorias' infield played an important part in the victory when they completed four fast double plays.

Shannon started on the hilltop for the visitors but gave way to Ed. Campbell in the seventh. Campbell proved a better hurler than did his predecessor and blanked the locals for the remaining three frames.

After hitting a triple in the third frame Loft scored the local's first run on Bawden's double. Blaker made it 2 to 0 when he scored after singling, advancing on an infield out and scampering home on Scott's single. In the fifth the Vics added another counter on two hits, an error and a stolen base. On two successive hits and a outfield fly Scott scored the local's fourth tally to end the scoring in the eighth.

Rundle, at second for the visitors, supplied the fielding sensations of the day for the visitors while the snappy double plays by the local infield stood out.

PLEASE RETURN REVOLVER

Chicago, July 4 (AP)—Possibly the thief who visited the North Dakota exhibit at a Century of Progress wished to have something to make a loud noise on the Fourth of July, American Independence Day celebration. He took a revolver Theodore Roosevelt used as a young rancher at Medora, N.D.

So treasured is the weapon, that no questions will be asked, if and when it is returned.

Never before has there been so much disagreement, antagonism and fear between nations—or involving so many nations—Admiral Henry A. Wiley.

BERTHA PATCH EASY WINNER OF 2.09 CLASS

Takes Fair Band of Fast Ones With Fastest Mile 2.10 1-2

LARGE CROWD

Margaret Brewer And Peter K Winners of Slow Classes

A large crowd and spirited racing tended to make the horse meet at Napane on Monday one of the best ever held by the Napanee Driving Club of which Lester Boyes is the energetic secretary and manager. Although each of the three classes were decided in straight heats yet the racing was fornful and the winners did not have an easy time. The track was in excellent condition and the time fast.

Bertha Patch, the good black mare from Brampton, made every post a winning as in the 2.09 pace with Walter Stone and Lu Ganot supplying the opposition. She had far the better foot for the rest of the field and was capably driven by Harry Hastings, the son of the owner. Lu Ganot won second money with Walter Stone owned by Louie Bennett of Port Hope.

Margaret Brewer also owned by Louie Bennett had to go four heats to win the 2.17 Class. In the first heat the mare was crowded back after the "word" was given and did not try but getting racing room in the second took one over far back in difficulty and won as she pleased. Dr. Benson of Napanee supplied the winner in the 2.25 class when Peter K, capably handled by Mac Craig won three straight heats, the chief opposition coming from Poxey Pete. Craig had to come from far back in the last heat to head his field.

PLEASE RETURN REVOLVER

Chicago, July 4 (AP)—Possibly the thief who visited the North Dakota exhibit at a Century of Progress wished to have something to make a loud noise on the Fourth of July, American Independence Day celebration. He took a revolver Theodore Roosevelt used as a young rancher at Medora, N.D.

So treasured is the weapon, that no questions will be asked, if and when it is returned.

Three Records out of Four Broken in Annual Across Bay Swim Held Monday

Eddie Donnan, Youngest Swimmer to Finish Course

CONDITIONS GOOD

Kingston Swimmers Take Down Majority of Prizes

With the exception of the junior class, all previous records were lowered and new standards set in the various classes of Y.M.C.A. across-the-bay swim held on Monday.

In the senior class Gar Kelly of Kingston, who won the junior race last year, romped home winner in the senior event this year to lower the mark by 8 minutes and 3 seconds. Kelly swam from the government dock to Rossmore and returned in the fast time of 44 minutes and 27 seconds, defeating the previous record set up by Charles Shroder of Belleville of 52 minutes and 30 seconds, established in 1931. Mrs. Barry of Trenton who won the ladies' swim lowered Lorna Sidley's 1930 mark of 35 minutes and 30 seconds to a new record of 32 minutes final. Tommy Harris of Kingston set a new mark in the juvenile class when he swam the course in 22 minutes, some 3 minutes faster than Bob Liddle in 1931. Doug. Green of Kingston, although he won the junior class, failed to set a new mark. His time was 21 minutes, 30 seconds slower than Kelly's of last year.

Weather Conditions Perfect.

Eddie Donnan, son of R. C. Donnan of K.C.I., was the only local swimmer to get in the awards, when the 21 finished. In the junior course he was awarded the trophy for the youngest swimmer to complete the course. The weather conditions were perfect for the event while on the trip from Rossmore to Belleville the swimmers were called upon to battle a strong head wind and rough and choppy sea. The largest entry in the history of the race competed. The only event in which the entry was standard was the senior class which had but six entries, the field three facing the starter's gun. The seniors were called upon to swim around the buoy and return while the other three classes swam from Rossmore to Belleville. Mayor Thos. started the majority of the swimmers from the Prince Edward side of the bay while Ed. Bernstein, president-elect of the local Rotary Club, started the senior class. Jack E. Short of the Y.M.C.A. acted as the clerk of the course. Bill Hallett of Picton conducted the races throughout and superintended the finish. The events were enjoyed by the largest crowd of spectators in history. Following the completion of the events the various winners were photographed by Ernie Hamilton, official by Palmer's Studios of Belleville.

The results:

Ladies (three-quarters of a mile)—1, Mrs. R. Barry, Trenton and Belleville, 32 minutes; 2, Mrs. Bernard, Fern Morris, Belleville, time 33 minutes, 30 seconds; 3, James Mahaffy, Belleville, time 34 minutes; Edna Bush and Jean Staley of Kingston, only finished.

Junior (three-quarters of a mile)—1, Douglas Bumners, Belleville, time 21 minutes; 2, Bob Bumners, Albert Bumners and Jack Bumners; 3, Clive Waring, Albert College, time 34 minutes; thirteen started in this class.

Juvenile (three-quarters of a mile)—1, Thomas Harris, Kingston, time 22 minutes; 2, Jack Bone, Belleville, time 24 minutes; 3, Pat Blaker, Belleville, time 28 minutes; six started in this class.

Senior (one and one-quarter miles)—1, Gar Kelly, Belleville, time 44 minutes, 27 seconds; 2, Bob Liddle, Kingston; 3, A. Cameron, Frankford.

Youngest swimmer to finish the course—Eddie Donnan, Belleville.

LOCAL RIDERS WIN THE RELAY

Monster Motorcycle Meet Staged at Gananoque Saturday

With riders present from all parts of Ontario a motorcycle meet was held in Gananoque on Saturday last with the Quinte Motorcycle Club of Belleville taking their share in the honors of the day.

Featuring the relay, the local club finished second to the Montreal M. C. C. in the tug-of-war which incidentally caused plenty of fun to the large crowd that gathered at the Gananoque Fair Grounds to witness the exhibition.

Fully 150 riders were on hand from London, Hamilton, Toronto, Peterboro, Belleville, Kingston and points east, as far as Montreal. Various speed and efficiency tests were the order of the day with the local club being well to the fore. Blake Wesse finished first in the 350-class and second in the 500-metre class.

Following the meet at the Fair Grounds a monster street dance and parade was held, headed by the Gananoque Citizens' Band. The local theatre was thrown open and a program supplied by the various contestants. The meet was one of the most successful yet held in Eastern Ontario.

AL BAFFERT IS NO CINCH

With McCoy Should be Fastest Bout of The Card

Stanley Pinto's chances of beating Sandor Szabo, heavyweight wrestling champion of Hungary in the main bout of the Queensbury Club's show at the arena tomorrow night appear to rest largely on his ability to provide an adequate defence against the aspics hold which Szabo is known to score reverse back aims. This hold, a Greco-Roman one, has been perfected by Szabo to a greater degree than by any other wrestled and is the most effective weapon. Pinto, a wily and experienced grappler, believes that he can block the hold and even goes further and boasts that if Szabo uses it he will "Finish" with turn it into a counter hold which may pin Szabo's shoulders to the mat.

There appears little to choose between the pair and it should be a sensational battle, just about the best ever seen here. Pinto is one of the most belligerent athletes in wrestling but will have to be at his best to cope with the speed and cleverness of the Hungarian's attacks.

An indication of the all-star nature of the card is provided by the fact that Al Getzewitch, the unmasked marvel as he is now known, will be relegated to the semi-final position after having had five main bouts here. Moreover, he will need all his resources to beat Bruno Gorsaini of Italy, whose record includes victories over Clive Oarfield and Dr. Ralph Wilson and a draw with George Zabarino.

Al Mac Coy, former all "Flying Frenchman" will make his local debut in the preliminary with Bibber McCoy, former all-round athletic star from Holy Cross University. This bout brings together two wrestlers noted for their speed and should provide a pace which the wrestlers in the other matches will have difficulty in following. Baffert, it may be mentioned, scored fourteen consecutive main bout victories in Toronto when he first appeared in the Queen City so it will be seen that McCoy has been provided with opposition of an unusually strong nature.

LADY BOWLERS' HAND IS SEEN

Gay Decorations Worn by Verandah Club House

The Lady Associates of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club have made the Club House of that organization a most attractive place this present season and their plans as yet semi-finished completion. A spacious cloged-in verandah has been added to old Symonds' homestead on the Fair Grounds property on the north and west sides overlooking the greens and this has been made bright with chintz curtains and gay coverings for the easy wicker chairs and sofas. The inside rooms have received new papering and painting and new floors have been laid throughout the building. The ladies' reception room is being made most attractive and as far larger than the old affair at the old greens on William St.

The new layout will not interfere with the office used by the secretary and fair directors of the Belleville Agricultural Society and adds another pleasing unit to the expanding recreational activities at the Belleville Agricultural Park.

THREE HONEST PERSONS

New York, July 4 (AP)—Diogenes could get an earful from Police Lieutenant Cesar Johnson. Within a few moments he discovered three honest persons.

A passenger found a $10 bill in a taxi and turned it over to the driver, who gave it to Johnson, saying: "Maybe some poor man lost it."

A moment later another citizen brought in a purse containing $15. He had found it.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Brewers And Distillers of B. C. Most Active Issue on Toronto Board—Other Stocks in Group Off a Point— Major Gold Stocks Fail to Break Higher Ground—Cheaper Issues in Fair Demand—Base Metals Active And Strong—Wheat After Being Down Closed 1-4 to 5-8 Higher.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO, July 4.—(CP)—Closing firmly, the Toronto Stock Exchange today marked up about 20 new highs in a fairly active session. The final transactions were as of near the best levels of the day, with gains ranging to about 2 points in the general list.

Heavy industrial issues such as Dominion Bridge, Hamilton Bridge, Canada Steel Car and others made the best showing, each touching new highs. Steel Car was up 3 1-4 to 18 3-4 Dominion Bridge boosted 33 up 2 3-4 and Hamilton was at 10 3-4, all three closing near their peaks. Steel of Canada, Standard Steel and the Canadian Car and Foundry issues were also at new highs.

Distillery issues sold down, but improved from their day's low.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, July 4 (CP)—Moderate strength in the base metals which moved upward fractionally today featured an otherwise irregular session on the Toronto Standard Mining exchange. Gold issues turned weaker generally and silvers were dull.

A few specialties were picked out for advancement, with Perrit Gordon which enjoyed a fair turnover, advanced about 4. Ventures was four better and small gains were shown in Rilmco, Big Missouri, Jackson Manitoba, Pend Oreille and Sam Lake Consols among the cheaper grades.

International Nickel, from all thru the day, closed about 40 cents higher. Hudson Bay and Falconbridge were up about 30. Noranda, Base Metals Corporation and Coast Copper were firm to higher.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Winnipeg, July 4 (CP)—Shaking off effects of generous rainfall and lack of export business, wheat futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today corrugated Monday's high closing prices and wound up with gains of 1-4 to 5-8 cents. The July option stood at 79 3-8, October was quoted at 82 3-8 to 1-2, while December moved to 83 7-8 to 84 and May registered 86 1-8 to 1-4.

Heavy buying poured into the market from the south to stem the downturn which developed. Traders turned eyes to the Winnipeg pit with Chicago closed for the Independence Day holiday.

Weather maps of the grain-growing areas of Canada and the United States corroborated traders with a divergent picture. While bullish enthusiasm was stimulated by continued drought, conditions across the International border, rain fell there but was not needed in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, to counteract the effect.

Prices moved downward at a steady pace near the opening, till losses up 2 cents were pared from Monday's high close. But the trend was soon reversed and a good upswing carried futures as much as a cent higher on the day. Reserved offerings caused another setback but the closing tone was firm.

Disappointing export business and failure of Liverpool to reflect Monday's sensational bulge were other factors which checked the bulls' exuberance.

Coarse grains fluctuated widely while cash prices were almost unchanged.

RUDDER TURN CAUSES CRASH

"Hoot" Gibson, Film Star Suffers Skull Fracture in Fall

Los Angeles, July 4—(AP)—Injured in a spectacular racing plane crash, Hoot Gibson, pioneer film actor, today suffered from severe cuts and a possible skull fracture but physicians held hope for his recovery.

Gibson was injured yesterday as he was piloting a plane in a special match race at the national air races against Ken Maynard, another actor.

They were flying a 15-mile race for a trophy donated by Will Rogers, film humorist, when Gibson's ship crashed before 25,000 spectators after rounding the second pylon.

Other pilots said they believed Gibson had given his plane too much rudder on a turn while leading Maynard. The plane fell 300 feet.

CHAPTER 1

There was a celebration that night in the little home on Blackstone avenue. Jerry burst into the room with a shout that was more like a cold self than Sarah had seen her in months.

"Sarah, darling, can you believe it? I'm to start at $40 a week. I've never in my life made so much. And he's the grandest thing, mother. I mean the man who hired me. He's been everywhere. I do wish you could meet him."

Jerry impulsively kissed her mother on both cheeks, and tossed Sarah then Jackie into the air.

"Where is he from, Jerry, to the sea?" Jackie wanted to know.

"He's been more places than you've got on your geography book," Jerry said.

"Oh, Jerry, and will he take you along when he goes places?" Kitten asked. "When I grow up I do hope I'll be a private secretary."

"He'd better not take Jerry," Jackie said darkly. "I'd like to see him take my Jerry."

Dinner was an event that evening. Jerry was so extravagant as to buy a small portehouse steak with the money advanced on her salary.

"My dear, you are hired."

They had two vegetables and ice cream for dessert. All through the dinner they talked delightful nonsense. Jerry told them laughingly of how she had tripped on the tiger rug. Kitten recited jingles and Jerry played cops and robbers with them until bedtime.

But after the children were tucked away for the night Sarah and Jerry had a long talk. Jerry tried to convince her mother that of all the men she had ever met Joe Middleton was the most honorable and of all the jobs she had held this was the least conducive to an unfortunate misunderstanding. In days to come that not once must Sarah worry about the future nor her little girl, Jerry.

"I just know everything will be wonderful from now on," Jerry insisted enthusiastically.

Then the conversation turned to Jackie. Maybe they would be able to send him away now to a clinic site that would be better for his lungs, Colorado or New Mexico might bring him back to health. They talked about Kitten and how she was progressing with her reading in the first grade, and about the new dresses Jerry could buy for her.

She Lay There Listening to the Wind Whisper in the Cottonwoods

She lay there on her bed hearing the wind whisper in the branches of the cottonwoods beyond the window, the hiss of occasional tires on the pavement and far away the bells of the University of Chicago ringing their sweet, discordant strains.

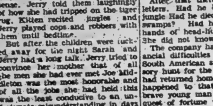
Somehow her thoughts, crossing 5,000 miles of land and water, went to Peter Baird, father of the two children asleep in the other room.

Jerry was scarcely more than a child herself the last time she had seen him. She had been at the adoring age of 17 and she had looked upon nihim with all the admiring and reverence that an adolescent girl can show for her sister's big and handsome husband.

She remembered how blond and tall he was. How good-natured and yet keen minded and level headed, too.

He had been an engineer sent to South America to work a new black diamond mine being exploited by a company formed in New York. He had sent two buoyant, enthusiastic and youthful letters to Mary. After his wife, telling how well the work was progressing, how they had hit a rich vein of the blue soil in which diamonds are found, and later how he was being sent farther into the interior toward the source of the Amazon to locate a new field.

After that there were no other letters. Had he been lost in the jungle. Had he died in the Brazilian swamps? Had he fallen into the hands of head-hunting Indians? She did not know.



The company had fallen into financial difficulties and the entire South American staff, after a cursory hunt for the lost Peter Baird, had returned home. But what had happened to that great-hearted, brave young man who, set out in quest of fortune with such hope might never be learned.

It was this blow and the sickness following the birth of Jessie which had finally killed Mary Ann.

Jerry didn't know why she had thought of Peter again for the first time in months and now. It was that his adventurous nature reminded her somehow of her new employer.

The very thought of her new job came to her happily as when a child awakes to a day on which a picnic is planned. She could not believe that there was anything but happiness ahead. But thinking of

When at last the party came to the place beside the river where they had buried the gold, the Waziri, singing and laughing, commenced to dig for the treasure. But their singing ceased and their laughter was replaced by expressions of puzzled concern. Then a slow anger overspread his countenance. "You must have buried the treasure deep, Uulai!" he said.

The Waziri chief scratched his head. "No, not as far as that, Bwana," he replied. "We should have found it long ago." "Are you SURE this is the exact spot?" questioned the ape-man. "This is the place, Bwana. Between the two trees we buried it." "The Spaniard, again!" commented Tarzan. "He was more than clever." Though they dug with zeal carefully all trace of the golden ingots had been obliterated.

"It is gone," said the ape-man, "but NOT from Africa." He sent runners to the friendly tribes surrounding his domain, asking them to be on the watch for every safari and to let none pass that carried gold. That night before the campfire Tarman lay beside Jad-bal-ja, examining the leopard skin the goldsmith had received in his pursuit of the Bonito. What was the meaning of that map traced in blood?

Tarman turned to his wife. "You were right, Jane," he said, "the treasure vaults of Opar are not for me." "Never mind the gold and the gems," replied Lady Greystoke. "We have each other and Korak. That's all that counts." "And a blood-stained leopard skin," laughed the ape-man ruefully, "with a map that I can make nothing of." Jad-bal-ja smiled his hide and licked his chops, and only he knew why!

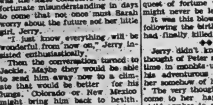
now. Sarah, too, must have a new dress and Jackie new suits.

And Jerry, remembering herself last as always, told Sarah about a fall cloth she had seen in one of the windows in rough ostrich cloth with a little hat to match. And about a rose, cream and maroon afternoon dress in sheer crepe.

"Of course, you'll have to have a new wardrobe for the office, Jerry. But don't spend too much money, dear," Sarah advised.

"I don't spend so very much on myself, do I mother?" Jerry asked.

"Sometimes it seems to me you're selfish that way." Sarah sighed. "You mustn't forget you have me and the children to look after, too."



"I won't," said Jerry, swallowing the resentment that so often surged up within her.

They talked of hope again. Jerry ran downstairs to tell the landlady how he had trusted them all these months that they would help to pay again on Jerry's first payment. Then she listened to the tale Sarah's neighbor had to tell.

It seemed almost impossible only that morning they were wondering where the next meal was coming from and discussed how humiliating it would be to appeal to the charities for help.

Jerry lay awake a long while looking out of the window where the glare of Chicago reddened the sky.

She could hear the regular breathing of the two children in the next room, broken only by Jackie's rasping cough as he stirred uneasily in his sleep. She promised herself he would have the chance to which all little boys are entitled—to grow up with a strong, healthy body and a trained mind.

Joe Middleton Again, She Wondered

Joe Middleton again, she wondered. She was at his office every day and she talked into the office of the radio company.

The scurfaced woman who had once been very beautiful, Jerry decided, came forward to explain her work.

"I'm Harriet Wilson," the woman said, "and I hope we'll be friends."

"I hope we will," Jerry said, with a great deal more warmth than she felt and much more than she had seemed in the others voice.

"Of course there will be dictation from Mr. Middleton, and the usual amount of typing and letter writing. You will have to keep his calendar of daily appointments and answer the phone," Harriet said.

"Yes, go on," Jerry insisted, realizing that Harriet Wilson was keeping something back.

"Well, I might as well tell you," said Miss Wilson, her voice sweet and cold, "I might as well warn you, as every attractive girl who enters that office must be warned——"

"Warned against what?" Jerry asked, so afraid what she felt to be blasphemy.

"He isn't like that at all. And I don't know what you are saying. Just because you happen to be a woman he doesn't take his yacht and sending his secretary to meet them."

"You'll have to take dictation on his yacht," Miss Wilson said curtly, "and you'll have to take a lot more than that from Joe Middleton before you're through with him."

Jerry wasn't convinced, however, and in her youthful optimism she could see in Harriet Wilson something that unhappy woman had on inkling she revealed. Jerry saw in Harriet, a disappointed sweetheart of Joe Middleton! It must have been years ago when she was lovely, Jerry reasoned.

Yes, that would explain her bitterness now. She was jealous of Jerry because of the duties she would have to perform for Middleton every day.

Jerry made a mental note to watch this Harriet person, who was quite evidently at the head of the force of office girls and fully capable of making trouble.

But as the day wore on and Joe Middleton did not arrive at the office Jerry began to wonder. Perhaps, after all, she was playing with fire.

Perhaps Harriet Wilson was giving her that advice in good faith.

Nothing takes one's mind off coming danger, however, like the day's work. Jerry forgot to be worried as she went away at the end of a great deal more warmth than she felt and much more than she had seemed in the others voice.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

For once in a blue moon the weathermen smiled and local sport activities and gave them perfect weather conditions over the week-end. To start with the Nationals, hotted pool pitching vast set and then two ball games and a game from the Toronto Black Hawks, who undoubtedly were minus a couple of their best players, they said.

The features of the double win over the pitching efforts of Ernie Smith, who hurled a real fine game and Vinny Donald, let the Queen City aggregation down with seven hits. They also contributed the sensational fielding supplied by Manager Mills, who covered much of the right field on Saturday. "Sonny" Green, who is doing the receiving for the Nids these days, also got in the fans a real exhibition. The locals hit and fielded like a ball club and that's the answer.

As one of the locals pointed after the second game: "It's too bad we don't have more of these ball-hitting games and we'd be well up in the league race". Well the Nats have a chance to prove their worth on Wednesday afternoon, when Whitey Fair brings the Oshawa Tribune to town to locate the locals' inter-locking game. It's nearly fifty years since baseball in this town has appeared in Belleville and backed with a club that is leading the West Toronto loop the Dukes should be the opponent, but dreading the task. In all probability Wally Kane, who hurled a no hit no run game in the West Toronto league last year will assume the second duties with "Dewy" Ogden, the regular ball pitcher on second choice.

If the Mills managed crew have their baldness to say as they did against the Hawks on Saturday, we just don't want the locals to meet the Dukes and the Nads. Reg Fair, who played centre field for them all these many years back will call the balls and strikes.

Apparently records meant nothing to the swimmers entered in the annual Y.M.C.A. swim-a-thon here on Of the four classes three records were smashed. The junior record was the only one left standing all alone. The end part of it all was that not a single local swimmer came down in front. Eddie Dennison son of E. C. Dennison, K.C., local Crown Attorney, saved the day for Belle'ville, when he finished and was awarded the trophy for the young-est swimmer completing the course. Mrs. Barry, who was the ladies class here, is a regular member of the local "Y".

Gar Kelly of Kingston, who won the Bonnie class here, is expected back to cop the senior title this season with Doug Green of Belleville a close leg off the junior trophy. Tommy Brown, romped home the winner in the juvenile class. The meet was one the best and most keenly contested in years.

Apparently something went amiss down in Toronto last Saturday when the Prince Commodore stopped into the Gibbard ground and trimmed them out 10 to 4. The Prince Edward County ballsters had their bats loaded with hits and blasted Tommy Pember from the hill-top only to go on and trust Freddie Bentley, who relieved Pember, in the same manner. Sleepy Fair on the part of the Napanee outfielders had much to do with the defeat of the completion of the Leaner loop. Again Big Ken Chester, who, when he wants to can be effective, stepped in to fill "Sleepy" Reilly's shoes, when the Wellington kid faltered. Church, apparently, has something on the ball this season. The win places the Picionites well in the lead of the Bay of Quinte loop.

Then Bob Redner's B.A.A.A. kids blew up and had a tough game in the Hastings County Junior league. The local kids were leading by the score of 3 to 2 at Wellington Friday day but the hometown bagged three counters in the ninth to eke out a 5 to 3 victory.

Last Friday night Sandor Szabo nearly pulled a "Joe Louis" when he wrestled Jim Browning up at Hamilton. For 25 minutes Szabo held all over the world's champion like the proverbial bump. Then Jimmy pulled cuckoo for a moment and before he knew what it was all about he had the real "I know" business. Browning's still champ. We scarcely bring out this little feature to cheer the fans, that Wednesday night's main bout brings together two high class wrestlers in Fiddi and Szabo.

Of course we are sorry that Belleville lost in the west of Al Getzewich, the ex-masked marvel, Getzewich "masked" Brian Gonsalves in the semi-wrecking. When Al takes to the local ring Wednesday he will get real his pesky c'l stuck to past boots the Marvel has been handicapped with that old sore on his head but, now that he's working "out in the open" we expect to see the real "hare lose". Incidentally Joe Corcoran tells us that the only way Jim Browning could better the Marvel was to turn his mask around when met in Quinte recently. Either Tommy McClure or Jack Forbes will be welcoming referees.

When B. A. Fanning's Victorias blanked the Brighton intermediates 9 to 0 yesterday they topped into second place in the Bay of Quinte loop just one game behind the leading Picton club. Incidentally the hurling of Earl Davidson coupled with the spectacular fielding of the Vics stood out.

Layn bowlers from all over this district enjoyed a day's recreation and competition at the local greens under ideal weather conditions yesterday as did the pest ashes of Victoria Park.

The ex-masked marvel who will wrestle Brian Gonsalves with out the mask at the local Arena on Wednesday.

BOWLERS REMEMBER LATE THOS. J. HURLEY

Basket of Flowers Placed on Table on Verandah

A kindly, thoughtful gracious gesture was made by members of the Belleville Layn Bowling Club Monday, at their Club House at the Fair Grounds. A beautiful basket of charming seasonal flowers adorned the centre table of the verandah bearing the following inscription on the attached card.

"In memory of our esteemed Late President, Mr. T. J. Hurley."

The late Mr. Hurley was an ardent bowler and had worked unceasingly to promote the lawn bowling interests in Belleville and district; he was a most expert bowler and Monday when the new greens of the club were used for the first time for the official fixture, the members took this way of marking the first absence in many years from such an event of their late respected and beloved president, a man who was an ideal and genuine a sportsman as ever lived in Belleville.

BISONS CLOUT SELVES OUT OF BATTING SLUMP

Defeat Toronto 18-6 in Night Game With Heavy Hitting

(By Herbert W. Barker)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Buffalo Bisons appeared to have clouted themselves out of another slump and back into the fight for the top position in the International League's second Division.

In the only league game played yesterday the slugging Bisons toppled the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs, 18-6 in a night game, registered undisputed possession of sixth place Montreal Royals. Toronto's defeat left the Leafs only a half game ahead of the Baltimore Orioles.

The Leafs belied Hank Brewer and Joe Bartulis scarcity for a 5-3 lead after three innings but Buffalo uncorked a six-run splurge in the ninth, that definitely settled the issue.

SOME BIRD BATH

Mystic, Conn., July 4 (AP) — Swanky and exclusive is the bird bath that C. A. Watson is building. It will have bathhouses — each equipped with a perch—a shower and a "policeman." The parrot chosen to keep the undesirables away, Watson says, can already identify starlings and robins. These birds and the English sparrow will be barred.

JULY 4 MR. AND MRS.- THE FAMILY WATER SUPPLY

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

At sight of the true Tarzan, Esteban, his heart cold with terror, fled blindly through the jungle. His one thought was to put as much distance as possible between himself and the ape-man. Through dense thickets of thorn he forced his way, thorns that tore at his flesh. Yet he clung to his leopard skin and the sack of diamonds. Presently he heard the sound of a great body moving toward him and saw the baleful glare of two yellow-green eyes.

With a despairing cry of terror the Spaniard relinquished his hold on the leopard skin, which had again caught on the dense bramble, wheeled and dived into the river. A strong swimmer, he struck boldly down stream. Upon the bank, Jad-bal-ja looked down upon the diminishing circles of water, then turned and sniffed at the hide the Spaniard had been forced to leave behind. He grasped it in his jaws, tore it from the thorns and carried it back to lay at the feet of Tarzan.

When Esteban came to the surface he found himself near a fallen tree which was floating down stream. He managed to get astride it, thanking the stars he still had the sack of diamonds. All night he drifted with the current, seeing no signs of life until shortly after daybreak he passed a native village on the shore. Then the village of Opobo, the cannibal. At sight of the white giant on the floating tree there arose a great hue and cry among the natives.

"It is the river devil," said the old witch doctor. "Now shall we catch many fish." "It is NOT the river devil," rumbled the deep voice of Opobo, the cannibal. "You are getting old, besides, your medicine has been poor stuff lately and now you tell me that is the river devil. That is Tarzan of the Apes. I know him well." And indeed every cannibal chief in the vicinity had ceased to know and fear Tarzan, for ruleneless was the ape-man's war upon them.

CONSTANCE BENNETT AND ELISSA LANDI NOW AT THE BELLE

Marriage is so middle class. It takes away all the romance of love! So declared a Duchess in "Our Betters," W. Somerset Maugham's famous play dealing with love intrigues among the upper crust and providing starring role for Constance Bennett.

Miss Bennett plays the role of an American heiress who, less than an hour after her marriage to a title man, finds him in the arms of another woman and, seeking revenge she becomes the most notorious woman in London society.

The star is supported by Anita Louise, Gilbert Roland, Charles Starrett, Phoebe Foster, Grant Mitchell, Alan Mowbray, Minor Watson, Alan Mowbray, Violet Kemble-Cooper and Tyrell Davis. Edmund Goulding directed by George Cukor and produced by Radio Pictures, is the feature attraction at the Belle today and Wednesday, matinee daily, at the Belle Theatre.

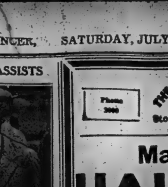
Jesse L. Lasky's feature production for Fox Film with Warner Baxter as star, is the second feature attraction on the same program.

Based on the celebrated stage play by Julian Thompson which had one of the most successful runs on Broadway during the past season, the story is said to be one of the most novel ever portrayed in a motion picture.

It deals with the era of the mythical Amazons, when the women were whatever passed for the pants in those days, and the men were considered the clothes. In what is reported as a new way of handling a comic situation, the film reveals an intimate love story set amid the pomp and the glories of fighting days. The actions of fighting women who go out to do battle and to conquer, and to bring home for their men the prizes of victorious war.

The featured role in "The Warrior's Husband" is portrayed by the lovely Elissa Landi, and Marjorie Rambeau is cast as the hoydenish commanding leader of the Amazons. Ernest Truex, who will be remembered for his outstanding performance in "Whistling in the Dark" has the comedy role, and screened recently at the Belle has the principal "masculine" part in this Fox film. Others in a cast of notable performers are David Manners, Hedda Hopper, Myrna Sloane, Claudia Coleman, Ferdinand Gottschalk, John Sheehan, Lionel Belmore and Helene Maldoon, the Olympic swimming champion, who makes her screen feature debut in this picture.

Two Howard Comedy



The many Belleville admirers of that versatile screen comedian Tom Howard will be pleased to learn that he is appearing on the same program in an original comedy "Hot Squad" the popular Metrotone News will open the program.

All Silver Gifts

Thursday is all-silver Treasure night at the Belle. Ten valuable gifts from coin purse, Rifle, Birks, Ellis, Eyrie, Toronto will be presented including a community sing service.

There is a comedy, suspense and human drama in "Hold Me Tight" a Romance of modern youth, co-starring James Dunn, Sally Eilers, with smart comedy relief supplied by Frank McHugh and June Clyde.

The things which bring about important changes are often so small as to become apparent only in the light of later years.—Bruce Barton.

RETURN OF DIANA WYNWARD WHO WON FAME IN CAVALCADE

ABE MITCHELL

John Barrymore is starred in "Reunion in Vienna," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of Robert E. Sherwood's smashing Broadway stage hit of last season. In the new film, which comes tomorrow to the Capitol theatre, Barrymore plays the role of the impulsive and irresistible Hapsburg archduke, Rudolf, who returns to Vienna from Paris, steeped in the memory of kisses that lingered long after the royal reign toppled and the glory of the glamorous court life faded.

This role created on the stage by Alfred Lunt, with Lynn Fontanne in the feminine lead is said to match Barrymore's individual talents and personality with flawless fit. It follows his acclaim in "Grand Hotel," "Rasputin and the Empress," "Bill of Divorcement" and "Topaze."

Diana Wynyard is the leading lady, filling the Fontanne role of Elena, the Viennese beauty who marries an eminent psychiatrist in an effort to forget the romance that swept her off her feet in the gay court days. Miss Wynyard who made her film debut with Barrymore in "Rasputin and the Empress," recently scored in "Cavalcade" and "Men Must Fight," in which characterization is said to offer the finest opportunity of her career.

Broadway reports the talking-picture version of "Reunion in Vienna" has been produced on a lavish scale with a number of unusual modern interiors, based on the modern European trend for houses of metal and glass, providing a striking contrast to the resplendent palaces of the Hapsburgs of the past century.

Supporting the two members of the cast were designed by Adrian, considered to be Hollywood's foremost stylist.

The cast in support of Barrymore and Miss Wynyard boasts an impressive array of talent. Frank Morgan, who scored a personal triumph in the title role of the stage production of "Topaze," plays Dr. Anton Krug. Henry Travers has the role of Father Krug, May Robson is seen as the cigar-smoking Frau Lutzow, Edmund Gwenn, also of the original cast, repeats his role of Fuffy and Una Merkel is Mitzi. Rae Dell, an 11 with fantastic dreams, Rodil Rosing, Reis Gorno, Marcia Mae Jones, Nella Walker and Herbert Evans complete the cast.

"FLUFFY" CANINE PET KILLED BY CAR

White Poodle, Owned by Dr. Ackerill, Constantly Seen on Streets

Snuffed out by the wheels of a moving motorcar on East Bridge street, Monday morning, the tiny white poodle, known to hundreds of the city as the constant companion of Dr. D. H. Ackerill, V.S., is no more.

For years, the tiny dog had been the chief aid of the well known Dr. Ackerill. It had summoned him to the door when strangers rang the bell; when the telephone tinkled, it was the first to the housekeep to appraise the family of the fact.

Today Mr., and Mrs. Ackerill mourn the loss of the lovable little pet. When interviewed at the home today Mrs. Ackerill plainly showed the feelings of the family. "We miss him," she declared, "more perhaps than many in the city know." The doctor, himself, was visibly affected.

No blame was attached the driver of the car.

"We just let the little thing out of the door in the morning; five minutes afterward they brought the little dog in —dead," stated Mrs. Ackerill.

Residents of the city will miss the familiar tiny white poodle which followed her master constantly along the city streets.

Los Angeles, July 4—Separated by thousands of miles Mary Pickford, "comedienne" in Southern California, and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in London, are equally silent after the actress' announcement they contemplated living apart and possibly be ing divorced.

Miss Pickford was not at "Pickfair," which has been the residence of the famous film couple since their marriage 13 years ago, and all efforts to locate her failed.

Reports persisted that the Toronto-born actress had gone into seclusion at the Santa Monica Beach home of her friend, Marion Davies, but attempts to reach her there also were unavailing.

WHEAT AGREEMENT REACHED BY "BIG FOUR"

Co-operation of Smaller European Exporters and Big Importers Essential

More Definite Figures on Crops in N. America Awaited

15 PER CENT CUT?

Details of "Big Four" Understanding Are Not Made Public

BY GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 5.—(Can. Cable).—The four great wheat exporting nations of the world today finally reached an agreement "in principle" on restricting wheat production and exports to the world demand, but Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, questioned by the Canadian Press declined to go into any details.

The agreement finally announced between Canada, Australia, the United States and the Argentine concedes that the co-operation of the smaller European exporting powers, as well as the big importing nations is essential to the success of any scheme to improve wheat prices. Consequently on next few days will be spent in approaching European powers, and hence delegate North American crop figures will be awaited by officials before the wheat conference starts tackling concrete figures.

"How would the scheme be operated?" the Canadian Premier was asked.

15% Restriction?

"I cannot go into details now," Mr. Bennett replied. "There is nothing to add to the communique."

During the day Canadian delegates proposals for acreage limitation were marked however 15 and 10 per cent. The general impression in the conference lobbies is that a 15 per cent cut in acreage is likely, based on a sort of sliding scale dependent on conditions.

The next move is an approach to the European wheat producing countries and the principal importing countries with a view to securing their co-operation. It is understood that the co-operation of the smaller producing countries such as those of the Danube basin is necessary if any restriction scheme is to be successful.

Increased Consumption

It is further felt the chief importing countries should make an effort to increase consumption, either by lowering their tariffs on wheat, lowering their quota restrictions on its import or by other means.

Europe Must Help

Mr. Bennett, it was learned later had explained at the adjournment until after crop reports were available but from Washington, Mr. Stuart, of the United States said there was some measure of agreement on the necessity for restriction and he believed an announcement to the effect might be made as a delayed result on the World Economic Conference as a whole. After some discussion this was agreed to and the announcement ratified.

Mr. Moreenthau commented after the meeting the four great wheat exporters had agreed they must have help from Europe, and if it were not forthcoming then it would be every man for himself. Italy had already been approached and assurance given Premier Mussolini would support the agreement, he added.

Australia's Plan

Australia, according to the American delegate, had agreed to limit wheat production but on the average of exports during the last three or five years. He considered it was possible wheat would be the first primary commodity which would reach a price giving farmers a living income.

United States Pays Great Price In Lives Lost In Celebrating Holiday

New York, July 5 (AP) — The United States paid a greater price in loss of lives in its annual celebration of Independence Day than it did in the battles skirmishes of the Revolutionary war, it was revealed by a survey which showed, however, a sharp decrease in fireworks fatalities.

A total of at least 185 men, women and children perished during the holiday compared with the total loss of seven men at Lexington and 93 at Concord back in April of 1775.

In addition there were hundreds of cases of injured. New York City alone reported 670 treated at hospitals for fireworks injuries, not to speak of the millions were seriously hurt. Twenty-one were injured in Minneapolis.

Fireworks fatalities, however, totalled but seven, compared with 240 in 1932. Motor car mishaps contributed to the death toll dealing with 82. Fifty-eight perished by drowning. Thirty-eight others lost their lives in other accidents. Aeroplane accidents, shooting and fights brought about 20 deaths. A human jumper fell to his death at Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition.

Not only were the fireworks deaths less than last year but the total fatalities from all causes were 36 under the 1932 figures, and 296 under those of 1931, when the largest number died in recent years. The 1932 figure, however, were naturally large because of a three-day holiday.

President's Conversation Held Over Parley's Continuance

WILL BIND U. S.

Roosevelt Not Ready to Export Gold at Present Time

London, July 5—The creation of an International monetary unit for use as a measuring rod during the period of fluctuating exchanges preceding stabilization was understood in American quarters today to have been suggested by President Roosevelt in his instructions to Secretary of State Cordell Hull regarding the future of the World Economic Conference.

At the same time it was said in American quarters that impression prevailed that the major part of the world economic crisis this week leaving committees to carry on technical work, possibly at Geneva.

This view was expressed after leaders of the delegation had been in telephonic communication with Washington to determine American action upon the proposal for adjournment of the conference at tomorrow's meeting of the steering committee.

Washington, July 5—President Roosevelt today talked by transAtlantic telephone with Chairman Cordell Hull of the American delegation at the London Economic Conference in an endeavor to keep the conference going; but he stood firm against immediate stabilization of American currency.

After the conversation Mr. Roosevelt was said in high quarters to still have every confidence that the conference will proceed.

He would not comment on his talk with Mr. Hull, preferring to let the actions at London speak for themselves.

In the White House, however, it was explained why the President will not consider immediate stabilization of the dollar.

Gold Export

In an official quarter, he was described as feeling that any stabilization agreement would expose the United States to establish a stabilization fund and morally bind the country to export gold to back up the agreement, if it became necessary.

He is not ready to export gold or to enter any agreement that would morally obligate the United States to export gold.

Washington, July 5—After American delegates had been in telephonic communication with Washington this afternoon the impression prevailed in important American circles that the major part of the World Economic Conference would leaving committees to carry on the technical work, possibly at Geneva.

Paris, July 5—(CP Cable)— The Paris press naturally was voice of the leader of the gold bloc nations—the United States with responsibility for the impasse in which the World Conference finds itself.

Cable) — Declaration that if the World Economic Conference a failure the British Empire should go further towards building up its own economic structure, made and supported in the congress of Empire Chambers of Commerce, resigned further support today from the Empire Committee of the Federation of British Industries.

The resolution proposed the conference should take steps to facilitate the full implementing of the Ottawa agreements and develop the policy initiated at the Ottawa Conference last summer. To ensure that within the Empire at least, a policy of reciprocal trade should be developed step towards general world recovery.

FLIES ARE "BABY-KILLERS" AND THEY'RE SPREAD BY MILLIONS

One solitary house fly, allowed to settle on a piece of food, milk, a baby's comfort, can deposit germs that will kill a little baby. Last year, at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, it was proved conclusively, after intensive research that the invisible poisonous specks deposited by flies are responsible for "Summer Complaint" or Infant Diarrhoea, which takes toll of hundreds of infant lives during the summer months. The common house-fly is also the cause of typhoid, diphtheria, dysentery and other deadly ailments.

With hot weather flies arrive and other flies they start to breed and get in their deadly work. Doctors tell us that Fly Paper & Malaria is combated by destroying Mosquitoes, so can infant lives be saved by destroying flies. Ordinary precautions such as breeding places etc., are not enough. All the flies must be killed for absolute safety. One of the best methods to effect this is to use Wilson's Fly Pads in the house during the Summer, 2 or 3 hours every day. The pads, kept inside every day, on porch or verandah will also kill flies that might otherwise enter the house when doors are opened. When it is so easy to combat this menace there is no excuse for a baby's life care, the risk to human life should not be reduced to a minimum.

Firehall Situation Studied By Underwriters' Engineer, Whose Report Is Refered

Deputation Named To Consult on Relief Problem

BUILDING REPORT

Council Cleans Slate And Adjourns to September 21st

The City Council cleaned the slate of outstanding business and adjourned until September 21 for the summer at the conclusion of the session on Tuesday evening. A number of bylaws, including one for the carrying on of business until that time was passed, also one for the strike of arrears, and the schedule of rates for the use of the auditorium of the City Hall and the time for the using of water remains the same in the months from June to only from 8.30 p.m. till 8.00 p.m. in the evening.

Considerable discussion took place on the use of water when the recommendation was submitted to make the hours from five till nine in the evening to five to seven, cutting off the hours of nine and after the discussion, Alderman Imlah moved that the hours from five till thirty till eight while an amendment was moved, seconded by Alderman McCreary that the time be not changed and that the matter be left in the hands of the water. The amendment to the amendment was lost, only voting for it and the amendment being put making the time five-thirty until eight was carried and the original motion lost.

Protection Against Fire

Alderman Imlah said he had talked with the citizens and it appears the hours most favored is a reduction is to be made would be from six till eight o'clock. During the hot spells this week the fire station plant was pumping three million gallons a day and the only object to the reduction of hours is to protect the city against a serious fire in the evening hours. There is a decided drop in pressure during these hours when there is heavy use of water and something must be done to protect against fire protection."

Alderman Hill—"I understand the water rates for this term have been paid and I don't believe you can change the hours by bylaw."

Alderman Imlah—"I think they should be left as they are at present and there is no use making a bylaw to change it in September."

Alderman Bennett—"The waterworks department are not taking any responsibility if the water breaks out. If the time is reduced the watering the lawns and keeping the filtration plant can guarantee sufficient pressure if a fire breaks out and public buildings, if the distances to other parts or the city do not undergo changes we recommend, the latter are a matter for the consumption of good running conditions at all seasons, and do not allow for possible delays due to ice or snow. Under serious objections would not be raised to the hours fixed. I fire ball though later on it might be found necessary to have an auxiliary ball further north, but at present and, we consider a more central position desirable.

I trust the foregoing den's sufficiently fully with the question, and if I can do anything further to assist the committee I shall be pleased to hear from you.

Yours truly,

L. D. Walker,
Engineer.

Repairs Needed

Alderman Hill, speaking to the report stated there was need for repairs to be made at No. 1 pump in the immediate future, but that a plan had been prepared, whereby the No. 1 ball could be enlarged and the No. 2 equipment placed in her home where she lived for the past her place. The estimated cost for the enlarging of No. 1 hall had been given at $4,000 and this should be done.

Alderman Bennett—"We are not going to save money for in the end we will have to have an auxiliary hall in the north part of the city. We have also heard for many years that No. 2 hall was going to fall down but it has not fallen yet and I believe we could set this matter aside for the year. We have done without a new hall for many years and a few months won't make much difference at present."

Alderman Bennett—"I can't see why the repairs could not be made to No. 1 hall and all the equipment moved down. It is quite centrally located and I believe will answer the requirements of the underwriters. I can't see why this city should have to have two halls, when cities nearby twice our size have only one."

Alderman Bennett—"The No. 1 hall is in a poor location any way as the highway passes the door and there is liable to be accident there some days with all the passing."

Alderman McCreary advocated a central fire hall and police station with the buildings, being built somewhere on Pinnacle Street with an opening out on Church Street.

"This is my personal view and I am behind the chairman of fire if he will contemplate that procedure."

The discussion being ended the report was referred to the special fire committee.

After receiving the report given below, the Council recommended that a committee of the City Solicitor, the City Treasurer and the Mayor be appointed to proceed to Toronto to hold a round table conference with those in authority and receive at first hand reliable information and authority as to how to proceed with the question in hand. The report in detail as submitted by Alderman Bennett follows:

"That your committee appointed to investigate the ways and means for granting the right of way of assisting with payment of taxes to some owners in the matter, have examined the correspondence thereon available in the offices of the City Clerk and City Treasury, and having conferred with the City Solicitor hereby recommend:

"1. That before any definite steps be taken or any communication from the Mayor appeal a deputation which shall be authorized to wait upon the heads of the Public Works Department in Toronto, Mr. Hill, the commissioner for municipal affairs and such others as may be considered advisable in the opinion of the deputation and endeavour to obtain for the council and for the Consolidated Relief their respective obligations, duties and powers in connection with reference to the amendment to Order-in-Council made the 18th day of May, 1933, and the practical working out thereof in so far as the taxpayer and the municipality are concerned.

"G. A. Bennett.

Dated July 4, 1933.

Report on Buildings

Another matter from a special committee appointed to investigate the feasibility of permitting the construction of sheds in Front Ward and the occupation of buildings erected by Poor Commissioner's department for open air rink purposes, was brought forward and the working out thereof in so far as the taxpayer and the municipality are concerned.

"G. A. Bennett.

Dated July 4, 1933.

Report on Buildings

Another matter from a special committee appointed to investigate the feasibility of permitting the construction of sheds in Front Ward and the occupation of buildings erected by Poor Commissioner's department for open air rink purposes, beg to report as follows:

"1. This committee, after visiting several locations for building purposes recommend that a site should be granted for the construction of buildings under the estimated value of $100 when approved by the Board of Health as to the type of building and the building location. Any buildings constructed costing more than $100 must receive the approval of the city building by-law together with the approval of the Board of Health.

"2. That all buildings owned by the City of Belleville be constructed for various purposes, such as buildings for the unemployed, etc., should be retained for their specific purposes and not be placed at the disposal of individuals applying for living quarters. This decision is considered necessary in order to expenditure the city has made in order to accommodate those buildings for its own purposes.

"Yours truly,

"G. A. Bennett.
T. H. Marshall.
W. J. Armstrong.
Chas. A. Mott.

Under the heading of enquiries Alderman Bennett asked the Chairman of Market and City Property if the sheds were being erected by the city directly by the placing of electricity in the sheds. Chairman Mott stated all submitted figures showing a saving had been made of $106.87 in July 1932 and $106.87 in August 1931 for ten months the gas consumed was 1183.37 and the electricity 438.80. From August 1931 to August 1932 the gas was 1,183.37 and the electricity was used the cost was $42.42 and the saving is $106.87 with two months to be included, the business and the council stands adjourned until the fall.

COMMUNITY AND PUPILS HONOUR MISS DOXTATOR

At S. S. No. 11, Thurlow, on Thursday Afternoon, June 29th, the ladies of the community gathered with the pupils to enjoy a fine Junior Red Cross meeting for the year and to bid farewell to their teacher, Miss Helen Doxtator. The program consisted of choruses, solos, recitals, plays and recitations. During the program a solo was sung by Stella Brackenbury, composed by herself:

"From this school house they tell us you're going away
We shall miss your bright eyes and your merry play
For you take with you all of the sunshine that
Has lightened our hearts for awhile.

Do you think of the school you are leaving
Of your pupils so kind and so true
Do you think of the hearts that are breaking
And the ones who have loved you so true.

Just consider awhile o'er you leave us
Do not hasten to bid us adieu
And remember the I little red school house
And the ones who have loved you so true.

We have oft times been very annoying
But we hope you'll forget it all now
And remember the little red school house
Where you
Do come and see us all some time.

Greatest Sport Spectacle to be Held in Comiskey Park Chicago When Baseball Talent Meets

All Star Players of American and National Leagues to Play

WITH 5 MILLION

John McGraw and Connie Mack to Manage Clubs

By William Weeks

Associated From Sports Writer

Chicago, July 5—Baseball's game of games pits American League's best against all stars of the National League—will be played today—tomorrow.

John Joseph McGraw will come out of retirement for a day to lead the National League against his old baseball foeman, Connie Mack, director of the American League's battle front. The most famous players of each league will swell their bats against the stuff of the pitchers considered by the fans of the country, as the best in their organizations. And 49,000 spectators will watch the spectacle at Comiskey Park.

The everlasting arguments between partisans of each league will be settled for a day at least. Babe Ruth, the most famous of home run hitters, Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Foxx, Al Simmons, Jack Cronin and the rest of the American League's picked lineup are sure that they can do against such pitching variety as Carl Hubbell, Lonnie Warneke, Hal Schumacher, and Bill Hallahan can serve up.

Lefty Grove, Wes Ferrell, Oral Hildebrand, the most sensational of the junior circuit's youngsters; Vernon Gomes and Alvin Crowder, will be warmed up ready to pitch against Chuck Klein, Frank Demaree, Bill Terry, Paul Waner, Chick Hafey, Frankie Frisch, Pie Traynor and Gabby Hartnett.

It will be man against man at each position—Gehrig against Terry Cronin against Dick Bartell, Frisch against Lazzeri, Dahlgren against Dykes against Traynor.

If rain should interfere with the original schedule—game time is 1.30 p.m., Central Standard Time—the players will be held over until Friday, when the battle will start at 11 a.m.

The teams were selected by a nation-wide vote of fans, conducted by the Chicago Tribune, plus the votes of Manager Mack and Manager Graw. The receipts, less the amount required to stage the big event, will be given to the Association of Professional Baseball Players of America which cares for the game's unfortunates. With every seat sold last Monday, the turnover to the Association probably will amount to $50,000.

VICEROY

Sterling Worth

Miss Wilson's answer to this was a chilly little laugh, no bitter and sardonic that Jerry felt as though a cold wind had suddenly blown upon her. She leaned back to her office, pensive and somewhat dismayed.

Several times, too, Jerry caught the other girls looking her over with keen, appraising eyes and whispering behind her back. One girl in particular, a fluffy little blond by the name of Violet, was openly hostile.

Jerry tried to make friends with all the girls and was particularly kind to those who seemed most distant, but for the present they remained aloof, and at most were civil or polite. Jerry felt their intense curiosity and realized that many of them would have given a week's salary to ask her a few pointed questions, but she ignored this curiosity, which still further antagonized them.

But to himself was marvelous. Whenever he strode into the office with that easy but masculine stride that made Jerry think of some big jungle cat, her heart never failed to set up a tattoo. Instead of the men on a scenic railway, What a man! Whenever he made his appearance the whole atmosphere of the office changed from one of gloom to one of spirited and vivacious animation.

Every time typist looked neater, typed more accurately and smiled a little more genuinely. Then, soon after all, there was something to live for.

He gave them a kick, a punch, an undeniable wallop. He had them all on the ropes and he didn't seem to know it. In fact, he never gave them a second look, and it was this impressive disinterest, which made Jerry feel inferior, which soon had been all wrong in her estimation of Bob's character.

Harriet should know, Jerry admitted to herself, but how could any one explain his continuous coolness to such attractive feminity? Violet, for instance, quite openly made eyes whenever she had the opportunity and always found it necessary to adjust a strap or tighten a stocking when she was near. But Joe didn't seem to be aware of her existence.

He was, it was true, the very epitome of chivalry to Jerry herself.

He knew a great deal about perfumes and gems and liquors and all sorts of other interesting but mostly useless things. In fact, when he was not being the big-shot executive he was gifted but delightful liar he was often the small-time connoisseur of the scene and his utterly improbable yarns about famous paintings and bits of sculpture which, as a matter of fact, he had never seen.

He insisted that the taste buds on his tongue were so sensitive that he should be ever be thrown out of employment as head of his large and successful radio concern, he could undoubtedly make a living by tasting and grading tea.

"My dear Jerry—you don't mind my calling you Jerry, do you?—I believe I never told you how keen my sense of taste once served my life.

"It was when I was with Pancho Villa in northern Mexico. We had just commandeered a freight train and run into a rich little gambling town up in the mountains in an effort to seize the big gambling house, and, incidentally, the half-million pesos on the gaming tables.

"Unfortunately, my rag-tag unit was surrounded by federal troops, and after a desperate hand-to-hand encounter in the pitch darkness we were captured and thrown into prison.

"I was sentenced to be shot at sunrise by the federal general, a veritable caricature of a Mexican in gold lace and trappings, who said that we would have a drink on it first. He sent down to the chain of gaming place for a fine old bottle of champagne, and having poured me a glass he himself drank to my health which was rather sarcastic, but I could think of nothing else to do.

"Tastes like 1891, he said as he smacked his lips and twirled his fierce walrus mustachios.

"It was a matter of fact that champagne is of the 1883 vintage," I said rather dryly.

"What? he said, dare to contradict me, stormed the general. "I'll have you shot in my stead.

But just to prove I come of sportsman blood I'll make you a proposition. If you have guessed the vintage you go free. If not you die since."

Jerry felt their intense curiosity

Jerry, "I believe it goes:

"'My love come up from Barnagat,

The sea was in his eyes

He strode as scoffy as a cat

And told me terrible lies.'"

"You mean to say you don't believe my stories?" said Joe Middleton with feigned hurt and dismay in his voice.

"I'd rather hear you lie than hear most men tell the truth," said Jerry primly.

Nevertheless Jerry worried sometimes over his attitude of Mr. Middleton, which made her feel more like his guest than his secretary.

But matters ran on smoothly. She was catching up on the few bills he owed, and could take the family to a movie now and then. And she didn't feel criminal when she spent 35 cents for lunch.

She often made friends with a few girls about the office the second week, and began to feel a little less of an outcast.

Still she wondered.

CHAPTER 4

Jerry, as any pretty girl her age had had several boy friends. After Bob, her first and most glamorous by sophomoric, though she was keen-minded, witty youngster studying law at the University of Chicago, a young bond salesman with a sport roadster who had made it necessary for her to walk home from the forest preserve one night, and a West Pointer who came him on visits now and then.

But Jerry was so deeply engrossed in the children it seemed temporarily impossible for her to love deeply elsewhere. Besides, none of the boys she had known could compare, and her unwavering admiration. And she could honestly say she had never fallen in love.

But now there was an intriguing sensation fluttering around her heart whenever she thought of Joe Middleton. He was definitely sophisticated and dashing. He was rich and romantic and good-looking. In fact, Jerry had had at last found in the kind of man and the kind of boss whom she unconsciously admired.

And Jerry could see no reason at all why she shouldn't fall in love with him. She even pictured herself as a few rosy dreams of orange blossoms and bridesmaids.

What glamorous possibilities! Jerry standing at the prow of the Sea Gull dressed in a smart blue and white yachting costume so flattering to her blue eyes and flame-like hair. Jerry in a slinky, silky afternoon thing having in friends at the Gold Coast apartment. Jerry at Lake Geneva in a brief green bathing suit poised for a dive high up on the diving tower.

And always in the background would be Joe Middleton adoring his young wife, saying chivalrous, romantic things and showing her off to his friends.

She would have clothes and a chance to see Europe, and her family would be safe forever from such terrifying experiences as the one they had been living.

Yes, Jerry dreamed a great deal these days. But she was frightened, too. Deep down in her heart she knew the way of men like Joe with girls like Jerry. She had been brought up in a small town, had had a childhood, and above that she had seen the unfortunate results of too many a stenographer-employer romance.

Jerry wasn't a moralist in any sense of the word, and she was not a girl with a Victorian hangover. But she was a courageous modern girl with principles and she was taking her heart for the man she would wed.

And so one day, when she arrived home to find a small package on the hall table from the man away to her room without letting her family know it, locked the door, then untied it.

She had hoped, but also feared, it was from Joe. It was from the ritzy little jewelry store on Michigan avenue, and it was a beautiful platinum wrist watch.

Jerry broke into muffled ecstasies over the watch, trying it on and admiring the fingers and its delectable surfaces.

It was in such perfect taste, she thought. So chaste and unobtrusive. And so characteristic of the man that she didn't wear one.

But, of course she couldn't keep it.

The blood that make you a proposition If you have guessed the vintage you go free. If not you die since."

Jerry felt their intense curiosity dismay, as we wiped away the dust from the bottle, to find that it had named the vintage to the year.

"And so I died," here is how I tell the story."

Harriet Wylie once wrote a quatrain just meant for you," said

"'My love come up from Barnagat,
The sea was in his eyes
He strode as scoffy as a cat
And told me terrible lies.'"

"You mean to say you don't believe my stories?" said Joe Middleton with feigned hurt and dismay in his voice.

"I'd rather hear you lie than hear most men tell the truth," said Jerry primly.

Nevertheless Jerry worried sometimes over his attitude of Mr. Middleton, which made her feel more like his guest than his secretary.

But matters ran on smoothly. She was catching up on the few bills he owed, and could take the family to a movie now and then. And she didn't feel criminal when she spent 35 cents for lunch.

She often made friends with a few girls about the office the second week, and began to feel a little less of an outcast.

Still she wondered.

CHAPTER 4

Jerry, as any pretty girl her age had had several boy friends. After Bob, her first and most glamorous by sophomoric, though she was keen-minded, witty youngster studying law at the University of Chicago, a young bond salesman with a sport roadster who had made it necessary for her to walk home from the forest preserve one night, and a West Pointer who came him on visits now and then.

But Jerry was so deeply engrossed in the children it seemed temporarily impossible for her to love deeply elsewhere. Besides, none of the boys she had known could compare, and her unwavering admiration. And she could honestly say she had never fallen in love.

But now there was an intriguing sensation fluttering around her heart whenever she thought of Joe Middleton. He was definitely sophisticated and dashing. He was rich and romantic and good-looking. In fact, Jerry had had at last found in the kind of man and the kind of boss whom she unconsciously admired.

And Jerry could see no reason at all why she shouldn't fall in love with him. She even pictured herself as a few rosy dreams of orange blossoms and bridesmaids.

What glamorous possibilities! Jerry standing at the prow of the Sea Gull dressed in a smart blue and white yachting costume so flattering to her blue eyes and flame-like hair. Jerry in a slinky, silky afternoon thing having in friends at the Gold Coast apartment. Jerry at Lake Geneva in a brief green bathing suit poised for a dive high up on the diving tower.

And always in the background would be Joe Middleton adoring his young wife, saying chivalrous, romantic things and showing her off don't flaunt your charms too brazenly."

The nerve of the woman! Did she think Jerry was another little Violet who would go into the home of her affections like a street urchin? Did Miss Wilson imagine for a moment Jerry would be more out of place in those surroundings than any other member of the office staff?

And why, after all, should Miss Wilson worry?

Oh dear, he was married. He was married. And nothing whatsoever could be done about it. All this time there was a Mrs. Middleton whom Jerry hadn't dreamed existed.

Jerry was unreasonable now and blamed herself and felt a deep sense of shame whenever she thought how she had allowed herself to be lured by her employer. She felt she would like to leave the office that day and never return. All of which was absolutely ridiculous, as she well knew. She couldn't possibly afford to give up her job and she would simply have to make the best of a bad situation.

When she went home that evening she was very seriously blue Sarah and the children noticed it.

"Do try to be cheerful, Jerry," Sarah said. "I work all day taking care of the children and I can't bear to have you so glum when you come home at night. You should think of your self as mother sometimes."

Jerry shut her lips tight to keep from uttering the sharp retort which came to her tongue, and instead offered to wash the dishes and put the children to bed.

"I'll try to be cheerful," she said with a wan smile.

After the dishes she played with the children awhile and cut out paper dolls for Kitten.

"That's all wrong." Kitten cried, "Why, Jerry Hartford, you cut off all the foldover things on my page; dolt's best dress. And now what will the poor doll wear to her party?"

"That was just what I was wondering, too," Jerry confessed.

A BUSINESS REVIEW

The business rebound is beyond parallel, says the weekly review of business conditions in the United States by Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., the surprising strength of the vigorous upswing being indicated by the indices of industrial expansion which in some instances is being carried back of 1932 and 1931 records and is now reaching out for 1930 levels. The peak of the season has not been reached in the automobile sales business, for instance, though sales are increasing. The jump in electric power output in the largest since 1929 in the eighth successive weekly rise and carloadings have increased. More advances in wage scales are being reported week by week. The swift broadening of employment and the frequency of wage increases have tended to obscure the nonetheless slow pace upward of general consumer buying on which permanent recovery must depend for its strongest support. This consumer buying though ahead of last year is still lagging behind the swift upward sweep in other fields. As a result retailers are cautious in making commitments, according to the report.

MAN AND THE DOG

Man may never know why the dog follows him so affectionately, why it has left its kind to serve him. He only knows that in his pet there is a manifestation of something hidden deep within the instinct of the dog which baffles explanation but that it is there he has no doubt.

Man, of course, has been good to the dog. In earliest ages he used and developed the dog for guard and for the chase, and in these days his affection for the creature is still one of the most evident things of life.

But for man to like the dog as he likes it, there must be a reciprocation of interest. This the dog has shown all through the ages. Some say the dog is inclined to moodishness. Well, he acts as if his master was the best in the world and that is right. There is one thing sure—a man may be never so poor and unattractive, but his dog knows he gets to know him, will not desert him for a richer master. Herein the dog is superior in spirit to many men—keen to each weakness.

This week the last was told of a little bunch of fluff, a little poodle, a wee white animal known to thousands of citizens because of her fidelity to her master. He was a good master to the little thing and she rewarded him with all that the most affectionate dog could lavish on one who protected her.

Does have been known to save the lives of children, to nose them away from danger, to save lives in fire-doomed buildings, to give their lives for human beings, or to grieve themselves to death for their masters.

If this love is a development of association with man, one of the finest proofs of the power of environment is provided. Then man should go to work with the utmost vigor to improve his environment.

"Fluffy" was a little creature. She could not do the heroic saving of life as a Saint Bernard or a police dog could, but she could serve. She could give an alarm when the door bell rang or the telephone rang. Somehow she had learned. These and a score of other little services are recalled when she is no more.

But little dogs like the golden lads and lassies of the song must, if they live in this motor age, "come to dust." It was Fluffy's fate. A true of other dogs she has proven her worth and as far as mere dog could express affection, she was affectionate.

NEW CODE OF ETHICS

"Tax evasion may be fair enough, according to the law, but that must be changed. There is nothing so really needed today as a new code of ethics for the leaders of our nation. Whenever we place the burden of life upon the shoulders of others, we cease to live according to the law of God."

So said Bishop Remington of East Oregon, preaching in New York on Sunday. This was delivered to a United States congregation, but it has its implications for those Canadians who would place the burden of life on the shoulders of those less able to bear.

Revelations of the nonchalance with which members of banking firms in the United States have sold shares in order to show a loss for income tax purposes and have brought them back, have shocked many men and women of ordinary honesty who would not think of this means of evading a duty, though the law allows it and practically fosters this means of evasion.

Inquisitive people are the funnels of conversation; they do not take in anything for their own use but merely to pass it to another.—Steele.

It is a shameful thing to be weary of inquiry when what we reach for is excellent.—Cicero.

Though I am an inn-keeper, thank Heaven I am a Christian—Cervantes.

DOUBLY PRIZED

In youth I thought a joy must be,
Once snared, securely fettered;
Youth swears by such mad fantasy,
Unlessoned and unletter(ed)!

I dreamed of joys all set away,
Like birds in cages, waiting
To sing for me some future day;
Such glad anticipating!

But, older grown, I now discern
That wings are made for flying;
Winged joys can never, near learn
To find bars satisfying.

And so, today, all joys for me
Possess an added sweetness;
I prize their joyous quality,
Now doubly, for its fleetness!

AN EPIDEMIC OF CATS is not as bad as an epidemic of rats, in the opinion of an East Hill resident, who recalls the time not so long ago when there was a dumping ground between the old High School and St. Thomas Church. As the result of the dump an epidemic of rats swarmed over East Hill and it is even said that they became so bold that in some houses they ran over the faces of sleeping citizens. War was declared on the rodent, and with the help of an army of cats were vanquished and driven back into the sewers. With a vivid memory of that terrible war, says the East Hill cat defender let's not talk of arming our redbreast lovers with guns to kill cats with before breakfast. The more cats the less rats, and there will be no scarcity of cats in our generation. So let's be that, with the cats one up and one to go, and waiting to hear from that East Hill citizen who advocates a bounty of five dollars on each black cat that is presented at City Hall. That's all right but as cats are said to have nine lives, perhaps they might grow nine tails, and then the bounty would involve, killing a cat nine times, eighteen dollars.

SPEAKING ABOUT CATS, let's turn to rats, for a moment. Various countries recognizing the danger of any increase in the rat population, have taken vigorous and permanent steps to prevent it. Last fall the second International Anti-Rat Conference was held at La Rochelle, France, at which Dr. Loir, director of the Bureau of Health of that city, made a report on the rat-fighting methods employed in various countries. Rat bites are very dangerous causing violent fever, cerebral affections and sometimes even death. The main danger of the rat is the fact that it is the carrier of the plague bacillus, discovered in 1894. The germ is transmitted by fleas that live in the rat's fur and suck its blood. Rats are a very dreaded pest. At LeHavre they breed rat-killing cats systematically, mating cats which have proved their rat-catching ability. The city maintains a breeding centre and one of its cats, the famous Lico, was awarded a first prize for rat catching in 1930. Cats do not have to be starved to catch and kill rats. They kill the rat instinctively, with one blow of the paw, and the domestic cat does not eat the rat. Well-fed cats catch the most rats, for they need strength for this work. Lyons, France, has also a breeding centre where rat-killers are developed. So his majesty, the cat, has a definite use in the world, and may be militarized for service in the large cities, in abbatoirs and granaries and wherever the rat is liable to do damage. Rats are a real calamity, and contrary to all other animal species, do not repay the evil they cause with the slightest service.

HARNESS HORSE KILLED

Unity, Me., July 5 (CP) — A bay gelding, Peter Dorn, crashed into a motor car and was killed in the first heat as the 85th racing season opened here. Both driver and driver, William Overlock, escaped injury.

Toronto Women Injured When Car Hits Culvert on Wooler Rd.

Sustain Fractures And Deep Cuts From Flying Glass

Trenton, July 5 (Special)— Mrs. (Dr.) George Cook and Mrs. Proudfoot of Toronto, were taken to the Belleville Hospital yesterday after their car struck a culvert on the Wooler Road, when a front tire blew out. Mrs. Cook received a fractured elbow and broken nose, while Mrs. Proudfoot, the driver, received a fracture of one bone in the right forearm, two bones in the left hand and a deep gash in her chin that required stitches to close.

Dr. and Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Proudfoot had left their camp at Rice Lake to visit friends in Belleville, when the accident occurred. Dr. McQuade was called and immediately drove the party to Belleville where he and Dr. Stobie, of that city, attended the injured. Dr. Cook was unhurt.

The car was badly damaged in front. The crane from Plaglbon and Clegg's garage took the car to Boyce's garage at Belleville for repairs.

Stunned While Driving

Sam Ellis was taken to his home in Coleby's ambulance after he had stunned himself when he was diving in the "deep hole" on the Hill farm, off the Wooler Road.

When Ellis came to the surface he said he had struck his head, but told others in swimming he was not injured. Later, after the other swimmers had departed Ellis was found half dazed. Dr. McQuade was called and later stated the boy might have broken his neck if he had landed a little harder.

Today, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ellis, he is resting comfortably.

Heavy Police Docket

Yesterday afternoon was a busy day in the Trenton police court. Justices of the Peace Thomas Jarrett and Chester Lott were on the bench with Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan, K.C., acting for the Crown.

Arthur Fowler, of Toronto, was given three months' suspended sentence after he pleaded guilty or being a worthless cheque in October. He made restitution and paid all costs.

Clifford Griffiths was given one month to make a dollar restitution for wilful damage to property.

Samuel Jacob Yarrow and Mary E. Bartlett were given one month for bigamy.

A local youth paid ten and costs for consuming liquor in a public place and an assault case was straightened out.

Grass Fire

Yesterday morning the fire department were called to extinguish a grass fire near the canning plant of the Quality Canners at the foot of Dufferin Ave. No damage was done but the arrival of the firemen stopped the fire from possibly catching the buildings as it was fanned by a steady breeze.

Post Office Repairs

Whitney Bros. are repairing the plaster work between the stone of the post office. Passersby stopped to watch a workman dangle in a basket near the face of the clock while he carefully filled in places where the mortar had fallen out. This work is done periodically to keep the elements from gradually eating in between the layers of stone.

Legion Win

The Foreign Legion went into a third place tie when they defeated the R.C.A.F. by 16-13 after overcoming a six run deficit earlier in the day. Both teams used two pitchers who were all freely hit. The Airmen went into the lead in the fifth frame when they gathered 9 runs but the Legionaires were not to be outdone so they gathered seven in the sixth and four in the last to make the win. Both teams made many errors while each had a home run. Mosier started for the Legion but was replaced by Brant in the sixth, while Ceifita relieved Pafford of pitching duties in the sixth. The Legion pulled a nice double in the fourth when Gibbs hit to Whitehead who caught McRee at second and the runner at first.

The line-up:

Foreign Legion—Whitehead, Johnson, Loft, Brant, Mosier, Sero, Simmons, Clarke, Mosier.

R.C.A.F.—Gibbs, Pullows, Reeves, Gould, Wray, Mastiah, Pafford, Devine, McKee, Ceifita.

Group Four of Tabernacle W.A. Honours Member

A most enjoyable time was spent last evening at the home of Mrs. Kelley, John Street, when Group No. 4, of the Women's Association of the Tabernacle Church met for a social meeting. It was the season and to enjoy a pleasant evening with Mrs. M. J. Jacobson, a valued and faithful member of the group, who is leaving the city. During the evening a humorous address in poetry was read by Mrs. Frances Nicholson and Mrs. S. Cherrie, convenor of the group, presented Mrs. Jacobson with a handsome silver basket filled with cut blooms to which a gracious reply was made by Mrs. Jacobson assuring the ladies it was with the deepest regret she was leaving Belleville and the friends she had made while here, but she looked forward daily refreshments and a social time was enjoyed by the group and their friends.

The following poem was read:

"Belleville, July 4, 1933.

"To Mrs. M. J. Jacobson:

"Is it true Jakie dear, we have come to the time,

When our paths must part for a while?

How will miss you dear girl, it is hard to explain,

But we hope you'll come back

When the leaves turn again

To this beautiful city of ours.

Just to think of the good times We've spent here together

Are all to be over so soon,

How Cherrie will miss you,

But she is queer as the weather

Don't worry our bill about her, however,

She'll go right out to see you

No matter how far.

For distance is nothing to her and her car

She'll be there by the change of the moon.

"I think you should know

Why we're missing you so.

Mina's worrying this Group and grieving them so

It's awful bake the beans if Jakie must go.

"I won't," say they all, you might as well know

There'll be no more beans for this Group Number Four

'Till Jakie comes back to us, once more.

"Now beans are so common, too much so for Cherrie

For Flowers are her special delight,

So nothing would do but a basket for you,

To hold "Marigolds" and "Forget-me-Nots" too

To remind you of us, your are leaving

"We're not saying "Good-bye" those words are too sad

We're expecting you back in the fall

For where could you find such good sports as we are Say Annie and Nettie, Min, Emily and all.

Now surely we feel we're a bunch hard to beat

And we all say we are glad that we ever did meet,

So we will be looking for you in the fall.

"(Signed) Group Number Four, Woman's Association Tabernacle Church, Belleville, Ont. Canada."

"PERFECT ROMANCE" HEADED FOR DIVORCE

The 13-year-old "perfect romance" of Mary Pickford, Canada's outstanding contribution to the world of motion pictures, appeared to be near its ends as Mary, "sweetheart of the screen", announced that a divorce was in the offing on the grounds of incompatibility. The magnificent Hollywood mansion, "Pickfair", long a landmark of the film colony, is reported to be for sale. Fairbanks is at present in Europe. Another romance in the same fancy was blighted recently when Douglas Fairbacks, Jr., was divorced from his wife, Joan Crawford.

Program Given By Pupils Of Bethel School

Bethel, July 5—A very enjoyable concert was given at Bethel School on June 29, the last day of school. A number of parents and friends were present to hear a very enjoyable programme of readings, recitations and music. Despite the excessive heat the children carried out their parts very carefully. Around the school on display were exhibits of fine art, writing products maps and scrap books which those present were invited to inspect.

After the programme Miss Doherty Elliott read an address to the teacher Miss Edna Ketcheson, who has succeeded to a position formerly held. Miss Pearl Wannamaker then made a presentation of a beautiful Parker pen on behalf of the pupils. The following is the address:

Dear Miss Ketcheson:

I am sure we have all enjoyed this last day of school very much, but nothing with our fun there is a sadness that we are enjoying our last day with you as a teacher. We have spent four happy years in your classes and regret very much that we are losing not only a teacher but a very near friend.

As a token of the love and esteem we hold for you, we ask you to accept this pen, and may it bring fond memories as you write with it of the happy days spent with the pupils of Bethel school.

With best wishes for your success in your new school.

(Signed) "Bethel Busy Bees"

Miss Ketcheson made a very suitable reply thanking the school-ars for the gift, and also wishing them future success.

A very appetizing lunch was then served which brought the delightful afternoon to a close.

The founder of the present Methodist church, Rev. Charles Wesley, first used the phrase, "Cleanliness is next to godliness," in a sermon.

STONE CHURCH W.M.S.

The June meeting of Stone Church was held Thursday afternoon at the parsonage. The meeting opened by singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name." Prayer was offered by Mrs. Sexsmith. The minutes were read by Mrs. S. Lloyd. Business followed, plans were made to make a quilt for allocation, Mrs. W. Holmes, H. Jeffery, J. Detlor and S. Lloyd to meet at Mrs. Lloyd's to cut it out ready for sewing. A reading of much interest about Japan was given by Mrs. R. Phillips. The names of missionaries in three also the ones home on furlough were given by Mrs. C. Holmes. A talk on W.M.S. work by Mrs. J. Jeffery the President followed. Lesson. The mustard seed and leaven Matt. 13-31-33 was read by Mrs. Sexsmith with prayer by Mrs. W. Holmes. A chapter of the Study Book on "Early Missionaries to Canada" was given by Mrs. C. Holmes. This book is well prepared each time has made very interesting meetings and much good may be learned from the good work done by the early workers in Canada. Temperance study by the members was then conducted by Mrs. Lloyd. Mrs. Detlor then expressed in a few well chosen words the regrets of the society for the loss by removal of Mrs. Sexsmith who has always been such a good help in the society. Members are sorry to see her go but were assured by her that all would find a good W.M.S. worker in the new Pastor's wife. The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. Sexsmith.

A candidate in the recent South African elections has found the best plan yet for dealing with heckling and disturbers at political meetings. He just hired a band and every time trouble starts the band plays. A really rowdy audience can have quite a musical evening.

SANDY SOMERVILLE AT HOYLAKE

Ryder Cup Match

Ryder "Sandy" Somerville, of London, Ontario, played remarkable golf in the British Amateur tournament this year to get as far as the sixth round in the face of terrible golfing weather. It was "Sandy" in the Ryder Cup match at Hoylake during his match with W. W. Sharpe, whom he defeated 8 and 7. Spectators and golf critics were amazed at "Sandy's" machine-like precision in all his matches. He was eliminated by George Dunlap of the United States, who was defeated in the next round. The title was won by Hon. Michael Scott of England.

DIANA WYNYARD AND JOHN BARRYMORE "REUNION IN VIENNA"

Considerable interest attaches itself to the screen translation of Robert E. Sherwood's stage masterpiece, "Reunion in Vienna," which supplied Lunt and Alfred Lynn Fontanne with one of their most successful vehicles. The talking-picture version of the noted play will be shown starting Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre with John Barrymore starred and Diana Wynyard, of "Cavalcade" fame, in the leading feminine role.

"Reunion in Vienna" is regarded by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as one of its most important attractions for the current season, which may well be credited in view of the play's phenomenal success and the wide discussion it created when produced under the auspices of the Theatre Guild.

Play Essentially the Same

In order to achieve as smooth a translation as possible in shifting the drama from the medium of stage to screen, the author himself went to Hollywood and instructed changes called upon by the larger scope of the photoplay. It is said, however, that the play remains essentially the same as when originally produced, the only change of version being elaborated on only to add movement and appropriate cut backgrounds against the narrow confines of the stage.

The screen adaptation was written by Bernie Vajda and Claudine West, who were responsible for the script of "Smilin' Through," "Private Lives" and "The Guardsman." The director is Sidney Franklin, who also directed the three aforementioned pictures.

In the original stage versions of "Reunion in Vienna" the story opened in the Kruj household with the faded glory of Vienna talked about but not seen. In the various film versions, however, the palatial splendor of the royal court and the significance of the gay court social life are depicted.

Barrymore is said to be ideally suited to the role of the mad Hapsburg archduke, Rudolf, who returns to Vienna to rekindle the romance of the royal court days. Miss Wynyard is his leading woman for the second time having recently appeared in "Cavalcade" in and the Empress."

Important roles in the picture are filled by Frank Morgan, May Robson, Una Merkel, Reginald Mason, Walter and Herbert Evans, and the cast includes four members of the original theatre Guild production, Henry Travers, Rhardo Cansell, Bela Lobov and Edwin Nuemann.

In point of settings, "Reunion in Vienna" is said to equal the most ambitious efforts of the past twelve months. Cedric Gibbons has taken his interiors from modern as well as old Vienna. The costuming by Adrian also is deemed worthy of attention.

An Aristocratic Cast

It is interesting to note that the studio engaged a number of Austrians of former high station and rank for the reunion scenes. This historical detail will be understood when it is recalled that this "reunion in Hollywood" is exactly what Sherwood was writing about in his original conception of the play.

The ending of the picture, as in the play, is left largely to the imagination of the audience. This circumvents possible censorial frowns and gives free interpretation of the success of the doctor-husband's experiment in applied psychology. In any event, it is a happy ending, either way you wish it.

The height of "Reunion in Vienna" allows only for addition of comedy and News at each presentation.

JAMES DUNN AND SALLY EILERS IN "HOLD ME TIGHT"

There seems to be no let-up in the triumphs that James Dunn and Sally Eilers are achieving as one of the screen's favorite couples.

Their latest Fox romance, "Hold Me Tight," opens at the Belle tomorrow (Thursday) for an engagement of two days, and there is little doubt but perhaps no other two players in film who so staunchly represent the spirit of modern youth. James Dunn is all young America, and Sally Eilers is every young girl. Together they are ideal.

In "Hold Me Tight," they have the type of role that first brought them into prominence in such films as "Bad Girl" and "Sailor Daddy." It is a story that concerns a search for happiness over almost unsurmountable barriers. These two young people win their fight and victory is sweet for all of the hardships of the struggle.

They are both employing in a large department store, where they meet, and fall in love. Sally is attractive and Jimmy is ambitious. There seems to be nothing standing in the way of complete success. But they reckon without the desires and ambitions of others. The battle is a difficult one. With an unscrupulous boss pursuing Jimmy and attracted to Sally and he also in a position to get Jimmy out of the way, the fight is for the more strenuous.

The background of the film, so typical of New York in both mood and structure, is just what this pair of young players need. The department store with its great population, an incidental feature of the production is a view of the latest fashions in every branch of women's apparel, and is exactly suitable to their talents. The direction of David Butler has taken all these details into account and brought them forth at their best.

Edmund Lowe, Dunn and Miss Eilers, special mention must be made of Frank McHugh sterling performances as comedy relief for Lorette and June Clyde their complimentary contributions. Others in the cast are Kenneth Thompson, Herbert Ashley, Dorothy Peterson and Clay Clement.

Fatty Arbuckle Comedy

"Hey Pop," an original and funny Fatty Arbuckle comedy, the popular Belle Canadian News and Paramount Pictorial, with its intimate views of interesting people and events precede the feature offering.

Two Features Tonight

"The Warrior's Husband," based on the stage play by Julian Thompson, which had one of the most successful runs on Broadway during the past season is the feature offering at the Belle tonight. The dialogue is as sparkling as Burgundy and equally as refreshing, and features Elissa Landi, David Manners, Margaret Rambeau and Bennett Truex. Constance Bennett in W. Somerset Maugham's "Our Betters," featuring Anita Louis, Gilbert Roland and Charles Starrett is the second feature offering on the same program.

Getting out of the rough spots is the iron test of the golfer, and this one is intended to be a pen. It is the shots demonstrated here by Gene Sarazen and Billy Burke that require complete concentration of all of the faculties that golf develops, and particularly wrist control.

Sarazen is using a niblick for an explosion shot that stopped a few feet from the hole. Burke's effective grip is shown close-up. It illustrates how he makes his left work in making these difficult shots.

Coast Batting Ace Seeking Third Straight Swat Title

Outfield Oscar Eckhardt Has Fine Chance to Repeat Triumphs of 1931 And 1932

By HAROLD K. GEORGE

Central Press Sports Writer

A LARGE NUMBER of ball players would be well satisfied to be the champion batsman of their league for just one year. They might call it the crowning achievement of their career.

However, on the Pacific coast there's an outfielder who has won two consecutive batting championships in that section of the country, and is well on his way to a third, with an average of over .400. He may also be well on his way to the major leagues for a fifth trial.

The far west's slugger is Oscar O. Eckhardt, Jr. Name sounds familiar? Certainly does. He's had three trials with Detroit and one with the Boston Braves. He bounced back to the minors each time. Others have been up and down more times than Eckhardt, before they made it. Maybe some major league club will take a chance on Eckhardt, now with the San Francisco Missions.

x x x

OSCAR ECKHARDT comes again in the Coast's classy class AA league it will not only be his third straight championship there but his fourth in a row in the minor leagues, for in 1932 he was the batting king in the Texas league.

Eckhardt is no youngster and his age, which is 30, according to baseball records may be against him when—and if—scouts begin considering him for the majors.

Oscar got a late start but he showed hitting ability when he did begin professionally. His first engagement was with Amarillo, Tex., and Wichita, Kas., in 1926 in the Western league, where he was right up among the leaders with a .376 average. Purchased by Detroit and farmed to Seattle, he was also among the best hitters in the Coast league in 1928. After a 1929 spring trial with Detroit, the Tigers' Beaumont farm acquired him and he led the Texas league with .376.

x x x

ANOTHER trial found Eckhardt still lacking in ability to make the Detroit outfield and in 1931 he was sold to Mission. A .360 average ranked him as the batting champion and earned a trial with the Boston Braves last year, but eight games found him hitting only .250 and he was shunted back to Mission where he became hot with .371.

Eckhardt, a left-handed batter and right-handed thrower, doesn't go in for any Ruthian wallops.

OSCAR ECKHARDT

Out of 1,078 hits in five seasons he has made only 50 home runs. A large portion of his hits are singles —768.

Eckhardt is a Texan by birth and his home is in El Paso. His record.

GIVE A LOOK:

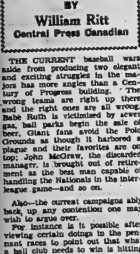
Washington is rampaging toward the American league pennant because the club is not only getting good pitching, but wonderful batting. The upper strata of the American league batting averages is crowded with Senators.

At this writing, the Senators had three of their men among the first five batsmen of the junior circuit —namely, Joe Cronin, Fred Schulte and Heinie Manush.

But wait!!!

The Philadelphia Nationals, best batters of their group, are in eighth place in the National league because there is no minds place for them to fall into.

Like the first-place Senators the last-place Phils, at this writing, had three men among the first five in the National loop. In fact, they had three in the first three—with Virgil Davis, Chuck Klein and Chick Fullis running one, two and three.



So What?

x x x

IT ALL BOILS down to this—excellent sickwork is necessary to go places, but good pitching and good fielding plus energy with the horsehide hammering or all that offensive stuff goes for Sweeney.

At the plate the Phils look grand in the field they look like nine other fellows. However, Washington can shine on attack, but their defense is enough to break the hearts of the stoutest Yankee or Athletic.

So the Senators and the Phils may both see the world series this year. But the Phils must pay to get in.

THE CURRENT baseball wars aside from producing two elegant and exciting struggles in the race—and there is more action than a Century of Progress building. The wrong teams are trying to get over and the right ones are all wrong. Babe Ruth is clouted by several gas, ball parks begin the sale of beer, Giant fans swarm to the Polo Grounds as if it harbored a plague and their favorites are on top; John McGraw, the crafty old manager, is brought out of retirement at the request of the capable of handling the Nationals in the interleague game—and so on.

Also—the current campaigns ably back up any contention one may wish to argue over.

For instance is it possible after viewing certain doings in the pennant races to point out that what a ball club needs to win is hitting and plenty of it.

At the same time, it is just as easy to see the present flag chances as a result of pitching, fielding and opportune hitting.

Take the Yankees. Their pitching staff is not what it was in the days of Ruth, Gehrig, Lazzeri, Pipp, Hoyt, Pennock, Shawkey, Bush, Ruether, Jones, Thomas, Zachary, Wells, Gomez, Pipgras, Ruffing, Johnson, Weiland, Grimes, Moore, Ferrell, Hadley, Russell, Chase, Braxton, Allen, Mitchell, Ogden

YANKEES ARE DOWNED TWICE BY SENATORS

Third Largest Crowd in Baseball History Enjoy Games

GIANTS LOSE

Cards Only Abel to Gain Half Game as They Split

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Whether or not the New York Yankees win the American League pennant this year, it seems to be an established fact that Babe Ruth and Connie Mack still are baseball's best drawing cards. This has been indelibly written this season, when the Yanks helped set attendance records at Chicago and Detroit and let loose the tocsin of baseball's comeback be prove the point.

The third largest crowd in baseball history, 77,265 fans, turned out to see the second place Yanks get up a vain battle to regain the lead from the Washington Senators yesterday and chalk back 2 1-2 games behind the leaders, when they took it on the chin twice. Washington won the first game 6-5 in 10 innings when Goose Goslin doubled and manager Joe Cronin sent him home. Then took the second, 3-2 despite Babe Ruth's 13th homer of the season as Walter Stewart pitched five-hit ball.

The only larger baseball crowds on record were the 86,288 gathering which saw a "grucial" doubleheader between the Yanks and the Athletics in Shibe Park in 1929 and the 1926 '384 who turned out for the opening of the Yankee Stadium that year.

The Senators' double triumph gave them perhaps the most important day of a day of doubleheaders. Although three other major league clubs enjoyed a day of complete triumph, none of the other "contenders" were on the list.

The seventh place Boston Red Sox scored the only other American League double victory by walloping the Philadelphia Athletics 14-4 and 8-5 in morning and afternoon encounters. They accumulated 29 hits to the 13 of Jimmy Rhodes and Ivy Andrews allowed.

Cards Split Even Twice

The brilliant flinging of Ben Cantwell and Wally Berger's clouting enabled the Braves to make it a great day in Boston baseball annals by winning twice from the New York Giants, National League leaders, 3-2 and 9-5. Cantwell blanked the Giants with only three hits in the opener.

Despite the two defeats, the Giants remained five games ahead of St. Louis Cardinals, who split with Pittsburgh. The Cards won the morning game 5-3 behind Bill Hallahan's five-hit hurling but the Bugs came back to win the afternoon clash 4-3 as Ralph Kress drove in Jim Mooney in a southpaw duel.

The Phillies, National League tail-enders, pasted the Brooklyn Dodgers twice, 6-3 and 4-2 with a display of timely hitting featured by Chuck Klein's 17th homer.

Guy Bush and Lefty Stout displayed brilliant elbowing as the Chicago Cubs pile up gave Chicago a 4-0 opening victory over Cincinnati and the latter pitched the Reds to an 8-1 finish.

Cleveland's Indians and the Chicago White Sox, battling for fourth in the American League, split even and remained a half game behind. Cleveland won the opener 5-3 with some snappy fielding behind Willis Hudlin and the Sox pounded Sarge Connally to take the nightcap 9-3.

Bruce Campbell's 10th-inning homer gave St. Louis Browns at 6-5 victory over Detroit in their second clash after the Tigers had pounded out a 7-4 decision.

Knocks and Boosts

On Thursday afternoon practically all the prominent baseball celebrities ever gathered in one ball park will perform in Comiskey Park, Chicago, when two all-star teams, one from the National and another from the Leagues will play an especially arranged game to be played in conjunction with the World's Fair, or Century of Progress, now in progress in the Windy City, which is the cream of the players in both major leagues assembled on opposite sides. The game should be a corker played should be the order of the day.

John J. McGraw, the veteran National League manager, has been named as the special pilot of the National loop entry with Cornelius McGillicuddy (Connie Mack) at the helm of the American League entry All aside fee Club all-important tilt will be long drawn out affair with baseball lovers from all over the world being prospective patrons. The game will undoubtedly be a different angle than does the world's series. The repetition of each player and each league individually as at stake and the greatest ball game in history should ensue.

In all probability Carl Hubbell of the Giants and Lefty of the Toronto Maple Leafs will pitch for the National League, while either Mesers "Lefty" Grove of the Athletics or Gomez of the Yankees will hurl for the junior loop entry. Bill Dickey of Yankee fame will be the opposing receivers. Hal the American League ball park in Chicago been twice as large it would have never accommodated the crowd, that desired to witness this game.

This afternoon Erain Gibbard's charges from Napanee are scheduled to play a league game in Picton. At present the Gibbardites, are trailing a bad third in the Bay of Quinte League, Stirling as it may seem Tommy Fenlier, their newly acquired hurler pitched three of the nicest ball games ever buried in these parts only to have his efforts amount fadionally at the bat. These were the first three games played by the Napanee boys. The Grever-coached crew started to hit the ball and Pelster chipped in up last Saturday's course Pelster cannot be blamed for last Saturday's loss as the fielding of the Napanee outfield was responsible but up to the standard. The Gibbards are, collectively, a better ball club than they show in the league standing and, they have stepped into a little faster company than they enjoyed down in the Leaner County loop last year it must be remembered.

The present standing of the Bay of Quinte loop finds the Picton club sitting on top of the world with five wins and but a single loss. B. A. Fanning's Belleville Victories are second with four wins and but two losses. Then comes the Gibbard A. C. with three wins and three losses. The lowly Brighton club, although they have played good ball is dead, have yet to register a win in their six starts. Incidentally we have seen standing but, they have stepped away than this had Rundle, who covers about at second base for the Brighton team.

Just who will referee tonight's wrestling bouts at the arena is not announced this morning by Promoter Joe Corcoran who, announced however, that he was trying to procure the services of Jack Forbes. Of course, Tommy McClure made a good job of his task here recently and despersonalized to the fans, that he can handle "these big brutes" when the occasion arises. Incidentally Mr. Corcoran intimated to us the fact, that he expected a rough bout between Stanley Pinte and Sander Szabo.

MOOSE KIDS WIN IN 7TH

Score Three Runs to Send Crystalacs Back to Second Place

Staging a seventh innings rally the Junior Moose kids bagged three runs to defeat the league leading Crystalacs and pull them down into second place in Old Hastings County loop when they defeated the "Lacs" kids by the score of 4 to 3 at the Alemite ground last evening.

Behind the steady pitching of Weeks, the Moose returned to form to down the Art Young-coached clan and knock them off their lofty perch. For six innings Jack Hall, on the hilltop for the "Easterders" was invincible only to falter in the seventh, when the "Lodge kids" took advantage of the misplays of the league leaders to come down in front.

Four hits in a row by Munnings, Bennett, Weeks and Brown settled the issue in the last frame. Besides batting masterful ball Weeks led Moose kids with the willow, Brown also collected two hits. Bob Thompson was the only "Lac" hitter to connect for more than one hit, for the losers during the seven innings played, he game was keenly contested and largely attended.

Jack Kidd, catching his first full game behind the bat for the Moose kids, successfully handled the slants of Weeks. Don Thomas was on the receiving end for the Crystalacs and caught his usual steady game.

INTEREST IS RUNNING HIGH

Szabo Will Have to be at Peek of form to Take Pinto

With main bout men appearing in each of the three bouts, Belleville's second wrestling show of the season will be held at the Arena tonight and, judging by the interest displayed in ticket sales, the attendance should be the largest to ever see a mat show here. Featuring the program will be a finish match in which Stanley Pinto, Chicago "mad man" will wrestle Sandor Szabo, Hungarian champion, and it should be a gruelling affair for which no quarter will be asked or given by either man. Szabo, one of the most consistent winners in wrestling will find his reputation in danger for the first time upon the calculations of many highly rated wrestlers during his turbulent career and is confident that he can defeat the Hungarian at any style of game Pinto lives up to his reputation as a mat villain the referee will have a busy evening and so will Mr. Szabo.

For the first time in Belleville Al Resch, who became famous as The Masked Marvel last year, will appear without the mask. He claims he will be more effective than ever and that it has always been a handicap to him having his breathing and forcing him to pay too much attention to the task of preventing his opponents from removing it. He will need to be at his best tonight for his opponent in the semi-final will be Bruno Gorsalitis of Italy who claims he has never been here before, is preceded by a great reputation. Gorsalitis' record shows wins over many prominent wrestlers and he has been promised a main bout at the next show if he can beat Geitzwich.

Caution For Swimmers

(Ontario Safety League)

The advent of hot weather will make bathing beaches and swimming holes of the country, popular places again. And as the summer heat waves the newspapers will give daily reports on deaths by drowning.

Many of those who drown at bathing beaches, are oddly enough, people who can swim. They take risks that those who cannot swim will not take. Those risks very often end disastrously.

When you go swimming — remember:

Cramps are no respector of persons—if you are subject to cramps, better stay out of water.

A strong undertow can carry the best swimmer in the world out to his death.

Treacherous eddies in unfamiliar streams can nullify all your aquatic ability.

Always wait two hours after eating before going into the water.

If you have heart trouble do not go in swimming.

It is wiser and safer to bathe in protected areas only.

Never dive in a spot you do not know. It may not be deep enough.

Do not bathe or swim alone. It is always safer to have companions with you.

PARLEY GOES ON, BARS EXCHANGE, TARIFFS

Bennett Credited With Saving Conference, As Smaller Powers Plead

'As Shadow of Its Former Self Parley Proceeds

BENNETT'S FIGHT

Deadlock Between U. S. And Gold Bloc is Overcome

By George Hambleton
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 6 (CP Cable)—The World Conference is not going to break up, but is still continuing with monetary and tariff matters buried from discussion, while a heavy pall is a shadow of its former self. This decision was reached after further critical meetings of the steering committee of the conference today, and to Prime Minister R. B. Bennett was given a large share of the credit for the fact the conference can proceed at all.

When the steering committee sat again today no one would predict the outcome. The deadlock between the United States and the gold countries led by France, over currency stabilization, is second to indicate it was unlikely for the conference to proceed.

But there was a growing demand, especially among the smaller powers, that the conference go ahead and accomplish whatever it could. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett was one of the leaders in the battle to secure agreement that the conference proceed.

The Canadian premier was also a member of the select drafting committee of the main steering committee which finally found a formula to permit the conference to continue—drastically limited from the broad scope which characterized its birth—but nevertheless still a world conference.

Silver Discussion.

An important reservation from the decision to defer monetary matters however was agreement that the gold countries are willing to discuss the restoration of silver.

Otherwise the conference will proceed under with economic question, barring tariffs.

First word of the vital decision was given the Canadian Press by Premier Bennett himself, as he emerged from the meeting of the steering committee at 6.30 p.m. The conference goes on, he said simply.

The gold countries intimated however they would participate in the monetary discussions in view of the United States refusal to consider currency stabilization at this time.

The Course

The next procedure is for the various sub-committees to meet and consider what can be accomplished. They will then report to the steering committee, which will decide on the business to be attempted.

At the moment exactly what projects the conference can take up is doubtful but there are undoubtedly a number of important matters —in addition to the regulation of production, export and marketing—on only one—left on which the conference may achieve definite results.

The sub-committee will get busy immediately, it was indicated, to map out the work list. The steering committee is to meet again on Monday to received the reports requested from the sub-committees.

The decision of the steering committee was made known in an official communique which said it had adopted unanimously a resolution presented by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, chairman of the conference and of the steering committee, after consultation with his colleagues.

The Resolution

London, July 6—(CP Cable)—The official communique carrying decision of the steering committee that the world conference may proceed read as follows:

"Believing that the Executive (steering committee) is firmly convinced that the work of the conference can be carried on with all possible extent, and as rapidly as possible, and in view of the circumstances that countries on gold find themselves obliged to declare they cannot take part for the moment in any monetary question.

"The Executive has unanimously agreed that, first, every sub-committee should meet at once to proceed to make up a list of questions on which discussion can be carried on with most useful results. Second, to meet as soon as reports of subcommittees have been received in order to make recommendations for the arrangements which ought to be made for the future work of the conference."

Some anxiety is felt in England over the health of Sir John Simon British secretary for foreign affairs, who is suffering from low blood pressure and other complications. BATTLE HEAVY FOG ON WAY TO REYKJAVIK

Had to Fly Blind And Few Feet From Water Most of Trip

LAND SAFELY

After Long Rest Armada Takes off For Labrador

(By Yelyn Stefansson, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Reykjavik, Iceland, July 6 (AP)—Another battle with heavy fog having been successfully ended 96 North American-bound Italian flyers rested here today in anticipation of a second ocean hop to Labrador.

The squadron of 24 seaplanes landed in perfect order late yesterday, conquering wind and fog for at times so bad they had to fly a few feet above the water, from London—Derry, Northern Ireland, 800 miles from here.

Their leader, Air Minister Balo Balbo, said he expected to stay several days before continuing the seven-hop cruise with a flight to Cartwright, Labrador, 1500 miles distant. From Cartwright the route lays to Shediac, N.B., and Montreal.

Thousands on Hills

For more than 200 miles the pilots encountering fog on the trip here, during part of which they had to fly blind, but even so they averaged better than 130 miles an hour, starting at 5 p.m. (1 p.m. Eastern Standard Time), after leaving Londonderry six hours, 50 minutes before.

Thousands of persons crowded the hills around the landing port of Vatnagardar, near here, to greet the Italians, who have placed the Chicago World Fair as their goal. With the arrival of the last triad, which, like the others came down in a graceful landing, General Balbo were above to receive an official welcome.

The hearty greeting which began as the planes alighted in the harbor continued even more enthusiastically when General Balbo arrived at the landing slage by launch from the Vatnagardar Bar and received the civic welcome.

Resemblance to Dead Son Opens New Life For 13 Year Lad

Paterson, N.J., July 6 (AP)—The home of a wealthy silk dyer and such advantages as a college education were ready for a 13 year old orphan boy from Omaha, Neb., today in what seemed like a modern version of the old story of Cinderella and the Prince.

The boy was Peter Christopolis, an inmate of Father Flanagan's Boys' Home near Omaha. A picture of the lad, an orphan since early childhood, was the medium through which he is to become just like a son in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Strengs who live here.

It seemed that Strengs saw the picture of Peter and was struck by the resemblance of his son, Henry, who drowned in Green Pond, N.J., a little over a year ago. As a result arrangements were made to bring Peter in the Strengs household to take the place of the dead boy.

CAT ON EAVES MEOWS BUT STAYS INVISIBLE

Firemen Fail to Discover Whence Came Meows of Distress

A stray cat that had enamored itself to the hearts of an uptown Front street building late Wednesday night, where it kept up a sleep-disturbing meowing, caused residents of the block to turn in an emergency call to No. 2 brigade of the local fire department to come and rescue the feline. With the arrival of the truck and ladders just before midnight, firemen toiled for some time in an effort to locate the animal. They were unsuccessful and returned to quarters. On Thursday morning Assistant Fire Chief Gerald Vance again surveyed the situation, but although the cries of the animal could be heard, the cat was no visible. The small boy will be pressed into service to locate the cat, according to occupants of the building.

DEPRESSION'S BACK BROKEN AVERS DUPRE

"Our imports and exports have increased," the minister said, "unemployment figures are slowly receding from the unbelievable marks of a few months ago. Our industries are reviving and in many cases new men are being taken on. Traffic returns of both railways for the first time in three years have increased to show continued deficits, constructional work has increased by 25 per cent, farm prices are exhibiting decidedly bullish tendencies. Money is circulating more freely. We have signed a trade agreements signed at the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa. We are hopeful concerning the result of a new period of prosperity.

"For all this," said Mr. Dupre, "we must first of all be grateful to Providence and then to Premier R. B. Bennett who in the midst of the worst calamities of depression has remained calm and assured at the helm of the ship of state."

Republican Hits

"When the Conservative Party assumed responsibility for the direction of political affairs in this country, Mr. Bennett had to face one of the greatest economic crisis in her history" said Mr. Dupre at the meeting held in Legion Hospital the skeptical smiles of his opponents. Premier Bennett's determination in entering a period of depression and shouldered the load of guiding a nation should be prepared. It would be an injustice and a calamity to the British West Indies if any such change was made. They had plainly set their part in English history, and the Old Country should remember its responsibilities.

U.S. May Demand British West Indies in Payment of War Debt, Says Jullion

Archdeacon Preaching in London Issues Warning to Britain

PREPARES OPINION

Certain Section in U. S. Already Making Demand He Charges

London, July 6 (C.P. Cable)—Warning the British West Indies might some day be demanded by the United States in payment of the British war debt, and declaration public opinion should be fully prepared, was uttered today by Archdeacon Jullion of St. Kitts, preaching at the annual West Indies service at St. Andrew's Church, Queen Victoria Street.

A certain section of politicians in America were already making such a demand, the Archdeacon said. It might be said that England would never part with the islands as Denmark had parted with the Virgin Islands, but Denmark made equally fervent protestations and then parted with the islands and Reginald had done a similar thing as recently as 1905.

Instances Cited

The Archdeacon referred to the Iles de Los, off French Guinea on the West African coast, now belonging to France. King Edward's cousin, the Archdeacon asserted, was unknown in the last century because the inhabitants believed they had been given away without opportunity of retaining their English privileges, of which they were so proud.

It was unthinkable, said Archdeacon Jullion, that England would ever accede to a demand from the United States for the British West Indies unless public opinion should be prepared. It would be an injustice and a calamity to the British West Indies if any such change was made. They had played their part in English history, and the Old Country should remember its responsibilities.

350 Members of Christ Church Sunday School Enjoy Outing

Mr. Dan Stewart superintendent of the senior school and Mr. Everett Smith, who supervises the Junior School had a busy and they claim, pleasurable day, and were ably assisted by their staff of teachers in looking after the wants and welfare of the juvenile picnickers.

Sports and races were held at the picnic grounds and was enjoyed by scores at the beach. Nothing unusual marred the day such every one had a thoroughly good time. The refreshments of ice cream and lemonade was a lengthy procedure, but to the younger members of the school, these delectables disappeared all too quickly. It was a happy throng that dispersed at the Parish Hall after a most enjoyable outing.

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

"Reunion in Vienna," One of the Greatest Screen Plays Before Public

Movie lovers delighted on Wednesday afternoon and evening in one of the outstanding films of the present season, "Reunion in Vienna," because the film brings not only incomparable acting but also a setting which definitely dates the art scene and pleases the eye, as well as a dramatic study of a problem interesting at all stages of history based on the doctor husband's successful experiment in psychology in which his wife and a banished archduke figure. About many of the scenes hovers the romantic atmosphere enshrined in music of the former Austrian Hapsburg anthem and later the inspiring folk music at the reunions.

The play as originally prepared for the stage by Robert Sherwood was a great success and the film achieves a similar fame. It brings the greatest United States actor of both stage and screen, John Barrymore, in the role of the banished archduke who is now operating a taxicab in Nice. It also brings an outstanding English actress to the screen, Diana Wynyard. Barrymore, with his imperial vein and gives one of the most finished performances of his screen career. Miss Wynyard, who has been in only one picture, "The Archduke Rudolf and the wife of Dr. Brink in the course of the play and her study of the character as the woman who remains true to the trust imposed in her by the doctor, was impressively done.

Frank Morgan, as the doctor husband was very natural. About those three principals the action of the like of whom are rare to be found on the screen.

Movement and reality mark this fine film. The characters are developed into life with the aid of most infinite variety. The scenes from Dr. Brink's home in Vienna, when the former aristocrats come back and to which the banished archduke accompanies, are through sense of that movement call for. The evening ball in the imperial palace or Schonbrunn where the archduke is introduced and where form an admirable introduction to the play as they bring in the waltz from Johann Strauss's ballet and with this she launches into the story.

The film is most satisfying. The quality of old Vienna forms a background and yet there is nothing to upset the most censorious mind as might be had the play been in less able hands and the production of was gifted actress. It has caught a great deal of the spirit of Vienna and interpreted it in the light of a problem play.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION TO MRS. HAYTON

On Thursday evening, June 29th, a large number of friends and pupils met at the home of Mr. Alex. Bateman, when Mrs. Hayton, to spend a social hour with their daughter, Mrs. Mabel Hayton, who has given of her best for the welfare of our school during the past three years as Head.

After singing and music, which was rendered by the open, owing to the extreme heat, the gathering was called to order and the following address was read:

Dear Mrs. Hayton:

We, your friends and pupils of this section, having learned with regret of your approaching departure from our midst, in which you have played an active part, feel we could not let you go without at least coming together in this way to show our esteem toward you.

During your sojourn with us you have endeared to us all, by those admirable qualities which you possess, your many acts of kindness and devotion to others cannot be overlooked, and the deep interest you have taken in every good work will not soon be forgotten. Not only have you conducted your school in a very capable manner, but you have also shown by your unselfishness that time was a mere factor on your part of making others happy as well.

We have gathered here to-night to express in a tangible way our appreciation of your kindness and will now ask you to please accept this clock as a little remembrance from this section, and hope that, although you may not be mingling together in the same way, this little token will bring to you the memory of the days spent in the Bateman School.

"Signed on behalf of your many friends:— Edward Bateman, Cecil Bateman, Arthur Reid, Alex Bateman, Harper Bateman."

Mrs. Hayton replied in a few well spoken words, after which punch and lemonade were served by the hostess.

Wheat Futures Take Bad Bump U.S. Dollar Down

Winnipeg, July 6 (CP)— Wheat futures prices took a sound bumping at the close of trading today as they hurried downward to close fractionally lower. After holding gains of nearly four cents through most of a session marked by heavy buying from all quarters.

They closed at 79 1-4c October at 81 3-4. December at 83 3-8 and May at 87 1-2.

Successive waves of profittaking made slight inroads on advances as support entered the market from a number of sources. Liverpool prices firmed unexpectedly and continental houses showed disposition to buy substantial quantities of wheat. Chicago traders were aided by purchasing from New York.

High point of last week's buying sessions were topped as December wheat climbed above 87 cents. A point it had not reached since September, 1930, and all futures struck into new ground.

Cash grains were dormant throughout but coarse grains futures followed wheat upward, with unusual leads all the way.

New York, July 5 (CP)—Concluding the sharp rise it started late Monday, the Canadian dollar opened 1-2 higher on the foreign exchange market today at 93 1-2 following recent trend opened 3-32 cents stronger at a cable rate of 94.31 1-4.

Paris, July 5 (AP)—The United States dollar closed on the Paris market today at 18.78 francs to the dollar 1-32 higher than yesterday's close 47 centimes from yesterday's close.

Bearcats Win

Delaney's Bearcats of Belleville, visited the local C.P.R. softballers last evening at Memorial Park. Geo Jenkinson for the Bearcats, tamed the locals when he and his teammates allowed but five hits in the nine innings, capturing the game by an 8-4 score. The locals had nine men left on bases, when they could not connect to drive the runs in while Johnson, in centre field, had three costly errors. The Bearcats opened the scoring after Hanna drove a long one to left field for the circuit with Doug Goyer on base. H. Bawden and Murney Green also got four base hits that were poorly fielded by the locals.

Six Trentonians went hitless for the nine innings. Begin started the ball when he clouted out a four base hit into the bay, but he called for only two bases. Kennedy followed with a two base hit to score Bohan and Begin. All in all it was a nice game. Sager went the route for the railroaders.

The line-up:

DUNN-EILERS TEAM MOST INTERESTING ON SCREEN AT BELLE

In their 75th film together since their memorable performances in "Red Dirt," James Dunn and Sally Eilers have the stellar roles in "Hold Me Tight," a new romantic drama from Fox, opening today (Thursday) at the Belle Theatre, says manager for an engagement of two days.

Cast as two young lovers in the midst of the metropolis and its attendant mazes, these two popular young players have the type of characterizations for which they have become known as one of the screen's outstanding teams. They are both employees in the city's largest department store, and both have vivid dreams of success and happiness together. In a series of climaxes that are reported as truly stirring, they overcome obstacles that threaten their well-being at every turn. These obstacles come not only from the outside, but are developed out of their own fears and insecurity.

Each of the characters in the story represents a different type of New Yorker. There are those whose devotion to each other is cemented by the same barriers that separate others. There are some who live for the efforts of others, and those who will surmount all barriers to achieve the happiness they want above anything else.

With much of the story centred in one of the largest department stores of the city, an incidental feature of the production is a view of the latest fashions in every branch of women's apparel.

The cast in support of Dunn and Eilers is headed by that sterling comedian and Belleville favorite, Frank Mcdlugh, and lovely June Clyde, already one of the most popular of the younger screen stars. Others in the cast are Kenneth Thomson, Noel Francis, Dorothy Peterson and Clay Clement.

The Essex Terraplane Special Six has all the built-in ruggedness and endurance that assures long life—the outstanding feature of Hudson-Essex cars.

The type of frame construction used in the Essex Terraplane is known as the X cross member girder frame. It possesses thirty times the rigidity of the conventional double-drop frame.

The Essex Terraplane steel body is just as fundamental a part of the whole car as the frame or the axles or the springs, and it is fastened bolted to the frame by a series of steel (see inset illustration) and by the cowl armscarer and body-pillar anchorages which serve exactly the same purpose in this car as do the reinforced concrete floor-supports and columns in a skyscraper.

This principle of unit-construction made the Essex Terraplane possible.

Durable materials, rugged construction, outstanding performance that captured 46 official A.A.A. records and owner-proved operating economy are combined in the Hudson-Essex Terraplane to give unexcelled value for every dollar.

P. E. MORTON, Publisher

DEAN INGE

The Dean of St. Paul's, London, the "Gloomy Dean" Inge is to retire at 73. His graphic comments upon life of the present century have been so brilliant and so wise that he will be missed for it is clear that upon his retirement will disappear much of the charm and power of his messages.

He may be called "gloomy", but it is well that here and there there should be the contrast which will give the nation or world two sides of view of the condition of things. One cannot accept everything an optimist says for he forgets or slurs over some things while the man with the other view draws attention to those less pleasing things which still have to be recognized in life.

Dean Inge's messages are not all gloom even to the mind of the most optimistic of men and he himself repudiates the charge that he is gloomy. If he has said some dark things about the future of Britain, his very utterances may've have helped to stave off such a calamity and have turned the thinkers and executives of the nation to a course which will avoid the disaster he predicted. Things, of course, may not be as dark as he says.

Yet he has painted some happy pictures of the future, when he foresees a warless world without debts, an almost crimeless world.

The explanation is probably that he is an idealist, who has such hopes of the possibilities of men that their shortcomings shock his hopeful nature. It is only because he is so impressed with the great future facing man with his great dynamic power and his mighty reason that Dean Inge saddens as he sees man missing the full fruition of what might be his.

Dean Inge is not afraid to discuss things of moment to the state. The world of critics and politicians may attack him but they do not question his right to comment, tho' they would battle the views of a man of less power and gifts. Dean Inge has been a voice that was heard.

FOOLING WORMS

Worms trust to the sense of vibration caused by the falling of rain drops on the surface of the ground to tell them that it is raining so that they may come to the top.

On the basis of this fact in nature electrical devices are used by Belleville fishermen whereby the worms are led to "think" by reason of the vibration of electricity which is poured into the ground that it is raining. There may also be the sense of shock which drives the worms in flight to the surface. Whichever of these explanations is the reason for the coming of worms to the surface when two metal rods are stuck in the lawn and the current is turned on, the fact is they do come to the surface without waiting for the lawn to be sprinkled.

Fishermen says the Fountain Inn Tribune, tells of a peculiar method of attracting worms to the surface, by driving down a board into the ground and causing it to vibrate with a howling accompaniment by drawing another board back and forth across the top of the board stuck in the earth. The worms "think" it is raining.

OF INTEREST TO SWIMMERS

Swimmers in Belleville are under a handicap—the lack of a proper beach. This city, blessed with abundance of water to the south and with the river, has no bathing beach.

Under such conditions it is a wonder there are not more water accidents as bathers take to deep water in which many are not particularly expert.

There is another handicap for young bathers particularly. That is in the matter of protection of clothing. Reports have been made of theft of stockings, and other clothing and contents of pockets from the places where they are left on Victoria Park.

These two handicaps ought to be met if possible. It is said that there ought to be a lifeguard stationed at this point for children are reported to take unnecessary risks in venturing out into the harbor or in diving off the end of the platform at the end of the park.

It does seem that there should be some protection so that the clothing of bathers may not be stolen.

At this time it is well to call to mind the advice given in a bulletin of warning by the Ontario Safety League in the matter of swimming in deep water or unknown places.

I have always said, I always will say, that the studious perusal of the sacred volume will make better citizens, better fathers, and better husbands.—Jefferson.

Who can all sense of others' ills escape, is but a brute, at best, in human shape.—Juvenal.

Rare benevolence! the minister of God.—Carlyle.

When Fenelon's library was on fire, "God be praised," he said, "that it is not the dwelling of some poor man."

Tell me with whom thou art found, and I will tell thee who thou art.—Goethe.

IN MAN

Something sublime must dwell in man
That, spite of all mishaps, he can
Through every chance and circumstance,
Still plan and labor, work, advance;
That when, as toil-filled years roll on,
And ebbing energy seems gone,
New burdens come, new urges goad,
His strength wells up to lift the load.

Some dauntless forces must abide
In man; despite the dreams denied,
The glories glimpsed yet not attained,
The goals too lofty to be gained,
The loves and longings unfulfilled,
His hope and faith are never stilled.

Serene through hurry and turmoil,
Unstained by mire, untired by toil,
Akin to dawning and the sea
And touched with twilight's mystery,
Something majestic, noble, high,
Within man's lesser self must lie.

ANNUAL GATHERING OF SUN LIFE AGENTS

Mr. T. B. Macaulay and President E. W. Beatty at C.P.R. Deliver Addresses

Mr. and Mrs. J. Franklin Hinchey have returned to town after a delightful week spent at the annual gathering of agents of the Sun Life of Canada as headquarters for the annual annual gathering of agents after a last-minute change from St. Andrews-by-the-Sea, New Brunswick, a change rendered necessary by the large number who qualified in the closing month of the Company's production Club year.

Over 725 attended the Chateau Frontenac as guests of the Company, the assembly including all the notable fieldmen on this continent. Mr. Hinchey is among the most prominent of the Company's field representatives, he never failing to qualify in the list of Senior members.

Mr. Hinchey represents the Sun Life in Central Ontario, and ever since he started in the life insurance business, 17 years ago, he has had the distinction of leading this territory on behalf of his company

His annual segregate has been comparable to that of other Sun Life representatives in districts much more thickly populated and his unfailing success here is undoubtedly due to his thorough knowledge of the business and the dependence his clients have learned to place in his advice and his unselfish service.

Mr. T. B. Macaulay, President, and Mr. Arthur B. Wood, Vice President and Managing Director, were the guests and in important addresses spoke in enthusiastic terms of the record performances and of the future outlook for the Company. The guests were also welcomed by His Worship the Mayor of Quebec, and Mr. B. A. Dugal, Superintendent of Insurance for the Province of Quebec. One of the most interesting events at the Conference was an inspiring and weighty address by Mr. E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Impressions of Wrestling Given by Society Editor

(By The Society Editor)

We went to a wrestling match last night, with a friend.

In fact, we went to two wrestling matches—one the first and our last.

The whole thing was a matter of being shanghai-ed into going but mostly everyone concerned were happy, when we left. The invitation to visit the wrestling matches had been issued regularly all season by the Sporting Department. This apparent enthusiasm might have warned us. After that time the time when the S.O.'s was never very eager to renew our edmonition to sport. And it was such a trivial thing that day, too. Overhearing a remark about the "pole-fanning" we merely asked if one horse carried a pole. No need of the Sporting Editor to remark, savagely, that "yes, one carried a pole around in his mouth like a bit," nor for the nearby patrons to be convulsed. But the Sports Department has been very ever since.

Well, we went to the wrestling match. It was in the face of great opposition from the Girl Friend. "You're going to a wrestling match?" she repeated incredulously. "Girls don't go to wrestling matches. Only men go to wrestling matches....." "But I....," we interrupted.

"Nobody with any sense at all," ignoring our attempted interruption, "would spend a whole evening watching two great...." she searched for a sufficiently descriptive description, "—two great hulks of men trying to tear each other to pieces when they might be watching John Barrymore or David Manners."

All of which didn't make us anticipate the program with any keen relish. The Girl Friend was wrong, though. There were wrestlers at the match, afternoon tea-ish women, too, as well as the obviously regular wrestling spectators. The former took more interest in the crowd at first, evidently glancing at the program for any length of time but as the matches progressed their interest was aroused until they actually joined in the "fun." Perhaps the feminine visitors knew the wrestlers by their pet names, and the general crowd did not, but they lost no time in mentioning.

Well Dressed

Two stalwart figures finally appeared in the ring, accompanied by a dapper little fellow in white tie-ails. The first entrant was greeted as "Scotty" and was a huge blue dressing gown, green trunks and a smile. His opponent wore a marvelous purple silk dressing gown, with gold monogram, and wine-colour-ed trunks. We decided he must surely be the winner. Such taste in color schemes and just behind our left ear, the loudest bell we ever heard was rung, apparently unnerving us. The chap in white, by the way, was the referee. He searched the wrestlers for concealed weapons ("Grease," corrected our escort, in an undertone.) told them they could play for thirty minutes and would give one fall to foul ("Not one foul—one fall" said the S.E. bitterly, apparently repent of ever having persuaded us to come) and they were up and at it.

Now it took some time to realize what wrestling is all about, but after that, understanding of the technique was easy. If you're a wrestler you are supposed to object violently to the way in which your opponent is put together. So you try to correct the defects in his architecture by twisting his arms, legs and head into a better position on his body. After which you pin his shoulders down for two minutes ("Two seconds" said the S.E. wearily).

There are very few restrictions in the ring. Hair-pulling, kicking and strangling are not allowed. So they really didn't do it more than half the time. Of course there isn't much room in the ring if you like that sort of thing, the crowd won't like it.

People actually enjoy wrestling matches. There is something about seeing two men, locked in each other, twisting their limbs till their faces grow purple, and then squeezing their wrists till their hands are bloodless, breaking through holds with an effort, that nearly bursts blood vessels, that appeals to the sadistic tendencies of a wrestling match audience. As we began to think knuggedly of John Barrymore and David Manners. All the wrestlers looked alike, although Mother slept late. Even the referee had bad tie moments, such as when there was a flurry at the beginning and the referee played tag in and out the ring, with Green Trunks and Purple Dressing Gown shouting "Come up and see me some time"; and the time they did a crack cracking act with the crowd beginning to sing "Rock-a-bye Baby".

Then we found the wrestlers began to get nasty. Hair-pulling you know and strangling and trying to tie each other up in the ropes. The referee was tremendously impartial in wrestling. If you grab the ropes it's the first warning. Your fingers crossed. The other fellow can't touch you. Or if you get outside the ropes, that's good too. Of course your opponent might pull you in. You have to take that chance. The chap getting the worst of it (Sasbo) was so handsome, too, it was a shame.

In the last bout, with twelve minutes to play ("Oh you think that's playing do you," from the crowd) the referee, sarcastically. The crowd was in a fine temper. They didn't like the bald headed man and they didn't like the referee. The men started a private bout in the seats above us and a slender five foot girl reached over, grasped the arm of the anti-fatalist and swung him back to his place beside her, apparently nearly removing the gaze from the ring. By this time we were almost spectators, breaking our compact, twisted our gloves into unrecognizable masses of white and we suffered far more than the wrestlers. Our impressions were a mere jumble of scenes. The final bell almost finished us. We had kept score, unofficially, by reporting Editor, who was mumbling to himself meaningless phrases, and which was the last of the raven, "Nevermore".

Shower For Bride-to-Be

On Friday evening, June 30th, the home of Mrs. H. S. Tuck, 57 Station street, was the scene of a delightful miscellaneous shower arranged by Miss Kathleen Tuck in honor of Miss. George Wright (nee Bessie Barlow), whose wedding took place on July 1st.

After the gifts were all opened and admired by those present, Mrs. Wright expressed her thanks and a cordial invitation was given to all to visit her in their new home.

At the conclusion of the evening a dainty lunch was served. Those assisting Mrs. Tuck and Kathleen to serve were Mrs. R. Fronis, Miss Lillian Sprackett and Little Miss Mary Doreen Dolan.

A Mother on "Strike"

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

My friend is the mother of two girls, aged fourteen and sixteen respectively. We were talking of vacation time, and the mother was excited what, if she were not so surely a well-bred woman, might have been called a snort.

"Lot of vacation I ever get!" she exclaimed, "planning meals for Alice's and Betty's friends, helping to clean up great messes, making tons of sandwiches and gallons of lemonade to meet the unusual hours all summer long.

No, vacation time surely was, in no sense, a vacation, to the mother, and probably for few fathers.

But a few weeks after that conversation that mother went on what amounted to a strike, but it was called a vacation.

A Vacation for Mother

She didn't leave home. She merely stated (and was backed by dad), that she was just going to be a guest for a week and the girls could carry on as best they could. Could they have all the company they wanted? Yes. Could they have parties, picnics, etc.? Surely. But, mother was not going to help either in the preparation nor in the cleaning up afterward.

Mother slept late. Even breakfast She went to pictures, and on short trips with her husband. The girls soon discovered there are two sides to vacation fun, the side they had only been aware of by, and the side mother had known so long. And the latter side included hot work over a stove, back-breaking preparation of sandwiches, weary cleaning up after guests.

These girls learned a good deal during that week, and mother had a delightful time. The daughters offer to help now. They say: "May we have the living over tonight if we'll straighten up the house before we go to bed?" There's a vastly different attitude there now. Personally, I think each mother of adolescent children would do well to take this innovative and illuminating vacation during the summer.

Help The Child To Make Good

(By Constance Cameron)

If you say, "It is going to rain all week," it is not at all probable that your prophesy will be fulfilled. But if you say May was a rainy month never finish anything so long as he lives. He's always beginning things but never completing them," it is quite likely that just that will come to pass. Especially, if you let a child hear you say it.

Children, like all the rest of us, play up to what people think they are or will be. And your faith in your child's ability to do what is right and correct is what, very probably the weightiest factor of all in influencing him. If he grows to believe that you think he will never finish anything, for example, he feels perfectly free to do so. If you decide you are right and quit trying. If, on the other hand, you never over and over that he can finish a project and assist him in doing so a few times, you will be gratified to see that he will, because of cause you've known he would succeed.

You May Be to Blame

If you've ever noticed the varied reactions of children to different people, it shouldn't be easy to determine whether or not you are the cause of your child's shortcomings.

I know a small boy who is loud, rude, blundering and rough in one home, and quiet and courteous in another. And the simple reason for it is that in the one place he is expected to be rough and everlastingly in trouble, while in the other he is expected to be a social human being. He is the same boy. And naturally lives up to what is expected of him in each environment.

The majority of children will do exactly the same. Stop and consider what you expect of your child, then see if he isn't giving forth just that.

Sound Sleep Is a Beauty Essential

And Here's an Easy And Simple Way to Woo Morpheus

(By Helen Follett)

Tension is what keeps one from falling to sleep quickly. Get rid of it by flexing the muscles, stretching full length, relaxing.

A glass of hot milk at bedtime is soothing and comforting to nerve and body.

If the sandman refuses to appear, lie on the back, legs and arms extended, breathe deeply and slowly. Inhale by the air, ease it out. Get rid of disturbing thoughts by forming pleasant ones, recalling delight-ful hours there you have been, quiet moments that remain in your memory. Without restful sleep, good looks cannot be.

That facial treatments must be continued indefinitely else the complexion will fail into a state of depression and collapse is nothing more than an old time superstition. Nuthin' to it!

Methods of facial treatments vary yet they all work for the same reason, cleansing the skin thoroughly stimulating glands and blood streams, urging the skin to functionally and to the layer of epidermal debris. There is also the element of relaxation, as most of these days when life has been kicking one around.

The beauty budget won't permit professional care, bathe face and throat well with soap and water, rinse with warm water, dry, slap in a nourishing oil or tissue cream. Pat from chin to hair line from temple to temple. Treat the throat lightly, tissues there are delicate.

Bathroom gadgets and cosmetics are delightful luxuries, dear to the heart of every woman. Perfume is a strong spray for the purpose of shampooing and to impart the glowing cold shower after the warm scrubbing. A heavy flesh brush is worth its weight in gardenbacks, because, by stimulating the skin all over the body, nerve is kept work to be done by the delicate glands of the face. Select bath salts soap and talcum that carry the same perfume. The best Turkish towels of unbleached linen that absorb water quickly, take Bold like the pangs of a guilty conscience.

Correct Manners

Acknowledging Condolences

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

1. What is the proper form for a bereaved person to acknowledge letters of condolence, floral tributes and so forth?

2. If such an acknowledgement is a printed form have you any particular type letter which you may suggest as somewhat of a form?

C.

1. Yes, every letter of condolence, every gift, must receive an acknowledgement, a letter written by the person to whom it is sent.

2. For a letter of condolence, something like this may be written as an acknowledgement:

Dear Mrs. Delafield,

You were very kind to send me such understanding words of sympathy, and I want you to have all my heart, for your friendly and gracious letter. It was a great comfort to me.

Sincerely,

For a Gift:

Dear Mary,

Thank you, most deeply and sincerely, for your thoughtfulness and charming generosity. Your touches are very much and brought me special pleasure. The fruits were beautiful to look at, served in daintily-packed container, and they were just as delicious to eat as they were beautiful to look at! You were so good to remember my fondness for fruit and always so good to me, and I seem always to be thanking you, Mary! for your sweet thoughtfulness to me.

I've come to see me soon if it is convenient for you.... I am looking forward with such pleasure to your visit, for you are always such a comfort, such a treasure, to me.

Devotedly.

Refusing An Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will (family) have received an invitation to an out-of-town wedding, and are we unable to attend. The invitation requires an answer. Will you kindly write me a sample of such a letter?

2. Would it be all right for Mother to write this letter, or should Mother write it? I am twenty years old and know I am not quite well.

2. The letter should be addressed to the mother of the bride-to-be, should it not?

3. When setting the table with the teaspoon, tablespoon, fork and knife, is the teaspoon placed on the left or right of the spoon and knife?

R.

1. If the invitation is the usual formal one to the reception the regret reads like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allen Jones regret that they are unable to accept

Mr. and Mrs. (Bride's Parents)'s kind invitation for Tuesday, the first of August.

Then each adult member of the family who received the invitation should write a similarly-worded regret.

2. The actual writing of the regret may be done by you, but the writing must be as indicated above.

3. The acknowledgement should be addressed to the person or persons in whose name the invitation is sent.

4. This depends on whether the t.- spoon or the tablespoon is to be used first. That is, the silverplaces are placed at the individual places in the order in which they are to be used by the person eating.... so that the person may start with the silverpiece farthest from the plate and proceed toward the plate.

FINE SPECIMENS OF CANNING PEAS SEEN

Member of Seed Company Sister Crop Pals

"Fancy sweet peas for canning purposes will be a fair crop", stated R. A. Fanning of the Belleville Seed Company today, as the same time laying on the Editorial desk a bundle of peas taken from a field owned by R. B. Kerr, Northport and another owned by Herbert Goodmurphy of Big Island. The Seed Company supply the seed in this district and each year, when the crop matures, a member of the company inspects the crop. Mr. Fanning has inspected the crops all east of Belleville, while his next trip will take him west to Millbrook and down as far as Tweed. There are some beautiful crops in some places and fair crops in others but on the average the crop will be fair," said Mr. Fanning. The peas brought into the office were beautiful bunched on the vines and the pods filled.

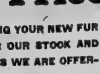
DEVILLED EGG SALAD



LENGTHWISE

Split six hard-boiled eggs lengthwise and remove the yolks. To the yolks add 1½ teaspoonfuls of butter, 1 teaspoonful of cream, 2 tablespoonfuls of vinegar, scant teaspoonful of Keen's Mustard, pinch of cayenne and ¾ teaspoonful of salt. Mix to form a paste. Refill the white of eggs and serve on cold-boiled spinach with mayonnaise.

Please do not forget that teaspoonful of Keen's Mustard. It is very important to the success of this salad. It brings out the true flavour, gives it a real appetizing touch. Not only salads but every kind of fish, meat, poultry, game and cheese are more interesting when eaten with this rare English mustard.

Bartell hitted a high foul to Gehrig who let it slip off of his glove. It was an error on Larruping Lou. The crowd gave him a big rasping but he got the same chance a minute later and hung on to the ball.

CHAPTER 5

Joe never said a word about the wrist watch and Jerry could have sworn he had forgotten all about the gift. Their first meeting after the event was so totally devoid of unpleasant self-consciousness that Jerry could have laughed when she thought her seriously she at first taken the incident.

But that was the difficult thing about Joe. Everything he did was so totally gracious and urbane, so frightfully disarming. Yes, he was a charming person.

Jerry, however, was never again capable of feeling that same quick thrill when he made his daily triumphal entry into the office. She had to admit she was deeply stirred when she thought how forbidden was the fruit, but she hid her own emotions from herself and sternly denied herself the pleasure of thinking romantically about him.

Her curiosity as to the person of Mrs. Middleton knew no bounds and she found herself picturing a tall, silver-haired, cold, impeccably correct matron with a lorgnette, a toy Pomeranian and a slight English accent. Jerry knew she would be frightened to death when she met her and she hoped dreadfully she would say and do the right things.

The office, of course, was abuzz about the coming ball a fashionable has been invited. Brown, the short, smooth fellow with glasses, who handled advertising and publicity; Stein, the business manager; Miss Dowell, the sales manager; Harriet Wilson, Jerry, and one or two others.

To a certain extent the affair split the office into two groups: those who were invited and those who weren't. The girls in the business were frankly scoffed but betrayed an envy in their voices that concealed their real feelings not so much. The department heads were all a trifle worried but most flattered.

Jerry was in a case over the problem of what to wear, and one day, not long before the event, got up enough courage to broach the question to Joe Middleton.

"I'm scared silly about this dinner," she told him. "I don't know what in the world to wear."

"You'd look delightful in a housedress," Joe said. "In fact you'd look marvelous in anything. I can't imagine what you're worrying about. After all, you see these dull people every day at the office."

"To be perfectly frank, I'm worrying about your wife" Jerry blurted out, and then wished she could have cut off her tongue.

"Think nothing of it," said Joe, "just be yourself. She'll like you. She's priceless."

"But I do wish I knew what to wear."

"You're certainly asked the right man about that," said Joe. "When it comes to women's clothes I've got better taste than Paloo...That's an idea. I'll go along and help you choose a dress."

"Oh, no, Mr. Middleton. That would not be right at all" Jerry said.

"Right? Why wouldn't it be right?" Joe asked. "You want some help in picking out the dress don't you? Well, I'm the kind of hero who comes dashing up the last moment to help little girls choose their dress...I'm always doing good deeds like that." Jerry shook her head. He pleaded. She capitulated.

"But it will have to be very reasonable," Jerry warned. "I haven't much money."

"We'll get something well within your means," Joe said, "and some-thing becoming as well. Come on. Get on your coat."

Jerry, feeling very guilty, but arguing with herself that she was doing absolutely the right thing in going to Joe to help her choose the dress, allowed that knight errant to guide her into an elevator and out to his limousine.

He gave the chauffeur the name of an exclusive dress shop in the West and settled back beside Jerry, his hands on top of his cane.

"But I can't possibly pay for a gown from this shop," Jerry protested. "I'll tell the chauffeur to take us down on State street somewhere. Oh, please, Mr. Middleton."

"Now, don't be ridiculous, Jerry. You said you wanted the right thing for the dinner and we're going to get it."

"But I won't be able to pay for it in months."

"We can worry about that after we see the bill."

And now Jerry felt guilty indeed, but she didn't know what to do. She must have the dress and she must have help in selecting it. So she clutched her purse and hoped against hope she could find something marked down to $11.50, which was all she had brought along to buy a dinner gown.

They stopped in front of the smart Michigan avenue shop with its tall doorman who looked like an admiral in the czar's navy at attention. They walked under the sign-ed awning into the shop. The modern metal work and wood-paneled interior was so quiet and unassuming that at first Jerry was a little disappointed.

There was not a dress in sight, but at a word from Joe the really dressed woman who had stepped forward to meet them slid back panels to reveal gowns which were so beautiful Jerry gave a cry of happiness.

Velveta as sheer as georgette with wide shoulder effects and scarfs to match, new rough silk crepes in bright colors, white pebble crepe evening gown of lacy blue wool as sheer as to be almost transparent, gowns of uncut velvet called Bagheera, very soft and dull and in exotic tones. Dresses in the shades of all the berries. Dresses like the stain of blackberries and others like blueberries.

Jerry feasted her eyes on this display and on the tiny hats with weaved veils, the beautiful shoes and gloves and purses in matched sets and all the numerous things she could never own.

It made her sick at heart to see this unattainable apparel there almost within her reach, but unbelievably removed from her because of her poverty.

The quiet woman who had met them at the door led them into a private room where the dresses came and went showing them a score of new creations fresh from Paris.

But after a few minutes of this Jerry wanted desperately to leave. She could never in her life have frocks like those and it would only make her discontented for the rest of her days with the kind of dresses she must wear.

However, she could not help exclaiming when a model with almost her own hair and eyes stepped before them wearing a sheer yellow velvet with a narrow girdle of brown velvet, ribbon, and brown suede pumps and other accessories to match.

"Oh, but I can't buy it," Jerry protested, almost crying. "Please, please, Mr. Jo...Middleton."

"There's no hurry" Joe protested. "Won't you let me watch these girls while? Really, I think this is a very pleasant way to spend an afternoon. And by the way, why don't you slip on a few of these gowns yourself? You are much prettier than any of the models."

"Yes, do, madam," the woman urged.

Jerry hesitated for just a moment, then with a grateful look for both of them slipped into the dressing room and, pulling her little office dress over her head, slithered into a white pebble crepe evening gown she had admired. Through the door she felt shy, parading before Joe Middleton, after a few moments she caught the spirit of the thing and, holding her head proudly, her chin held back, turning gracefully, flashed a little smile at Joe.

After all, this would be her only chance to try on such models and she would make the most of it.

Down she went, she modelled while Joe and the women smiled, and then she emerged in the sheer yellow that felt like so much thistle-down between her fingers. If she could only own it!

"But This Isn't the Right Way", Protested Jerry.

"Yes, the yellow velvet is the one," Joe was saying. "And I feel sure that it is within reach of your pocketbook." He sighed a few words in undertone to the woman beside him, who nodded in approval.

"Why that gown has been marked down to $10," Joe said with evident surprise in his voice, "and I'll be glad to advance the amount for the accessories and take it out of next week's check."

"I'm delirious! That's absolutely impossible," Jerry protested. "It's a new Paris importation."

"No madam, he is perfectly right." the woman said. "The dress trade has been very hard hit by the depression and you are fortunate in choosing a dress which has been drastically reduced in price. The dress is $10 the little jacket $5, the gloves, shoes, hat and purse together or another $10. The total is $25," Jerry could scarcely believe her good fortune, and although she looked searchingly into Joe Middleton's face, there was not so much as a hint of subterfuge visible.

She went back to the dress walking on air and stepped into the limousine as though she were in a princess.

Later that afternoon Joe sent the dress shop a check for $300.

CHAPTER 6

On the night of the dinner at Middleton's Jerry left the office at noon and hurried home to try on her marvelous new clothes, which until then had been undergoing slight alterations. She took an extra long time with her bath and for the first time in over a year she went out to have a hair dresser shampoo her hair and set her attractively.

She manicured her own nails, however, and straightened out her scroll-like eyebrows by plucking a few obstreperous golden hairs.

Then she dressed slowly and carefully before the long mirror in her room pulling on dainty yellow silk step-ins she had purchased to go with her outfit, and then the open-length stockings, and a wisp of a slip. Her gown she wiggled into with great caution so as not to muss her hair and she finished the ensemble with a touch of jasmine behind each ear.

When she was ready even Sarah had to admit enthusiastically she was lovely and the effect she caused around her singing songs.

Jerry was even going to take a taxi on this night of all nights, but when the engineer in the dark doorway of the old house with the street-light shining on her dress and in her eyes she recognized Joe. Joe Middleton's chauffeur and the low black sedan.

"We thought we'd surprise you by bringing around the carriage," Joe said, stepping out of the car to help her in. "Don't spare the horses, Hubert."

Jerry protested vigorously that Mr. Middleton had been extremely nice things to do than drive all the way to the south side to bring her to the dinner. But she settled back warmly in the big comfortable leather seat, while the frosted street lamps flashed by on either side. She felt as nearly perfectly happy as she had ever felt in her life.

She didn't bother to think, or to worry, or to look ahead. She simply let herself be swept along and revel in the luxury of it all. Tomorrow would be time enough to remember that she was only a typist.

As they drove along the Outer Drive with the great dark Century of Progress buildings looming up around them she had the magic feeling of being whisked through a world of romance in a coach as ethereal as Cinderella's.

As a little girl she had often thought of herself as a princess, identifying herself with the heroine in her story books. And she was so on her way to a ball, or at least a dinner, as exciting as any in fiction.

The lighted towers of Chicago's skyline were lit there only as backdrops for this intimate drama, and the autumn lights and the lake were nothing but bits of the scene's stage scenery. Nothing but a stage and she the leading lady.

She was drunk with the loveliness of it all, and her heart exploded until she felt all the world was good and beautiful, and that every one in it was kind, considerate and lovable.

She wondered how she had ever been able to distrust, even for a moment the man who sat beside her. Joyously she told herself he was the good prince in the same fairy story in which she was the Cinderella.

Of course, there were dreadful dangers lying between them and happiness, but in any fairy story these dangers are at least surmountable and every one lives happily ever after.

Then she realized the big sedan had turned eastward, just north of the Administration building and was heading across the bridge to the island where the Planetarium and the little street beach are located.

She looked at Joe, but he, without apparent concern, was lighting a cigarette.

"But this isn't the right way, Jerry protested. "We're supposed to be going to your home and we'll be late in another ten minutes."

"What of it," said Joe Middleton, "dear cuz" said a while don't you think, Jerry?"

"I don't know what you mean, I don't know what you're driving at," Jerry said. Her joie became pale, her dream world tottered about her head.

"I mean," said Joe Middleton, "that you and I are going to come to a little understanding before we go any further. There is no one on the island at this time of night and it will do very well for a tete-a-tete."

Jerry shrank far back in her corner and looked at him through frightened eyes. She jammed her knuckles into her mouth for fear she would scream.

Then suddenly she wasn't afraid. She was the old Jerry. The self-sufficient little panther of a girl, and wildly furious.

"I know what you think, Joe Middleton," she said. "You think you can do with me like you've done with every other girl in your life. You think I'm that kind of girl. You think just because you are paying me $40 a week to be your private secretary I won't dare fight you, that I'm a weak...."

Her voice broke into cry, hysterical sobs.

"You're everything Harriet Wilson said you were and worse.....You're a tiger...you're a tiger...." Jerry stopped, paralyzed. Joe's eyes were shining with the fierce green light she had noticed that first morning. Then the light was gone again.

"I think this is interesting," he said coolly. "I suppose you would call it a woman's intuition. As a matter of fact it was nothing quite so crude. Indeed, I might say you were absolutely wrong.

"What I wanted to suggest was that you are a poor girl with a mother and two children to support, while I am well to do despite the depression and have enough in the bank to satisfy all my wishes.

"You've got a little boy who needs to go to Colorado. And you yourself would like a better place to live with some assurance of an easy life after you are too old to work. You want to be sure Kitten and Jackie and your mother Sarah won't be without food this winter when my bitter weather gets in.

"I was merely going to suggest, my dear, before you went into those perfectly inexcusable hysterics, that I should like to do all these things for you. We'll send Jackie west with a private nurse this week. I've chosen a pretty little place in the north shore with some lake front and trees and a garden where you can take the rest of the family. And then we'll provide a trust fund and

GETTING HEADS TOGETHER AT LONDON CONFERENCE

Perhaps if all delegates had put their heads together as closely as the four shown here the conference would not have failed so perfectly close to disaster as it did. Here is shown (LEFT to RIGHT) Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canada's high commissioner in London; Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Canada's prime minister; Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions in Britain's cabinet; and Rt. Hon. Lord Hailsham, secretary for war in the same cabinet. They are chatting, seriously, just before a session of the conference at Geological Museum, London.

Dear Miss Hughes:

We, the members of Scott's Church take the occasion of conveying to you our appreciation and heartfelt gratitude for the faithful service you have rendered in our Sunday School and choir.

Your fidelity and cheerful disposition has won our admiration and esteem. We realize that yours has not been a service of duty only but a work of love, and it is this motive that has sanctified your labours and made it meet for the Master's approval. We believe you have discharged your duty in the spirit of Him who went about doing good, and we trust that you have his commendation, "he hath done what she could". The Master has said "go work in my Vineyard," and as you have responded to the call, may you realize that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

As a slight token of our regard we ask you to accept this Hymnary and as you use it in future years may it remind you of the pleasant years you have spent with us.

With best wishes for every success and happiness in your new sphere of work, and may you long be spared to participate in the work of building up a sound and capable Canadian citizenship throughout our country.

Signed on behalf of the choir and Sunday School, Lena Dafoe, M. B. Sine, J. A. Lott.

Nationals Take Advantage Of Miscues and Aided by Lusty Clouting Down Dukes

Vinny Utronki Goes Route Limiting Oshawa to Six Bingles

DUKES ERR

Oshawa's Good Hurler, Knox is Combed With Hilltop

Behind the prolific hitting of the Belleville Nationals in the pinches Vinny Utronki hurled the locals to a 5 to 2 victory over the Oshawa Dukes at the local Memorial Park yesterday afternoon, when the local sensationally-biased pitcher "Wally" Knox, or no bit, no run fame in the West Toronto loop, from the hilltop in exactly four innings to win their fourth consecutive victory in the O.B.L.

Utronki was in rare form letting the Dukes down with six bingles and two counters in the third which were earned. With a fast break-ball curve and a perfect control he gave the ex-Renfrew lad literally baffled the hard hitting Dukes to the mat and coasted home to victory. The win gives the Nationals the most formidable position in the Central loop, after a rather drastic early season start. Above all was Manager Fair's choice to stop the Nationals proved no stumbling block to the locals as they hit its offerings quite freely, connecting for seven safeties and nine runs, during the four innings, Knox was laboured on the mound. "Maggie" Frink, who replaced Knox, however, fared somewhat better, although the Mills-managed crew to three safe blows which netted them one tally registered against him in four frames, four in the last part of the Dukes proved costly, when they committed no less than six costly boobles, all of which paved into the eventual scoring. Scaggy double plays on the part of both infields behored.

Class and Knox Got Fair

Class and Knox were the only two Oshawa players to connect with a single blow, while Manager Mills, Utronki and "Chuck" Barrage led the locals with two hits out of four official times at bat. Earl "Sonny" Green, who incidentally excelled himself behind the bat, during the business end of the game, threw in left field, collected one hit out of three official times at bat.

Following two glaring errors and a single to Jex which filled the bases, Utronki connected for a double to right field. Again in the third frame, the Nationals added two more runs when Green walked, Mills was hit on Peacock's offering and both scored on Utronki's single. Five more runs crossed the plate in the fourth in favour in the fourth following three free tickets to first, which netted the four singles. The Dukes scored their two runs in the third following Mills' error, a walk and a single by Class. The Dukes were retired in order in the fourth and the ninth when Class singled and later was forced at second.

The win gives the Nationals five wins and six losses in the league standing. On Saturday next the Mills-managed crew journey to Peterboro for a regular scheduled game, where they hope to duplicate their feats of two days ago and register another win.

Third Straight

ALEX MORRISON says:
Few players seem to be properly organized when it comes to playing a pitch and run play.

The majority worry either about the carry of the ball or about the amount of roll it may get.

To control the amount of roll one must learn first of all to control the flight of the ball.

You can best do this by picking a spot where you want the ball to land. Concentrate all about the roll, just giving all your attention to dropping the ball on this spot.

Of course, having in mind a spot to pitch to doesn't mean that you should forget about keeping your chin back during your swing.

Knocks and Boosts

Apparently "Frenzy" Mills' Nationals are still to be counted in the O.B.L. race this year. Three games three wins; that's not a bad record for any baseball team, but the glaring rather discouraging start. To win from all games in a row three days is news, in this town.

Did you ever stop to think—the Nationals have won four out of their last five played games. The one they lost was against the Peterboro nine here last Wednesday, when they literally handed the champs a ball game on a silver platter," as Hewitt Smith described it.

Vinny Utronki proved a shining example to all young pitchers yesterday. The ex-Renfrew lad experienced little difficulty in stopping the lusty clouting Oshawa hitters despite the fact, that he whiffed only six. The master three pound ball pitcher, that they don't have to strike out every batter, that they're destined forward Canadian nine's famous "rope trick" but the fact is he pitches a smart apparently "wised up" to that one

There's no doubt but that Al Getzewitch lost his prestige when he doffed his famous mask. His manager, however, was still well to the fore, when he took a laugh bender in Brune Gorasino and returned his victor hat, not before the lid-lifter had given the fans more action than they have witnessed in many moons.

As far as the fans were concerned the main bout was a dismal failure. To see the Hungarian Adonis, Sandor Szabo defeated by such a "Willard" as Stanley Pinto was really dreadful. To be fair with Pinto, however, it might be well to remember that he gave the Hungarian the well known works to gain the only fall. Of course we think, that Pinto did foul Szabo to gain that first time but all's fair in war and "rassling" they say.

Promoter Joe Corcoran naturally was disappointed with the crowd, especially after bringing in town such wrestling celebrities as Szabo, Pinto, McCready and McDougall, but he informed us, after the bouts that his boys would be back sirontinued the main bout was a fiasco. Personally we'd like to see McCready and Szabo in a main bout at the local arena. It should pack 'em in if such a thing can be accomplished. All in all the bouts were excellent and deserved a better patronage than was on hand.

BETWEEN INNINGS

STUFFY MINNIS, first baseman, and Frank Baker, third baseman, were the only members of the world champ Philadelphia quartet, in recent years McInnis has been a baseball coach, and a good one.

x x x

DONNIE MACKWING the diminutive boss of the 1914 world series, broke up his great infield record by calling Barry to the Red Sox. Jack became a Boston hero at second base, which position he played almost as well as he had the short post for Mack.

x x x

ED BARROW, incidentally now business manager of the New York Yankees, bossed the Red Sox to their last pennant—in 1918 during the abbreviated season, cut short by the World War.

BARRY has managed the Red Sox before. He piloted the club in 1917 and finished second to a great Chicago White Sox team. After Harry Frazee, then club's owner, decided to let Ed Barrow boss the club Jack resigned.

HOLY CROSS college in recent years has employed Barry as coach. Holy Cross has always been a power in intercollegiate baseball and under Barry the Worcester school's diamond fortunes were enhanced.

THE GIANTS are where they are because the Polo Grounds just suits them as a playing field. The New York club has won approximately seven out of every 10 home games which offsets really bad work on the road.

Spying on Sports

BY
William Ritt
Central Press Canadian

IN THE SELECTION of John McGraw and Connie Mack as managers of the first teams in the century of Progress inter-league baseball game, the two greatest managerial rivals of the modern baseball era are brought together again as friendly foes.

Twenty years have passed since Connie Mack and "Johnny Mack" as one old baseball doggerel had it bossed opposing clubs in a world series. Therefore, the present generation of fans know nothing of the Mack-McGraw rivalry.

However, in the first decade and a half of the present century the struggles between Mack coached teams and McGraw bossed clubs were considered great spectacles and they were.

x x x

MACK CROSSED McGraw's path in a world series for the first time in 1905. However they had known each other for many years before.

Mack had been catcher and then manager for the Pittsburgh club in the old National league when McGraw was with Baltimore. When the American league was formed Mack was made manager of the Philadelphia team and McGraw was appointed pilot of the Baltimore club.

McGraw's sudden quitting of his Baltimore job and the equally sudden transfer of his affections to the National league club, New York, in 1903, naturally did not make his old Baltimore chum his most friendly friendlier toward him. So the first Mack-McGraw battle was for blood.

x x x

THE GIANTS won the first clash with the Mackmen, four games to one. The New York pitching staff of Christy Mathewson, Joe Wilhelm, Joe McGinnity and Leon Ames was just too much for the A's.

Connie Mack gained revenge in 1911, when the men of McGraw and Mack met in the world series. The A's took this series four games out of five.

The last time the two clubs met was in the 1913 world series and again Connie Mack's crew was victor—four games to one.

Fourteen hits was the total game for the winners, even though he was yanked with the bases full and no one out in the seventh. Jamieson finished by striking out the last two batters to face him and retiring the next in the third and Calladine, who relieved him, allowed five ball the remainder of the game.

Stanley Pinto, Chicago Bad Man, Earns a Decision Over Sandor Szabo in Fast Bout

Only One Fall in The One Hour Limit Bout

QUITE ROUGH

Getzewitch, MacCready Earn Wins Over Gorasini and McDougall

In a fast, rippling bout that was marked with plenty of action and rough work in the Arena last evening, Stanley Pinto, Chicago, bad man and villain of the ring, came through a gruelling bout with the Hungarian champion, Sandor Szabo to emerge a winner over the adonis of the ring in just less than forty-three minutes of their scheduled one hour go. Prior to form, Pinto upset the calculations of the ring experts in Lore a win over his fair working rival. Four hundred or more fans, with a large percentage of pugilistic specialists, seated in the Arena booed the hard-working Pinto to a well deserved win.

It was a rough bout that had the fans standing on their feet a time or two through the go. Pinto, long known as the rough-house expert, showed plenty of the stuff that makes the fans mad. Szabo, on the other hand, displayed a willingness to mix it that was heartening to the rabid, cheering crowd. Three times the bad man of the ring was forced through the ropes by the hard working Szabo, and as many times the villain returned again to take up the ring rough stuff in spite of the referee's warning against the dirty work. The first fall came in 41 minutes and 22 seconds, with a reverse suplex hold by Pinto. Caught unprepared the Hungarian champion was surprised by the ball. In the second round of the bout Szabo came back to wipe out the first reverse with an easy fall. In this he was disappointed. The bell rang for the end of the round before the Hungarian champ could get started.

Unmasked Marvel Wins

Al Getzwitch, unmasked marvel, cordially disliked by local fans, met a tough foe in the person of Bruno Gorassini, Italy, who brought with him to the local ring a reputation for having beaten leading heavyweights, and a willingness to mix it. In spite of the rough house tactics of his opponent, Getzewitch managed to down his main after a hectic struggle of 19 minutes of the forty-five minute scheduled bout. Unhampered by the customary mask the Marvel staged one of the cleanest matches seen in the local ring. Flying tackles featured the work of the fast moving Gorasaini, while the more methodical Getzewitch favored the more orthodox holds well known to local fans. Rough work on the part of the swarthy Italian earned Getzewitch some hard earned sympathy by the crowd, who had generally regarded him with a hostile attitude. Neat, clean wrestling in spite of the shady antics of the scoring Gorasini resulted in a clean fall in record time.

In a whirlwind finish with a flying body scissors, Hugh MacCready, Canadian champion, bested Belleville's popular favorite, Scotty MacCready in 23 minutes and 45 seconds of the scheduled half hour bout. MacDougal, losing all the old time form that has made him a favorite with local fans, met the Canadian champion a rough bout, marked with hectic scrapping. Early opened the attack with the fast moving MacCready with a series of flying tackles, displaying also a willingness to rough it with the champion. Clean wrestling and scientific holds throughout the bout gave fans one of the best exhibitions of the evening.

AFTER YOU II AGAIN LEADS

Maurice Callaghan Well Ahead in Points For "A" Class Punts

Favored by a perfect breeze, which made the day an ideal one for the fin races, the "After You II", Callaghan power boat, romped home again a winner in the sailing punt races held in harbor Wednesday afternoon in the record time of one hour and forty-five minutes and 40 seconds, to beat the nearest contender, the "Volunteer," owned by Bemark, by a comfortable margin. Boulter's boat, the recently launched "Joka," entered in the "A" class races for the first time, raced third as the third entry.

In "B" Class, Scrapper owned by Keller managed to nose out the "Mary Lou," owned by Flinder, and the "Let's Go," owned by Kellaway in the time of one hour and forty-two minutes and three seconds.

In "C" Class, the Zephyr, owned by Carnighan, and the Sea Sled, owned by "Skippy," Pringle's boat and the "Tools," Pepper-owned, in the time of one hour and forty minutes and thirty seconds.

Interest ran high in the "D" Class races as the "Ron Wallace," Sallee-owned boat, walloped home in a heavy sail, beating the "Isabel," Charles Dolan's craft, in the time of one hour, forty-seven minutes and thirty seconds.

Dr. "C." Morgan acted as official timekeeper for the start of the races, assisted by William 'King' Rogers, official starter.

Regular weekly races from now on will be for cup points.

NEWARK BEARS SAIL ALONG

Rochester And Toronto Keep Close to Top Place Team

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

While the Newark Bears are sailing along in the top flight of the International League field, the Rochester Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs are staging a real duel for the runner-up honors.

The Redwings swung back into the limit of the fight yesterday with an 8-3 victory over Albany Senators after dropping two straight, while the Leafs accounted for their third successive triumph by turning back Baltimore, 8-7.

Fritz Ostermueller was largely responsible for the Wings' victory as he pitched to Pat Fullis, victory of season. His team-mates gave valuable assistance with their bats, getting to Al Sherdy for 13 blows, including two doubles by Art Shires.

Les Mallon was the important cog in Toronto's conquest, pounding out three hits, including a triple and a double. The triple, hit in the 8th inning, sent Bill Lawrence home with what proved to be the winning run after the Orioles had overcome a six run lead piled up by the Leafs at the expense of Gowell Claset's wildness in the first two innings.

The Montreal Royals shaved the Jersey City Skeeters a little deeper into the cellar with a 10 inning victory by the score of 3-2. The defeat was Jersey City's ninth straight and the 12th. in the last 14 starts.

Bill Piggatzki, Jersey City outfielder, tied up the score in the ninth with a home run but Oscar Roettger and John Whitehead together a pair of doubles in the tenth to win the game.

The combination of early and heavy hitting and the collapse of Buffalo's defense enabled Newark to hold its four-game lead over Toronto and Rochester by pummeling the Bisons 12-5 in a long night game.

KINGSTON PROTESTS TO WEST TORONTO LOOP

Claims Teams Sent for Games Not Regular Entries

Kingston, July 6—The executive of the Kingston Baseball Club has decided to protest to the West Toronto League on the quality of ball teams being sent to Kingston for league games. In the opinion of the Kingston executive, these are just scrub teams and President Richard Mansell will be informed that they are not playing a satisfactory brand of ball. Kingston had been assured at the beginning of the season that West Toronto League teams would come here at all summer, but so far only two have been one-sided. The local executive claims that they are putting up a heavy guarantee, and want to be assured of good ball teams. The local executive will ask the Toronto Terriers for holding up the game on Saturday one-half hour.

WRESTLING RESULTS

Stanley Finie, 238, winner over Sandor Szabo, 208 . Decision at end of hour limit, Finie securing one fall in 43 minutes.

Al Getzaff, 215, winner over Scotty MacDougall, 215 in 23 minutes 45 seconds.

Tommy McClure, referee.

This is the third of a series of brief illustrated lessons in which outstanding professional golfers show how the average golfer may improve his game.

Ed Dudley (LEFT) and Walter Hagen illustrate some important points about driving. The swing must be made on a line from the inside out, with a slight natural hip movement to the right. The weight must be shifted with the swing to the right side of the back-swing and forward on the swing, for the body must be perfectly balanced throughout the stroke.

In driving the swing should describe a perfect arc and be completed. Dudley illustrates an error; he has cut short his swing; while Hagen's stroke is in perfect form.

In all shots, but particularly in driving, when the freedom of the movement tempts th head to waver, the Head must be absolutely fixed until the ball is away. It must stay as rigid as if there were no pivot in the neck.

Swinging with the head kept fixed should be practised over and over until this habit of anchoring is is acquired as a habit.

FORMER CHAMP AND FIANCEE

The couple will wed this month, according to a recent announcement and will then visit the United States, where the ex-champion hopes to obtain another ring engagement with Max Barr, who defeated him in the ring at the Yankee stadium, New York, early in June.

To your credit be it said that in the future our lives will be influenced by these labours with us. May this rose bowl ever remind you of your success and the Ridge Road School and in a little way express to you our appreciation of your work and our wish for your continued success in life. Signed:

Dear Miss Neal:

It is with regret that we, your pupils and friends of S. S. No. 3, Rawdon have gathered here tonight to say farewell to you, as you depart from our midst.

Both in the section and in our school we have esteemed you highly and words cannot express our gratitude to you for the help rendered among us for the past four years.

We, as pupils, have often marvelled at your kind disposition, and your patience, as you have guided our steps along the paths of learning. We know, we have often tried your patience sorely, but in the years to come we are sure your work will bear fruit, both by your teachings and the example you have set before us.

Before each one of us lies the future, and may we say, you have played no small part in our young lives.

Our best wishes follow you, and thus ye ask your reward, and may we truly say:

"When the wonderful hues of sunset,
Turn to purple, green and gold,
Then think of me my darling,
Most gorgeous to behold.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

So the cannibals did not kill Esteban. As he did not escape and no more was heard from him Tarzan believed they had captured the real Tarzan and not the rivrl god. But never were they quite sure and to this fact Esteban owed his life for the fairly good treatment he received. Thus was the Spaniard, possessor of the most fabulous hoard of diamonds that the world have ever known, condemned to life imprisonment in the village of Obobe, the cannibal.

Meanwhile, his traitorous confederate Owasa, from the opposite bank of the river where he and Esteban had buried the golden lingots, saw Tarzan and his Waziri give up their search for the gold and depart, baffled. Next morning Owasa came with some fifty men and digging up the gold, started with it toward the coast. Several nights after, he camped outside the village of a minor chief who was weak in warriors.

Over some powerful native brew Owasa wazed talkative. His host had already learned from Owasa's porters that they were carrying a great deal of yellow gold. A crafty smile crossed the face of the old chief. "It is very heavy for your boys to carry that load in the hot sun," he suggested. "I should know a white man who will give you a little piece of paper for it which you can take to the coast instead and get full value for your gold."

Owasa was pleased with the idea. How he would have to pay his carriers but a trifle. The carriers too, were hungry, for they quilled the long journey and were anxious to go home. "Who is the man who will buy it? And where is he?" inquired the chief. "Tomorrow, if you wish, I will lead you to him and you can take with you all your gold." Owasa consulted his satisfaction and helped himself to more wine.

FULL AGENDA CONTINUES, GOLD BLOC LOSES

Monetary Problems Back In Agenda After All-Day Battle In Conference

France Sees Britain as Standing Against Gold Bloc

U. S. THESIS

Chancellor's Stand is Supported by Britain, East and Latin Nations

(By Dewitt Mackenzie)

LONDON, July 7.—(AP)—The European Gold Bloc led its fight for exclusion of monetary questions from the immediate agenda of the World Economic Conference today when the sub-committee of immediate measures for financial reconstruction voted 26 to 15 to continue to discuss monetary problems.

The vote came after an all-day battle over the proposal by Neville Chamberlain, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, that the full agenda be continued, including monetary matters which the gold countries have been strongly opposed.

The British Dominions, Scandinavia and the countries of the Far East and Latin America lined up almost solidly with Mr. Chamberlain's position, which supports the American Thesis.

Among those supporting the Gold Bloc in Demanding elimination of monetary issues until currency stabilization should be accomplished were Spain, Lithuania, Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Turkey.

The decision, which was in a sub-committee of the monetary commission will be reported to the Steering Committee Monday for confirmation or reversal.

The committee on commercial policy, a subordinate group of the Economic Commission, voted a few hours earlier to restrict discussion of tariffs quota questions for revised agenda, approving a French demand by eight votes to seven.

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 7.—The French delegation to the world economic conference was described today as fearing that Great Britain is on the verge of breaking openly with the gold bloc.

Pushed by Dominions favoring immediate price-raising schemes the British government yesterday parted with the French on the question of adjournment of the conference.

The French group arrived at the parley today to find that the pound was falling on the Paris exchange for the first time in months. The pound opened in Paris at slightly more than 84 francs whereas it has been resting at about 86.

It was reported in conference circles yesterday that Canada and Australia were seeking to have the London government divorce the pound from the gold-backed franc and permit it to fluctuate with the dollar.

Price Raising Considered

It was said today, that Britain is veering toward consultation with the Dominions and the United States of price raising projects.

A discussion upon the probabilities in this event was postponed authoritatively to have taken place today in the Cabinet delegation.

Neville Chamberlain, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, added fuel to the fire of London's wrestling away from the gold group when he asked the conference today to continue discussion of the entire agenda including monetary problems, despite objections of the gold countries.

Georges Bonnet, French Finance Minister, at this suggestion rose and expressed astonishment at the Chancellor's attitude. He said the gold bloc thought its monetary resolutions were successfully eliminated yesterday from the program.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Charleston, W. Va., July 7 (AP)—Dr. Clark Clemson, of Cleveland had been married to Ina Hamsburg and silently said goodbye to about $1,000.

E. L. Ward of Charleston, saw a pocketbook on the highway. He reported his discovery to the Charleston Auto Club. Dr. Clemson was reached at the Charleston Hotel and the purse returned.

Ward's comment was, if figuring the owner was going to Charleston anyway, was the position of the pocketbook in the road."

New York, July 7 (AP)—When Mayor O'Brien arrived to lend official dignity to the wedding for 2,000 tenement children, police tried to find a friend to sing the fine old lyrics, "East Side, West Side." They gave up, however, because only the friend should know the song, and instead everybody sang "you're good one in the palm of your hand."

Chicago, July 7 (AP)—The latest police development is the period detail.

It was established by Judge Lane Bidwell's determine in Municipal Court that Mayor Anton J. Cermak's pretext making machine violates a law banning disturbances of the peace after 11 p.m.

Seven witnesses said the pretext business starts at 1 a.m. Several others said they never heard a rattle until 4 a.m.

NEW YORK, July 7—(AP)—James Connolly has a dirty job.

SHUTE, WOOD TIE FOR OPEN GOLF TITLE

Each Scores 292 For 72 Holes And Will Shoot Off Saturday

GREAT FINISH

Gene Sarazen Loses Title by One Stroke to The Pair

St. Andrews, Scotland, July 7—(AP)—Two youthful American professionals, Denmarie Shute of Philadelphia and Craig Wood of Deal, New Jersey, today tied for the British open golf championship with totals of 292 each for the 72 holes in one of the most spectacular finishes in the tournament's history.

Shute and Wood will play off at 10 holes tomorrow for the title lost by Gene Sarazen by a single stroke.

Ted Easterbrook Jr., boy of the British homebreeds, failed in the final challenge to the leaders after a day of startling disaster to some of the greatest shotmakers in golf.

Easterbrook took a 77 for his last round and fell just a stroke short of tying Shute and Wood. His total of 293 put the Briton in a deadlock for third place with Gene Sarazen and Leo Diegel as the American homebreds took four on the last hole in a vicious finishing drive.

A seven on No. 14—the day's jinx hole from many fawrites—cost Easterbrook his chance for at least a tie. Just as an eight for Sarazen on the same hole cost his championship ambitions. On the same hole on the morning, seven started Wallace Ouimet, Canadian No. 1, on his last round for a total of 101 after beating the field for two days.

Shute had four 72's, even par all the way, for his aggregate of 292 while Wood shot 71-72-68-75. The 72 holes brought the young British open trophy to the United States for the 10th straight year.

AUSTRALIAN STAR WINS

Crawford Defeats Ellsworth Vines, U.S. Star in Five Sets

WIMBLEDON, England, July 7—(AP)— Jack Crawford, Australian star, won the final round of the men's singles and Wimbledon championship from Ellsworth Vines today, 4-6, 11-9, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.

Vines had won the first set at 6-4 but Crawford then came back to run off the next two, the third at 6-3 and the fourth at 6-2.

Then in the fifth set at 6-4 but Crawford then came back to run off the next two, the third at 6-3 and the fourth at 6-2.

When the American came flashing back with his weapons of attack and seized the match it seemed as though he had the championship again in his mercy. But Crawford, a real stylist of the game, refused to crack and as Vines was not to be denied and smashed through to victory to gain the leading player of the world.

BENNETT ONLY IS STEADFAST

Yorkshire Post Calls Him Mark Antony and Others Crowd

LONDON, July 7.—(CP)—Assertion that Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada leading with the United States the fight to save the World Conference told the Steering Committee Friday would be the "death knell" of democracy was made today by the Yorkshire Post.

Commenting on the developments the Post said: "At last night's showing many of the Conference personnel were as unaware as the crowd in "Julius Caesar." The Mark Antony of the crowd was Mr. Bennett. I quote from report in the Steering Committee he made an impassioned speech in favor of continuance and said that if the Conference adjourned it would never come back; nothing would be gone and failure would be the death knell of Democracy."

ESCAPE BURIAL UNDER TONS OF FALLING SAND

London, Ont., July 7 (CP)—Four London women narrowly escaped burial under tons of sand at Port Stanley yesterday and then had the embarrassing experience of their bathing 30 miles in their wet bathing suits.

Mrs. Harry Pope and her three companions were in the water 20 yards from a boy scout camp and while waiting for the boys to complete exercises went for a swim down the beach.

They changed their clothes under an overhanging cliff. When they returned from the plunge they found the cliff had crashed. Their clothes, purses, jewelry were buried beyond recovery.

English Public School Boys and Relations with Working Classes

London, July 7—(CP Cable)—London was studying with keen interest today remarks about British public school boys and the working classes uttered during debate in the House of Lords last evening. English public school boys are, of course the sons of the upper classes who attend the historic schools like Eton and Harrow.

Lord Polwarth, Labor peer, was speaking during debate on a bill which seeks to establish an "official mind" in the mentropolitan police force, recruited from the public schools instead of from the ranks.

"It would be grotesque for me to declare I know the working classes", Lord Polwarth said and Ironian confessed. "I do not. Have I ever walked the streets looking for a job? Have I ever been uncertain where my shelter was? Of course not."

Lord Sanderson, the blind Labor peer, aroused dissent however when he declared most public school boys had never spoken to a working man in their lives, beyond their father's chauffeur or gardener.

Washington, July 7 (AP)—The United States coast guard cutter Northland was 300 miles from Anadyr, Siberia, yesterday searching for Jimmy Mattern, the aviator, and was expected today by coast officials to get in touch with him at Anadyr.

Chicago Sports Notice

Chicago, July 7 (AP)— The Chicago sponsors of Jimmy Mattern's attempted 'round-the-world flight today received a cablegram which they believed to be direct from him.

The message, slightly garbled, was interpreted to read:

"Safe Anadir, Chukotka, Siberia. (Signed) Gemmy Mattern."

The message, was delivered to S. J. Beckett, one of the backers of the flight.

Beckett said the message might have been sent by an official near the Siberia Anadyr, but that he believed it was from Mattern himself.

Both Beckett and H. B. Ramsden, another backer of the flight, said they would be glad to finance another flight by Mattern to enable him in completing the present one.

The plan for the present flight called for a hop to Edmonton after Mattern reached there. Preparations to receive the flyer were already completed at the Alberta City when word of his flight came.

LONDON, July 7.—(AP)—A Reuters dispatch from Moscow said that James Mattern, American aviator, believed to be on an attempted round-the-world flight, is safe at Anadyr Chukotsk, Siberia.

The message was sent from the town of Bocharova at 11 p.m. July 5, and was received here in mid-afternoon today.

The American flyer's message gave no details of his situation and air force and official quarters here were without any information of him.

His Course

The news of the flier, who had been unreported till this late left Kiakhta, Siberia, July 1, was received with jubilation in Soviet aviation circles when it had been learned that if the aviator had been forcing down on land he had a good chance of escaping alive and quite the fact it would take him a long time to communicate with the outside world.

The fact that so much time elapsed between his descent and dispatch of the message indicated he may have come down at some distance from any habitation, making the search for him in dead sea very laboriously to the nearest village.

That section of Siberia is sparsely settled.

"Lost" Since June 15

New York, July 7 (AP) — James Mattern, around the world flyer, reported found safe at Anadir Chukotsk, Siberia, today, had been unreported since June 15 when he left Khabarovsk on a hop to Nome, Alaska, it was learned here today.

Mattern started his flight around the world from Floyd Bennett Field, New York, and made his first landing 34 hours later off the coast of Khabarovsk. From there he flew to Otsk, thence to Moscow and on June 15 took off on a long flight over Siberia. The next day he reached Omsk and after a stop of 12 hours took off again.

He was unreported for more than 24 hours but it was finally learned that he was forced down by motor trouble and that the plane's tail was damaged in the landing. He finally reached Khabarovsk on June 19, one week after the start in New York.

He started for Nome, Alaska, on June 15 but was forced to back-track because of bad weather. He hoped on his second attempt to reach Nome and then resume his flight around the world.

Texas Born

Mattern, a native of San Angelo, Tex., was attempting to break the world flight record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty of eight days, 15 hours and 51 minutes.

On June 29 a rescue expedition leading Fred Melchior, veteran Alaskan test pilot, started off from Floyd Bennett Field in search of Mattern. The rescue plane reached B.C., where it was held by bad weather.

Wife Is Overjoyed

Walla Walla, Wash., July 7 (AP) —"That's the news I've been waiting for. Isn't it just wonderful. I know he was safe all the time."

Mrs. James Mattern thus greeted news from the Associated Press that her flying husband had been safely found in Northeastern Siberia today.

"Jimmy always has the faculty of landing safe at himself" Mrs. Mattern said proudly.

ADMISSION IS INADVERTANT

George Lawrence in Answering Statement Incriminates Self

When he stepped into the witness box after pleading guilty to a charge of vagrancy, to answer statements by Constable Wickett, George Lawrence, of Shirley in his anxiety to clear himself inadvertently admitted the theft of a gold watch from Arthur Munroe, a friend and neighbour, in the police court's proceedings held before Magistrate Mikel this morning.

Lawrence had been arrested by Town Constable Wickett of Shirley and Provincial Constable Kelly on a nominal charge of vagrancy, after the watch had been reported stolen. Lawrence at that time denied all knowledge of the whereabouts of the timepiece despite the fact, on June 28th last he had been asked to enter the Munroe home while the occupants were absent.

After hearing the evidence submitted by the crown on the charge of vagrancy, His Worship asked Lawrence if he wished to give evidence on his own behalf. The accused man told of going to the Munroe home to visit. He said he knocked upon the front door and after receiving no answer went in as the door was unlocked. Ascertaining that no person was home Lawrence claimed, that he started out of the door, when he saw the gold watch hanging on the wall. "I took it home and carefully hid it because Mr. Munroe had borrowed some things from us and never returned them," stated the prisoner. "Of course I intended to return it to him when the Munroes gave us back our belongings," the accused went on rather bonchalantly.

"Charge this man with breaking, entering and stealing the theft of a gold watch," commended Crown Attorney Brennan K.C. When the crown's case was laid, Lawrence pleaded guilty to the charge and sentence was adjourned until next week. In the meantime Lawrence is remanded to accompany the police to his home in Stirling and reveal the hiding place of the timepiece.

DR. J. SEMPLE INDUCTED AT BRIDGE STREET

Many Ministers and Large Congregation Are Present

With impressive ceremony, Rev. Dr. James Semple, formerly of Smith's Falls, was inducted into the pastoral charge of Bridge Street United Church on Thursday evening. Many minister of the presbytery and a large number of the members of the congregation of Bridge Street and of other churches attended the ceremony.

Rev. Harold B. Neal of Holloway Street United Church, who had arranged the service, presided. Rev. J. E. Beckell read the lesson and Principal Dr. Charles W. Bishop of Albert College offered prayer. The induction sermon was delivered by Rev. Harry Clarke of Bethesda St. Church, Kingston, and Rev. A. J. Wilson, of St. Andrew's Church, Napanee, addressed the newly inducted minister. Dr. Semple took his place at the pulpit at the close announced the last hymn and pronounced the benediction. Rev. Mr. Neal read a telegram of congratulation from the chairman of the conference to Dr. Semple.

The hymns for the occasion were "Onto the Hills I Lift Mine Eyes", "Breathe On Me, Breathe of God", and "Lord, Speak to Me that I May Speak."

Induction Ceremony

The induction ceremony was taken by Rev. T. H. Anderson, chairman of the Belleville presbytery. Members of the board of the church congregation sat behind the new minister and his sponsors and at this juncture Mr. Fred S. Deacon, on their behalf and on behalf of the congregation, duly replied to the question accepting Rev. Dr. Semple as minister of the charge. Rev. Dr. Semple in his turn accepted the office of ministry of the church. Descending from the platform, Rev. Dr. Anderson and other ministers extending the hand of fellowship to Dr. Semple. Similarly on behalf of the Reformed Episcopal Church joining in his welcome into the presbytery. The congregation stood for the prayer rite proceeded and during the prayer.

Rev. H. Clarke of Kingston, in the induction sermon, spoke of the church and its contribution to the world. Internal disunity had been the weapon by which Satan had most potent than heathenism, he said. The attacks of disillusionment and wife leveled at the church had failed and shake it, but sectarianism and schism had disturbed its progress. Mr. Clarke referring to the place the church can play in world affairs, its screw and the stake to enforce adherence to the faith of Christ. He said that history had not been able to record a more iniquitous institution than the Inquisition.

A Story

Sectarianism is a grave danger. While Mr. Clarke was chaplain on a ship at Vladivostok, a storm arose and an ice-chest broke loose from crushing a lad of nineteen. It was realized that he could not long survive and Mr. Clarke felt that he should administer as a minister of religion in his dying moments. The youth was a Roman Catholic and there was no priest aboard. Mr. Clarke felt that it was his duty to bring the consolation of faith to the dying boy in a manner resembling as closely as possible that of his own church. He consulted Catholic officers aboard who agreed and told the minister as far as he knew the rite for the dying and Mr. Clarke officiated. Shortly after with the Pater Noster on his lips the boy passed into the eternal world.

This story one can gather in Nova Scotia and an old minister, who was a friend of his, took Mr. Clarke strongly to task for what he had done. Mr. Clarke said, "Perhaps I was wrong, but-I have never felt that way. I realized I was acting under divine guidance."

Difference

"Our fathers were not wrong in setting up different denominations, but these have lost their meaning so that today religious differences are spots on the fair face of the church. Yet the church has grown on because she is the bride of Jesus Christ," said Mr. Clarke.

"Why have we only one Christ?" he asked. "We have had philosophers, statesmen, poets without many, but only one Christ. Why did God create only one Christ? With His peerless hands He has lifted empires out of their lingue and He still rules the ages. We don't know why God has created only one Christ. But we do know that in Jesu Christ, God and man are brought together. In Him God is perfectly revealed and man is uncovered."

It is the supreme ministry of the Christian Church to liberate the spirit of Jesus Christ in the world. "The man who thinks the world is not worth saving has forgotten Jesus Christ, who alone can lend this bewildered civilization back.

"Now that I have come to this as good as Jesus Christ I can die happy," said an old woman after she had realized the spirit of the incarnation.

Charge to Minister

Rev. A. J. Wilson of St. Andrew's Church, Napanee, on behalf of the Presbytery addressed the minister, referring to the peculiar relationship of pastor and people, in loyalty to high ideals and in loyalty to a common Lord and Master. "Loyalty to institutions was not the highest form" as it might lead to bigotry and narrow-mindedness, and noble and laudable as it is it must be subordinated to the loyalty of Christ. "Your ministry will be a success as you seek to discover and interpret to the people the great movements of our own day. To have suffered with Christ and to have stood with such men as Luther, Wesley and Knox, would have been satisfying, but no less necessary in the service of today—to combat in the name of Christ a world loitering on the edge of an economic abyss," said Mr. Wilson.

He spoke of the ministry of love and sympathy as one of the essentials of successful pastorate.

At the close of the service the congregation and ministers, attended a reception in the church parlors in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Semple and their family. Women of Bridge street congregation served light refreshments at the close.

POLICE COURT

A man giving his name as George McMahon, of Montreal, appeared in today's police court before Magistrate Mikel and pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy. He stated that he be given time to get out of town. After you've served ten days in the common jail at hard labor you'd better get out of town as fast as possible" was the reply.

McMahon was arrested by Constable Wickett of Shirley last evening after complaints had been sent in to the police department from a west hill resident relative to McMahon "panhandling" from door to door and later throwing the food he received into the gutter. He told the court that he waited ten or coffee to drink with the sandwiches given him.

Chief Kidd said that the practise of "panhandling" from door to door in Belleville was becoming a menace. He also said that his department would fully investigate any incidents along these lines brought to his attention as the citizens of Belleville had enough to look after among their own residents, who were out of employment at present.

Thomas Clary, transient, who was arrested by Constable Thrasher while lying under the O.P.R. bridge about 8 p.m. last evening pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication. Clary, it was pointed out by the Chief Constable, is a canned heat addict; three cans of this material being found on his person. He will spend the next ten days "on the hill".

Ambergris was given its French name, meaning gray amber, to distinguish it from true yellow amber.

CHILD RUNS INTO SIDE OF MOTOR CAR

Investigation Shows Driver Was Not Responsible

Little Clara Page, aged three, 25 Cannifton Road, sustained a sprained ankle when she ran into the side of a motor car that was being driven northward on Cannifton Rd. yesterday afternoon by Harold Dorey, 21 Stone Street. The motorist was going at a moderate rate of speed when the little girl suddenly darted from behind a parked car.

Dr. E. Connor was passing at the time and after examining the little girl found that she had a slightly sprained ankle. Constable Evans investigated and found that Mr. Curry was in no way to blame.

C. C. F. ENTERS BOTH FIELDS

Philpott in Favor of Constitutional Revolution in Country

STRATFORD, Ont., July 7.—(CP)—Liberal and Conservative candidates in the recent election alike will encounter opposition from the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation in the rural election, according to Captain Elmore Philpott former Toronto newspaperman now residing in Hamilton. Speaking here last night under the auspices of the Stratford Branch of the C.C.F., Capt. Philpott denied Liberals and the C.C.F. were in agreement to unitedly oppose Conservatives in the next election.

"The C.C.F. proposes to fight the Liberals as strongly as it will the Conservatives," he told his audience which numbered some 1,200 persons. "And this applies not only to the Federal Field but to the Provincial Field as well," he declared.

Referring to the speech of Hon. Maurice Dupre, at Bonaventure, Que., in which the solicitor-general was quoted as saying the next election would be a battle between the forces of law and order and subversive elements of political, economic and sociological order, Mr. Philpott said:

"It is odd when I find myself able to agree with the statements of a Tory Cabinet Minister. But in this instance I am very much in agreement with him. I do believe the next battle will be fought between capitalism, represented by Premier Bennett on the one hand, and co-operation, represented by Mr. Woodsworth (U.S. Woodsworth, M.P., leader of the C.C.F.) on the other.

"I am in favor of a constitutional revolution in this country. The biggest revolutions have not been the bloody ones, like those in France and Russia, but the silent, mechanical and industrial revolutions. I hope to see a real revolution within the next three years, constitutional in method. We believe in ballots, not in bullets."

Sine $12.00, Stirling News Argus $157.50, Ontario Intelligencer $2.00, under the Local Improvement Act, for laying a water main along Highway No. 2 west of the D. & D. Institute, and also the issuing debentures for covering the cost of the same.—Carried.

STATUTES OF LIMITATIONS STOP ACTION

Milwaukee, July 7 (AP)—A family quarrel so enraged the wife of a Milwaukee man that she called police and divulged an eight year old secret—accusing her husband of fleeing from the scene of a fatal automobile accident in 1925. Police records showed Ray Mayher, 30, was killed in the accident the woman described. The husband was taken into custody, but released by the district attorney, who said the statute of limitations prevented prosecution.

BUILT TO TAKE YOU FARTHER AT LOWER COST

FROM all over Canada come reports of the remarkable performance of the New Ford V-8. Motorists everywhere speak of many thousands of miles of reliable, economical service without a penny for repairs. Letter after letter tells of 22 to 25 miles per gallon of gasoline.

The answer is QUALITY — the kind of honest, sincere quality that makes Henry Ford say — "The New Ford V-8 is a car I endorse without any hesitancy. I know what is in it. I trust our whole thirty years' reputation with it."

The 1933 Ford V-8 isn't just an improvement on the 1932 model, but a wholly new car in many essential features. It is larger, roomier, and more comfortable—the biggest low-price car. It is strikingly new in body lines. It has new speed and economy and many new features of mechanical design and construction.

There's the new aluminum head that means so much to power, smoothness and gasoline mileage. The new pistons that save oil. The new valve seats that practically eliminate the need for valve grinding. The new distributor and improved ignition. The new trouble-free fuel pump. The improved carburetor. The new straddle-mounted driving pinion that maintains permanent alignment under all driving conditions. The new double-drop, X-type frame that gives extra strength. The new automatic, double-acting shock absorbers.

All of these features contribute to the performance, economy and comfort of the New Ford V-8 and make it the outstanding automobile buy today.

See it! Drive it! Know the new thrill that it puts in motoring. Take a ride, too, in the New Ford "4"—another great value at an even lower price.

NEW FORD 4 $590 UP — Same beautiful body lines and same Ford 112-inch wheelbase as the New Ford V-8. Ford mechanical features develope 50 horsepower and can be completely cushioned in rubber. New front engine mounting. No metal to metal contact between motor and chassis. Owners report over 25 miles a gallon, many better than any other standard six car.

SENSATIONALLY LOW PRICES — Ford — "THE CANADIAN CAR"

NEW FORD V-8 $650 UP — The longest, roomiest, most comfortable low-priced car. Powerful V-8 engine. Full 112-inch wheelbase. Smooth, silent, flexible, eight-cylinder performance. 75 horsepower, 90 miles an hour. All-steel one-piece cylinder head gives increased power and economy. Owners report 22 to 25 miles a gallon. Many other features usually found only in $1500 to $2000 cars.

A NARROW ESCAPE

The economic conference has had a narrow squeak in retaining its existence, but by dint of pressure and realization of a supreme need, despite the fact that it seems impossible to harmonize divergent views, it goes on, with shorn powers as far as discussion of monetary and tariff matters is concerned.

Yet did anyone expect that there would be any chance of getting order to make not-be dangers when an effort to make harmony out of almost chaotic conditions was attempted? Who was going to yield?

Like the patient who has been very low, the world may not expect harmony from the consultation of economic doctors about its bedside, for even monetary doctors disagree.

It may be that incentive has already been given which will life the world back towards normal with gradual adjustments made by nations separately, even if the almost superhuman attempt has been made not without fullest success to make all think and act with one accord. It is so much easier to make a treaty with one nation than to get all nations together to make a treaty which will be final and binding, for so many elements enter.

FIGURES TELL

Striking figures have been published showing a remarkable upward turn upwards in prices and in sentiment in the business world. The Solicitor General of Canada speaking at a party of citizens on Thursday declared that the back of the depression appears to be broken.

Financiers are inclined to be cautious and they are justified in their caution because their words carry weight and they do not wish to create a wrong impression or be faced with the spectre that their views are unwarranted. But even these see signs of a change.

The growth of the steel industry is the brightest spot, of course, on the commercial map. Steel ingot production, according to a statement issued on Thursday of this week has reached the point of fifty-six per cent. production as against 53 per cent. one week ago. This is taken as good proof among business men for the upward movement and even better tone in the market for steel products. Farm products are more than seasonally higher.

SUN-TAN RISKS

Medical men have been warning the public against the dangers of sun tan. The present season is one in which sunlight is very marked and there is a danger of overdoing exposure to the rays of light. The chief trouble is not so much the burn but the burning deeply which may effect chemical changes in the system which may even endanger the health or life of the person.

It is to be expected that the end of this summer will see a healthy (even if sun tanned) folk but the really healthy tanned folk will be those who have taken their tanning in small doses at a time.

THE FAIRBANKS

The romance of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks is said to be on the verge of breaking down and to the world at large this has come as a sort of shock for whatever the folk of Hollywood did, people had come to believe that here was a pair who successfully navigated the matrimonial seas. But evidently not quite to the end.

It has lasted for thirteen years and thereby has reflected on the love-life of some of screen folk whose romances are almost as brief and frequent as the ephemera.

There is no doubt that there are in Hollywood men who do not exert the strongest influence for the retention of the matrimonial tie but even that does not explain how among screen persons, separation and divorce are so frequent. In the Fairbanks-Pickford case the problem is not one of money for both are wealthy. It can hardly be fame, for both are famous. Is it that both of these folk are extremely brilliant? Is it the conflict between the actual and the ideal or the unreal life of the screen? Because screen actors and are players and live not only their ordinary lives as men and women but that they are also living in their screen productions other lives which contrast and conflict with their mundane life? There may be something in this latter, which makes the restrictions of married life seem irksome, and too binding.

The Fairbanks and Pickford episode has always been looked upon as a sign of a real love match.

Some members of a movie colony might be expected to do odd things but not Mary and Doug. The Fairbanks pair are well balanced, and shrewd in the business world, and it must be that the contrast with real life in the face of the art life makes for unrest and unsettlement.

Tact is one of the first mental virtues, the absence of which is often fatal to the best of talents; it supplies the place of many talents.—Simms.

They think too little who talk too much. —Dryden

GRIFFIN'S THEATRE, known also at one time as the Carman Opera House is being torn down, and with it go a host of pleasant memories of the days when road shows were in bloom and Belleville was a good show town. With the exception of the short time Miss MacDougall was in charge George Forhan was the last manager of the old theatre now being levelled and George's experiences with the noted theatrical folk would fill a big book with interesting reading. To the rising generation Griffin's Theatre or the Carman Opera House means little, but to those who grew up means a lot in pleasant memories. The lads who used to storm the gallery door, and spend an evening of bliss on the hard boards, (with a plug of Macdonald blackstrap), and greet Harry Lindley, Alvin Joslin, Joe Murphy, James O'Neil, Al G. Fields (with our own Paul Nolondy), Uncle Tom's Cabin, Robert Mantell and other old favorites with cheers or jeers as the occasion seemed to demand and Sergeant Downs would permit, are now sedate business men here or elsewhere, but it is safe to say that the pleasantest things in their present lives are the memories of those days of long ago when Harry Lindley was the greatest actor in the world, and every lad of them was going to be a minstrel man, a comedian or an acrobat in the circus. (Not forgetting Frank Sharp, treasurer, and ticket seller). Back of George Forhan were other managers, including Frederick Adams, now keeping store away out back of beyond at Dellor, but for twenty years the show business in Belleville. Manager Adams had printed on his letterheads:

"The best one-night stand in the United States and Canada." "Give me a good show and I will give you good money."

"You give the show. I will do the work, I put your paper on the boards."

"I have a transfer wagon to meet the show. I have a good town, a good Opera House, and I try to run it for money—if you play Canada, book Belleville and you will get money for your work."

"Electric cars meet all day trains."

Manager Adams' reminiscences of show life in Belleville were published in this column last winter and aroused considerable interest.

SCHOOL DAYS, SCHOOL DAYS, good old Golden Rule Days, readin' and writin' and rithmetic, taught to the tune of a hickory stick—and vacation time, the long lusty vacation with swimmin' every day, at the old swimmin' 'ole, or the bay, or somewhere else—fishin' trips, too, with a few days' frolic in such as the Sunday-school picnic and perhaps a trip or two with Paw somewhere else. But what about the lads and lassies who are through with school, putting away their books and looking out upon an unknown world, full of possibilities and but few jobs waiting the graduates. Now a new schooling must commence, the school of hard knocks, when the candidates for admission into the kindergarten must have left it for they really do know for practical purposes and how much they have to learn to be fit for the battle of life. The first and greatest thing to learn is to learn how little one does know and to profit by the experience of others. The school of hard knocks has no pity for the raw recruits. They can not pick the work they would prefer but must be governed by circumstances at hand. It is endeavoring to ascertain not just what they are best fitted for and going for that hard. An impassable wall may seem to spring up with nowhere, anywhere, any demand for the services of the youth stepping gingerly into the world of business. It may seem that there is no place at all in the world for the lads and lassies who visioned leaving school and conquering the world in quite the same manner as Horatio Alger did his heroes. It is not quite as simple as that, but there is a place for each one, somewhere, and sooner or later that place will discover itself. The thing is to do the things nearest at hand in the best possible way, try to determine what one is best fitted for and go after that hard—so that another round peg does not stay in a square hole and another life go limping down the trails of time, misunderstood, mismanaged, disgruntled and a failure, instead of the more or less brilliant success which might have been. Above all, don't be discouraged, boys and girls, you are entering the greatest era the world has ever seen, an era where science, invention and knowledge of all kinds, appeared to be its goals, will bring forth the greatest surprise yet:

CLIMBING

When you are young and never think of splinters or sore rips till after you get them nothing is more fun to climb over than a back fenta, and it is funner to have that some day if you live long enough you will prefer to go through a gate."

On the other hand it you saw a man climbing a fenta it would seem unnatural and you would probably yell to the other fellows and tell them to see what was a matter.

This proves it's a good ideer not to, unless any more than is necessary because there's a age for everything and if you try to make up some lost time by not acting like a age you're libel to attract attention.

Mountain climbers think they're having a awful time climbing up a slippery mountain all day in the cold with a big pack on their back, while a expressman generally objects to climbing stairs with a trunk for 5 minnits in a nice warm house.

A fly can climb strate up a wall without losing his balloris, ony nobody thinks of admiring him for it. This proves that you dont get unpopuler you needn't expect any credit for anything.

Other good climbers are munkeys, bears and caterpillers, while cows, horses and sharks are bum ones.

If dogs could climb as good as cats would be even less than to be a cat than what it is now.

ENVOY WILL NOT RESIGN

Norman Davis, However, Will Not Return to Geneva at Present

Washington, July 7.—(UP)—Norman H. Davis head of the American delegation to the Geneva arms conference, will not return to Europe until the present deadlock in connection with disarmament work is necessary, the State Department announced.

The announcement came after Davis, America's roving ambassador, had spent two hours in conference with President Roosevelt at the White House. Earlier he had conferred with Acting Secretary of State Williams Phillips.

The announcement was regarded as the State Department's reply to speculation that Davis would resign as a result of revelations by the Senate banking committee.

The committee disclosed that Davis had borrowed money from J. P. Morgan and Co., and still was indebted to the banking firm. He also was revealed as having aided in negotiating a loan to finance payments on which later were defaulted.

Davis freely admitted both deals but denied he contemplated resigning.

Domestic discord has wrecked another Hollywood home with the result that one of the most prominent couples in the screen colony, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, is on the verge of divorce. JAPAN WANTS BIGGER GUNS AND TANKS

Do Not Agree With Provision of Draft Convention

Geneva, July 7 (AP)—Japan wants bigger tanks and bigger guns than are provided in the British draft convention for the disarmament conference, Tokyo's delegation made known today in filing amendments.

The Japanese suggestions called for tanks on 20 tons instead of 16 tons as authorized by the British project, which is the basis of discussions at the conference.

Topographical conditions in the Far East require tanks of more extensive range and action, the Japanese document asserted.

Similarly the Tokyo amendments advocate making the maximum limit for land guns 155 millimetres, instead of 115 as under the British plan.

JOE KIRKWOOD ROLLS INTO EARLY LEAD

Posts a 70, Three Under Par in Third Round of Open

SOMERVILLE BLOWS

Runs Into Trouble Coming Home After Beating Par Out

St. Andrews, Scotland, July 7—(CP and AP Cables)—Joe Kirkwood put aside his trick shots and stroked them straight to the pin today to roll into an early lead as the British Open Golf Championship inflicted its first stagger.

The Scottish veteran, now of the United States pet a 70, three under par, alongside his 143 for the previous 36 holes, for a 215 total that was low after half the surviving field of 61 had finished the next to the last round.

The Canadian challenger, Ross "Sandy" Somerville, continued to break par on the last nine holes after subduing par going out, and he failed by a stroke of matching Kirkwood. The Canadian, amateur shot 76 in today's first round for a total of 220. His card was made up of 35-40.

Standing a stroke back of the pace-setting Kirkwood were Henry Cotton of England, and Leo Diegel, the American many times held Canada's open title. Cotton needed 73 this morning to tie Joe with his previous total of 144. Diegel fired 71 which left him perched 146 also gave him a 54-hole figure of 216.

Gene Sarazen, of New York the defending title-holder, shot 73 in the third round for a 54-hole total of 218.

Sarazen was out in 35 but dropped a stroke to par coming home and had to be content with finishing in the orthodox figures. The champion played without a golf cap—the ground where his putts refused to drop.

Cyril J. H. Tolley, big Briton who had been only three strokes out of the lead at the end of the mark, fell off to a 76 for a total of 219.

Ed Dudley, Concordville Pa., pro, who had trailed Walter Hagen, five-time winner, by one stroke after 36 holes, "blew up" on the incoming nine of the third round and took a 76 for 217.

The one under par outgoing journey Somerville completed this morning saw him shoot out with a par four, about a birdie three on par five, then snatch seven pars in succession up to the ninth. But coming in big gizes struck him at the 14th and trying 17th, had he finished with a five. Yesterday Sandy came in with a 74 for 144.

Somerville's card today: Out 434, 454, 444—35. In 444, 454, 445—40.

Craig Wood of Deal, N.Y., cracked par by five strokes on the third round today to tie for a total of 217.

Two British Ryder cup players, Ali. Padgham and Arthur Havers, were first to finish their third rounds, Padgham posted a 74 for a 54-hole total of 221. Havers made a 76 this, two under par, for a total of 223

Knocks and Boosts

An event long walked for in Napance will be realized on Saturday, when their new baseball park will be officially opened. For nearly a month workmen have been busily levelling the field and getting everything in ship-shape order for the occasion.

As we understand it the diamond has been built on the big league scale, sloping down from the pitcher's box to the base lines. The field has been seeded with a special grass seed, some of which is it evident already.

X Y Z

The new diamond and park which is situated behind the Napanee C. I. is to be known as the "C.I. Park" being Memorial Baseball Park" where baseball in the grand old game of baseball will be played. The grand stand which holds approximately 700 is right behind the pitcher, with plenty of available standing room along the base lines. The Skate dressing and separate dressing rooms for the contesting clubs will also be built.

X Y Z

"Eride" Gilbert, through whose efforts the park was built, has interested several members of the C. I. A. A. executive to be present which will naturally add prestige to the occasion. The Walter Gowan executive can meet the Brighton Intermediates in an effort to get their new grounds, which incidentally will be the best baseball park in these parts, they say.

With a new park to play in perhaps the Napanees will have a new lease on life in the Bay of Quinte League. The league has been dead, and are not holding down third place with Picton and Belleville ahead of them.

X Y Z

Apparently the Griffs' Garage softball team meant business when they stated they would not play any more of their home games at the old Asbury College Field, Yesterday President Delaney granted the "Merchants" permission to put their home games to the old Coleman Plain diamond. "Wally" Griffs' charges have been playing there and have a fairly good grounds to play their games on. "Bob" Mercer's B.A.A.A. kids meet Art Young's league leading Tweedsmuir Juniors on the Napanee grounds this evening while next Monday night's game between the Moon kids and Wellington has been postponed until Tuesday, according to Secretary Gordon Delaney. This move will give the "Lodge Lads" an opportunity to get in an extra practice on Saturday afternoon.

Some of the fans think, that the wrestling bouts, that are being staged at the Arena by Joe Corcoran, are not the up and up. Just to demonstrate that there really is something to these bouts we'll bet the fans he on something that is actually saw on Wednesday evening. After the McCready-McDougall bout had been over fully an hour we wandered into the boys' dressing room and there sat Scotty McDougall nursing the sweliest sprained ankle you ever lamped. For an hour the Goderich Scotchman had been bathing the ankle in first hot and then cold water, to try and relieve the pain and lessen the swelling. Later he was forced to bandage it firmly and hobble out the best he could.

X Y Z

We can go a little further along these same lines. Perhaps some of the fans remember the night last winter when Mike Ramano was seriously injured. Well Mike has never been the same since and does little, if any wrestling now. Previous to his Belleville career Mike was a "big timer", but today he's still nursing an injured shoulder. Yet the fans cry—"in the bag". Well maybe it is but, how do you account for some of the injuries sustained by the boys, while in action?

And they'll try to tell us that the Big Stadium" Babe Ruth is all through, washed up and done. Oh yeah? "He demonstrated in yesterday's game that he's still a mesmyred player and can hit 'em, when hits are needed. Incidentally the prodigy of the American League was upheld as was expected. About the only mistake the American leaguers made was the fact, that they did not appear in a staff uniform. Each player wore his own, while the National leaguers had nearly new ones, all of alkind. But what the American leaguers lacked in dress they made up in baseball ability and was the only all-star game ever played where no errors were picked from the American and National Leagues. Of course when "Wild Bill" Hallahan lived up to his nick-name, he did not help the cause of the losers to any great extent.

X Y Z

Today's question—Rather hits to pitcher, who throws to first baseman and ball rolls up latter's arm and is held by armpit as runner crosses first base. Ball is extracted without dropping to ground. Is batter out. Batter is not out, as ball must be held securely by fielder's hands before runner reaches base.

Story of All-Star Game One Largely Tale of Ruth Who Made Home Run Famous

Puts on Specialty to Delight of 49,000 Fans

CIRCUS CATCH

American Leaguers Win 4-2 Breaks of Game Favoring

(By William Weekes, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, July 7 (AP)—Baseball's dream game has been played and the story thereof is largely another tale about the man who made the home run famous—George Herman Ruth.

Thirteen hand-picked stars from American League teams defeated 17 selected National Leaguers 4-3 yesterday at Comiskey Field, before a capacity attendance of 49,000 fans. And it was one of old Mr. Ruth's blasts that accounted for the two big runs.

The typical Ruthian gesture came in the third inning with Charlie Gehringer of Detroit Tigers on first base. Wild Bill Hallahan of St. Louis Cardinals, who was Wild Bill at his wildest while he was in there, was the victim. With the count one ball and a strike, Hallahan served the next one about knee high and outside. A mighty swing by the Sultan of Swat and the ball sailed on a line into the lower deck of the right field stands.

There were other thrills, but that resounding smash gave the American League another victory over its rival. In the eighth Ruth leaned against the wall to head down a drive by Chick Hafey and end the National's last rally.

Gross receipts were $53,000 of which $42,000 was turned over to the Association of Professional Baseball Players of America. The money will be invested and the income will be used for the relief of needy and disabled players and umpires.

From the start, the spectacle was just about perfection. Perfect baseball weather with not a cloud in the sky, a huge happy crowd. John McGraw and Connie Mack matched against each other probably for the last time, and a lot or high class baseball, made it that.

The National Leaguers were beaten, but anything but disgraced. Outside of Ruth's wallop which was matched in size, but not importance by Frankie Frisch, and better control on the part of the Junior Circuit's pitchers, there was little to choose. Hallahan, during his less than three innings of service, gave only two hits, but fanned the enemy with five walks, three of which figured in the scoring.

PROBABLY the strongest trio of Davis cup net teams ever to reach a semi final in the annual struggle for the international tennis trophy remain today in the quest for the world court championship.

At this writing it appears generally agreed, even by many European observers, that the United States entry looks the strongest. But the edge, if any, held by Uncle Sam's representatives is much.

France, as defender of the trophy, will, of course, be no easy mark. However, the greatest improvement is expected in the play of the Australian and English teams.

Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath give the Antipodes team the strongest server an Australian cup outfit has had since Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood. Fred Perry and Bunny Austin make England a formidable opponent against any team, anywhere, any time.

AS CHAMPION of the American zone, the United States gets a break. The American zone includes only Australia or England— not both. These two must play each other and then the winner must stack up against the United States for the right to a chance at France and the cup.

The Australia-England matches will be staged in London, July 13-15. The winner meets the United States in a series beginning July 20 in Paris. And the victor of that series meets France in Paris in the challenge round, beginning July 27.

It is probable that the Paris draft of two strenuous series, against Australia and England, just a week apart would so tire Ellsworth Vines and the other American stars that the overcoming France would be too great. Happily, from the standpoint of Vines and Co may rest while Australia and England engage in their private civil war.

THE PRESTIGE of the French team, despite its victory again last year, is not what it was. Even those who believe any of the three remaining challengers might "take" the Gallic squad.

The tennis days of Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra are about over. They have already lasted surprisingly long.

Among the palace treasures of Persia is mentioned a ten million dollar globe on which the seas are made of emeralds, countries are of rubies and other stones and the frame is of gold crusted with diamonds.

LONG LOSING STREAK ENDED BY SKEETERS

Club Royals 11-3 After Dropping Nine Games in Succession

TORONTO WIN

Defeat Baltimore 13-4 Behind Seven Hit Hurling of Brame

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

The Jersey City Skeeters, who have used more players with less success than any other outfit in the loop, finally have broken the second longest losing streak of the International League season.

The Skeeters had lost nine games in succession when they found their hurling ace in Montreal yesterday and clubbed the Royal into submission, 11-3. The only longer losing streak was held up by Albany a few weeks ago when the Senators dropped 11 in a row.

Rochester and Toronto, in a virtual tie for second place, but Newark's lead to three games as both won while the Bears were losing to the Buffalo Bisons.

Johnny Wilson outpitched Jim Weaver by a convincing margin as Buffalo won, 5-2, although outhit, 8-7. Timely hitting by Ollie Carnegie and Leon Koenecke, plus five stolen bases, threw by Koenecke, carried the Bisons through as Jim Weaver's sixth defeat against 15 victories.

Rochester set Albany back, 4-2, in a thrilling 12 inning battle. Although apparently had the game sewed up with a 3-0 lead after seven innings, Ed Wells and Hugh Flowers's homer with Art Shires on base tied the score. Albany counted one run in the 10th, but Rochester came back with two on bases by Frank Doljack, Bob Parham and Stanley Hack's error on Paul Derringer's slow roller.

Toronto pounded out 17 hits and walks off the Baltimore Orioles, 13-4 as Ervin Brame pitched seven-hit ball. The Leafs drove Earl Mattingly from the box with a four-run rally in the second and dopped on Lefty Gomez for the finish of a five-run spurt in the sixth. Murray Howell and Rabbit Richardson each collected three hits off Oriole pitching.

IN PUTTING RIGHT ELBOW SHOULD REST AGAINST BODY.

ALEX MORRISON says:

Consistency may not be so hard to attain in putting as it is in other parts of the game, but it's just as important.

With all the different styles of putting, it seems as though the player should have no difficulty in finding a method that would assure a calm of good results most of the time. But in spite of the number of ways he's tried, steadiness is still lacking.

Dropping the right arm close enough to the body so that the elbow can rest against the inner part of the leg will do as much as any other one thing to steady you.

Also keep it there during your stroke.

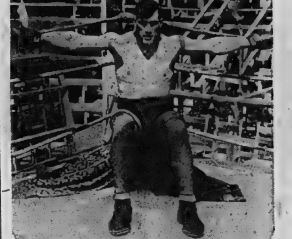
Lou Brouillard Wins Decision Over Mickey Walker

(By Bill King, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Boston, July 7 (AP)—Blacklatched, hobbing head of Lou Brouillard, formerly of St. Eugene's, Quebec, rose up menacingly today among the contenders for the world's middleweight boxing championship.

Larrupping Lou, tipping the scales at 161 pounds last night gave Mickey Walker, one of the really good old men left in the ring today, a thorough trouncing in the headline 10-rounder of the Boston Gardens-Arena bill before 10,000 wildly acclaiming supporters.

It was the cunning and experience of age pitted against ambitious youth with a harder sock and youth would not be denied. The French-Canadian, another "Frenchie" of the hammered Walker completely into submission in all but two of the 10 rounds.



Tearing into the "toy bulldog" of Rumson, N.J., from the opening bell Brouillard gave a convincing reason why he should be ranked with Frankie Battaglia of Wilmington and other topnotch middlemen by letting Walker all over the ring in the first three rounds.

Walker rallied gamely in the fourth and fifth frames but was completely outclassed thereafter and only his greater experience and gallant heart saved him from a clean-cut knockout when Brouillard connected with a smashing left hook to the head in the eighth. Walker's groggily his wouldn't go down although Lou connected once again in the ninth with that terrific left that even beat Jimmy McLarnin of Vancouver, world's welterweight titlist, some months ago.

JULY AND MAY FUTURES HIGH

In Line With Strength at Liverpool and Advance in Sterling

Winnipeg, July 7 (CP)—Both July and May futures touched new high points today. As wheat prices on the Winnipeg Exchange crept sharply higher at the opening, in line with strength at Liverpool, a sharp advance in sterling. Heavy selling was encountered at the high points, but bullish enthusiasm was sufficient to keep prices about 1 1-2 cents over yesterday's close. Nearing mid-session July wheat stood at 49 1-8 and October at 84 1-8, both 1 1-4 cent up while December at 85 3-8 and May at 88 1-8 were 1 2-8 higher.

No figure was placed on the amount of export business worked overnight, but it was learned everything offered from both Atlantic and Pacific ports was taken. Liverpool wheat displayed firmness and the Argentine quotations were 2-8d to 1-2d higher.

Canadian Wheat Shows Good Advances in Trading

(By The Canadian Press)

As the American dollar hit another new low on world foreign exchanges today the British pound climbed to $4.96 in terms of Canadian money, its highest since 1920.

With the rapid rise in sterling Canadian stock markets and wheat showed good advances but in London, world conference delegates from Canada and United States viewed the United States dollar's slide with much concern. One view was expressed the United States should soon consider steps to regulate the wide fluctuations in exchange which severely hinder international trading.

The pound in Montreal touched level to the highest mark in four years. In New York the pound moved up to $4.78. But it was the American dollar that was going down, not the pound going up. The U. S. dollar fell to a new low point in Paris for the fourth day. In Montreal it continued its downward trend for only five cents, while the Canadian dollar advanced to 95 3-8 cents, in New York, highest level in more than a year.

Paris, July 7 (AP)—The United States dollar closed today on the Paris market at 18.18 francs to the dollar (5.50 cents to the franc), a new low since America left the gold standard.

Sterling was 79 centimes down from yesterday's close.

Sister Relieved

Montreal Que. July 7.—(CP)—With the hope that Sister Jo Lee has been under for the past weeks of uncertainty showing in her tightly pressed lips and the strained look on her face Mrs. G. Muller of Kingsford, sister of Jimmie Mattern, round-the-world flier, missing for 17 days, burst into tears of joy on receiving the news that her brother has been found.

"It is wonderful: thank you very much," she said, and the tenseness of her features relaxed. She was broken and the tears of thankfulness came freely.

Paris, July 7 (AP)—Police today were investigating the case of a beggar who died in a hospital here and left a fortune of 1,000,000 francs ($55,000).

The beggar, Jean Baptiste Lacroix, was found dead in his bed at the hospital. Police searched his room and found 1,000,000 francs in bank notes and securities.

Lacroix had been a familiar figure in the streets of Paris for years. He was known as the "Millionaire Beggar."

Conference Radiates an Atmosphere of Purposeful Activity

(By DeWitt MacKenzie)

London, July 7 (AP)—A large contribution to a revived and revised World Economic Conference which assured from death yesterday by the united action of Prime Minister MacDonald and American delegates, is expected to be a proposal by the United States for world-wide action in shortening the hours of labor, increasing wages, and raising agricultural prices.

The American delegation this morning worked on draft proposal and, while the entire group had not approved it, its sponsors said they believed it would be presented to the conference shortly.

Not only was this plan under construction, but the entire conference united in attempting to find purposeful activity which had been lacking during the last few days.

Both the monetary and financial commissions met to set up committees touching on a revised agenda of subjects which could be dealt without resurging into deep controversy topics which France and her gold bloc allies wished to exclude pending stabilization of currencies.

An indication of a new spirit was given at the session of the monetary commission when its chairman, Pierson Dixon of Great Britain, who had been one of the bold bloc supporters, declared it still feel it desirable to proceed with the work of the conference in the utmost extent.

Among those present at the meeting of the monetary commission were Finance Minister Georges Bonnet of France and Senator James Couzens, Michigan-born Republican for Michigan.

Signor Jung in explaining the position, said the business of the sub-committee was to examine the agenda to see if there were certain questions which some countries felt they could not discuss. He said such questions "would be held in abeyance for the time being" and added that "I take on these words 'for the time being'."

AHTO WINNER OF 4000 MILE RACE

Arrives in New York After Journey From West Africa

New York, July 7 (AP)—The two masted yacht Ahto, skippered by 19-year-old Ahlo Walther of Estonia, is in New York harbor today, winner of the 4,000-mile race from Gambia, West Africa, in competition with the British entrant, Enterprise, with Peter Barber at the helm.

The Enterprise was believed not far behind as it was reported sighted off Barnegat Light Wednesday after the Ahto had been driven to shelter at Atlantic City Monday by a heavy storm.

The 30-foot Ahto and the slightly larger Enterprise left South Africa, May 18.

DECIDE NOT TO CHANGE NAME

Delegates Return Home as Members of Farmer-Labor Party

Saskatchewan, July 7 (CP)—Delegates to the eighth annual convention of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section were on their way home today after deciding not to change the name they use in politics—The Farmer-Labor Party.

Prominent among decisions reached at the three-day conference was one which means that night was endorsement of the party's policy in supporting the co-operative system with regard to farms. The policy includes improvements on the farm, the home and equipment should belong to the individual farmer while the land itself should become a social instrument to which the individual should hold title.

Recognized leaders of the movement received a good hearing but it was a woman, Mrs. John Paton, wife of the secretary of the Independent Party of Great Britain who delivered the final address. The organization in Saskatchewan, she said, was a part of an international movement seeking advancement of industrial state.

Mrs. Paton, a widely travelled woman, said Europe generally was in the throes of a struggle between capitalism and fascism and has added, there was deadly fear of the phase of the economic battle spreading to Great Britain.

EVERYONE IS RAKING DUMP FOR OLD COINS

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 7—(CP) There's sharp opposition in collectors' circles here. Collection of old coins, etc. have invaded the domain of the garbage collector and now they're all raking over the city dump.

It all started when Robert Alton, a railway pipefitter, discovered among the piles a five-dollar United States Bill dated 1864, coveted by numismatists as a decoration for a "Reich" or national church that unless they ally themselves with the German Christian group they will have no hope of getting a pastorate on completing their studies.

The national church must be distinctly aryan, and must crown the third Reich as an exclusive German Christian movement, a Nazi leader asserted.

Meanwhile, Bernard Rust, Prussian Minister of Education and Culture, announced all students of Communist leanings will be "barred permanently from Prussian universities.

Another development in the Hitlerites' campaign will industrialize the rural province of East Prussia, separated from the rest of Germany by Pomerne (Polish corridor) as a bulwark against Poland.

Metal and other industries particularly, will be helped to establish branch factories in rural areas and workers will be given plots to till, a breakup of the large Junker estates being thereby foreshadowed.

DISTANT LANDS LURE DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

Fascination of the old world for Douglas Fairbanks, combined with his love for travel, is chiefly responsible for the rift in the family in Hollywood's "ideal couple" and his probable divorce from Mary Pickford Hollywood's favorite Canadian actress. For the past three years Fairbanks has passed most of his time travelling in Europe, the Orient and India, and mixing with the nobility everywhere. Layout shows recent pictures of Mary and Doug, portraits taken years ago in the early screen career of each, and a familiar view of Big Ben in London, city where Fairbanks may permanently reside.

Protestant Pastors Must Join Nazi German Christians in Week

Ultimatum Delivered to Thousands of Church-men Today

(By Louis P. Lochner)

Berlin, July 7 (AP)—An ultimatum demanding that Protestant pastors join the Nazi German Christians in a week or not at all was in the hands of thousands of church heads today.

Theological students, too, were told by Nazi speakers at a demonstration for a "Reich" or national church that unless they ally themselves with the German Christian group they will have no hope of getting a pastorate on completing their studies.

The national church must be distinctly aryan, and must crown the third Reich as an exclusive German Christian movement, a Nazi leader asserted.

Meanwhile, Bernard Rust, Prussian Minister of Education and Culture, announced all students of Communist leanings will be "barred permanently from Prussian universities.

SPIRIT THAT OF PROTEST

Tim Buck Declares He Committed No Offence

Kingston, Ont., July 8—(CP)—As court opened in the convict Tim Buck case, the accused in addressing the court said under the indictment he apparently has been charged with a specific offence. "No evidence has been produced," he said, "to show I used any personal violence or that I carried arms. There was evidence a machine was broken by a convict who pleaded guilty to an individual act of vandalism, but there has been nothing to prove I did anything myself and consider her a specific offence."

Convict Buck spoke of the feeling among the men in the penitentiary, their desire for reform and their efforts for a change in the institution. It was not a spirit of destruction or riot. "In most of them," he said, "it was the only way to draw attention to their grievances, the grim atmosphere. Inside those walls you're within a world inside a world it has everything except hope."

Convicted of Rioting

TIM BUCK

Serving a sentence of five years in Kingston penitentiary for being a member of the Communist party, an unlawful assembly, Tim Buck leader of the party, was July 6) convicted of rioting during the disturbance at the prison last October.

Flu Epidemic is Ended by Discovery of British Doctors

Three Doctors Succeed in Isolating Filter-Passing Virus

London, July 7—The forthcoming issue of The Lancet, a medical journal to be published Saturday, will say that experiments carried out by three British doctors have led to the discovery of the primary cause of influenza.

The article asserts that as a result there can be no repetition of the major influenza epidemics such as occurred in 1918 and 1920, killing 15,000,000 persons, according to statistics.

Doctors Wilson Smith, C. H. Andrews and P. P. Laidlaw of the National Institute of Medical Research are said to have found that influenza is caused by a filter-passing virus which they isolated by infecting ferrets.

The discoveries were said to corroborate and supplement discoveries made by research in the Rockefeller Institute, which developed valuable information and vaccine from experiments on hogs. The article says, however, that the hogs were infected with a milder type of influenza which does not correspond to that attacking human beings.

It adds that the medical men now expect to be able to immunize human being from the deadlier form

Marked Advance in Price of Farm Products Shown

OTTAWA, July 8.—(CP) — The marked advance in the prices of farm products from January to May of this year has continued according to June 15th., figures released today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The higher prices of grain and eggs more than offset slightly lower prices in June for livestock and milk and its products as compared with the month before.

Taking the average prices of the entire year 1926 as 100, the index figure for all farm products in January of this year was 43.6 and in May it had moved up to 51.2 despite seasonal tendencies for lower prices in some important commodities particularly milk products and eggs. The index figure for June 15 for all farm products is not yet available but the figures released today covered the latest month for the principal commodities.

The comparative index numbers for prices of the principal farm products on January 15, May 15, and June 15, follow:

	Jan	May	June
Grain	31.0	42.8	41.7
Livestock	47.7	62.0	60.9
Milk, Milk Products	60.2	58.6	57.3
Eggs	60.0	39.5	43.

The price of grain plays an important part in the figures for all farm crops owing to its great volume and accordingly a small gain in that list would offset larger percentage losses, in other commodities which are produced less extensively.

SOME DOGGIES WILL SUFFER UNDER PLAN

Port Erie, Ont., July 7 (CP) — Dogs of Port Erie District have found a real foe in Miss J. T. Bush, who has outlined to Mayor William J. Hawley a plan to prevent planned wholesale execution of homeless and unlicensed dogs.

She will pay $1.00, said Miss Bush for each dog up to 100 animals so they will not be gathered up by the dog catcher and exterminated.

But here's the catch, and it's going to be tough on some doggies if other plans aren't made. There are 145 dogs on the run here and Miss Bush's offer covers only the even 100. It still looks like there will be a sharp, sudden drop in the canine population.

WOMAN BURNED AS FIRE SWEEPS BUILDING

Lynn, Mass., July 7—(AP)— A woman was burned to death and 10 firemen were seriously injured early today as fire swept a two and a half story wooden building in Federal Square, West Lynn.

The dead woman was Mrs. Rose Blair, 8, who was trapped and burned to death in her second-story room. The firemen were injured as the building collapsed. Four children escaped.

TIM BUCK IS CONVICTED

Judge Deroche Lauds Prisoner on Able Address

Kingston, July 7 (CP)—Tim Buck, former leader of the Communist party in Canada, was convicted Thursday of unlawful assembly during the disturbances last October and was returned to his prison cell to await sentence on July 18. In convicting Buck, Judge O. E. Deroche said he could impose a maximum penalty of seven years, but said he had no intention of doing so.

The diminutive radical returned to his cell, complimented on his efforts "as a lawyer," despite his unsuccessful battle to clear himself of the charges.

"Your address," said the judge, "was magnificent. You spoke for two and a half hours but all the time you were interesting and logical. You made no extreme statements."

The judge reviewed at great length the evidence produced both by defence and the crown prosecutor, adding that he was quite satisfied there was a riot and Buck was a member of the unlawful assembly.

The accused, through numerous convict witnesses, attempted to show there had been no riot and that there had been no disturbance made by the men, who, he said, were merely staging a justified demonstration against prison conditions. If words had been sent to Ottawa that there was a riot when the men left their work there wouldn't have been such confusion, it was contended.

The only reason he had joined in the demonstration, Buck submitted was he otherwise would have been considered a "rat."

"That seems to be something to his credit" the judge commented, "but, of course, it is something that he cannot excuse."

Other counsel satisfied Buck had spoken to the prisoners milling around the building and had pacified to some extent their anger. Others had spoken, they said, and had quieted the disturbance, not merely because of his reputation as a speaker.

Not the Instigator

Judge Deroche said he did not believe the accused had shut off the water in his workshop as claimed by guards and keepers. He further said there was no evidence to show Buck was instigator of the assembly which developed into a riot of which the judge considered there was evidence. He probably was intended for a peaceful demonstration, he said, but eventually it became very noisy, and damage had been done to prison property there burning locks off doors. However, he did not consider it had been as serious as portrayed in newspapers and through conversations.

"He was part of a rioting crowd" the judge concluded, "and he pleaded he either had to take part or be a 'rat.'"

ECONOMY AND LOWER TAXES RECOMMENDED

Committee on Economy Presents Memorial to Premier Henry

The Ontario Committee on Economy in Public Finance, on which the cities, towns and counties of Ontario are represented, and which was organized in December last under the auspices of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, has, through its chairman, Mr. J. M. Macdonnell, the general manager of the National Trust Company, Limited, made the following recommendations to the Honourable George S. Henry, Prime Minister, as an aid to reducing expenditures and effecting such economies as will ensure a balanced provincial budget at the earliest possible date:

Public Debt.

The committee recommends that for some years to come, public debt be incurred only in cases in which the proposed undertakings are either self-supporting, or are absolutely necessary to effect economy in operation, or are for the general benefit of Ontario in the economic development of provincial or national resources; also, that a tentative budget of capital expenditures, modified annually, be prepared and kept prepared for five or ten year periods in advance.

Financing.

That sinking funds be established for every debenture issue, or even better, that issues be confined to serial bonds.

Public Deposits.

That the public deposits be conserved so as to greatly increase the three provincial revenue items.

Administration.

That a study be made of the feasibility of co-ordinating provincial departments and services, the centralization of services, etc. That the personnel establishments of every department of government be studied thoroughly to determine just how many employees of each grade are actually required; and that any over-manning which may be found be adjusted by not making appointments to fill vacancies and by retirements from the service; also that, as according to Dominion Bureau of Statistics Reports, the cost of living has been reduced over twenty per cent since December, 1929, the rates of remuneration obtaining in provincial services be studied in the light of the present cost of living, the rates prevailing in private undertakings, the comparative security of employment in public service, and the reduced income of the average citizen, and lowered.

Public Relief.

The present system, whereby municipalities pass on to the Federal and Provincial authorities the bulk of their expenditures on relief encourages extravagance on the part of municipalities. An investigation, with a view to some readjustment of this situation and a reduction of the cost, should be undertaken. The committee also recommends that before public relief is granted in any form, other than immediate emergency relief, every effort be exercised by investigation and otherwise to ensure that the immediate families of needy persons assume their proper obligations insofar as they may be capable of so doing.

In commenting upon the revenues and expenditures of the province of Ontario since 1914, the committee points out that the per capita revenue has increased from $3.64 to $10.71 in 1921-23, to $16.55 in 1930-31, and $14.36 in 1931-32. Taxation alone has increased in the same years from $1.05 to $5.80, $9.57 and $10.04. Expenditures in the same years have gone up from $3.85 to $11.31, to $16.39 and to $16.66. Direct debt went up from $14.83 to $82.12, to $132.80 and to $148.71, while the indirect debt went up from $3.54 to $15.94, to $23.31 and was in 1931-32 $23.40. The committee further states that the tendency to increase has not yet spent itself is evidenced by the fact that the provincial statement of assets and liabilities for 1931-32 shows an increase in net funded debt of over $43,500,000 and an unfunded debt of over $10,000,000; and by the further fact that the Budget for 1932-33 estimates a deficit of $2,952,000.

The committee praises the government for the economies which have been effected this year, and recognizes the fact that governments can move only as quickly as public opinion will permit; also that much of the expenditure in the past has been due to the demands of the people and, not infrequently, to the petitions of Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce.

The committee continues: "The government's own publicity, combined with the comments which have arisen from various sources, as to the present position of governmental finances and the steady growth of taxation — both provincial and municipal — has, in the opinion of this committee, given the government an opportunity to act vigorously in the interests of economy. This publicity has, we believe, brought the people of this province to a realization of the fact that drastic economies must henceforth be exercised by the government and that if serious financial difficulties and further increased taxation are to be avoided by the province and public confidence restored, the provincial budget must be balanced with the least possible delay. The citizens generally have been encouraged to second the efforts of the government to reduce expenditures by refraining on their part from demanding increased expenditures out of revenue for things, and in places, as which they may be interested, and, as good citizens, accept in good grace any cuts which may be made.

"From the standpoint of business, taxation has reached such proportions as to become a most important factor in unrest, and, consequently in planning developments careful attention must be given to the effect of taxation upon overhead. Unless, therefore, the government place themselves in a position to avoid further increases in taxation, and in fact, even take steps to reduce taxation, the recovery of business will continue to be greatly retarded.

"As a result of the foregoing, public opinion, we believe, has reached the point where it appreciates it is the duty of every citizen to assist the government in its efforts towards economy by assuring it of the support of the general body of citizens in any attempt it may make towards that end. Public opinion so favorable to economy having been established, the Ontario Committee on Economy in Public Finance is inclined to the belief that it is the present opportunity is not taken advantage of by the government, such public opinion is likely to require that most drastic steps be taken immediately to ensure a balanced budget at the earliest possible date."

Hauser, Minor Star, Slams Along Trail of Homer Mark

Central Press Sports Writer

WITH A LITTLE more than half the season remaining Joe Hauser, Minneapolis' first baseman, is almost certain to create a new homerun record for the American association this year.

Hauser has a mark of 54 at which to aim. That was recorded by Nick Cullop, who hit that many for the circuit in 1930. Cullop was also a hitter, but now is a Columbus Red Bird. Hauser has notched almost two-thirds of Nick's number already and might have had more had pitchers not chosen to walk him so much. He has drawn as high as four passes in one game.

Cullop's record not only seems doomed, but Hauser is likely to break the all-time baseball record he himself owns by hitting 63 homers for Baltimore in 1930. In fact, Hauser entertains a thought of making it 70 this year, but if he can get 64 he will be well satisfied.

SEVERAL TIMES this season Hauser has had a home run duel. Twice he hit two circuit wallops in one game and in a recent double header against St. Paul he collected three.

Hauser leads Tom Hickey's league in total bases, runs batted in and runs scored, as well as home runs. He is far ahead in total sacks, leading over the plate, and, of course, in homers, but is being given a battle for scoring by a teammate, Spencer Harris.

Hauser is 33 years old and there is little chance of his getting another chance in the major leagues. He has been up before with the Philadelphia Athletics. Not even in 1930 when he cracked his 63 homers for Baltimore was he taken in the draft, the Phillies selecting Stewart Bowman, outfielder, in preference to the league's home-run king. Hauser is one of only four players to hit 60 or more homers. Besides Babe Ruth there is Moose Clabaugh, now of Baltimore, who belted 62 for Tyler of the East Texas class D league in 1916, and Ox Eastman, who was sold to the Yankees partly on the strength of his homers for Salt Lake in the Pacific Coast league in 1925.

UP TO THE 1930 season at Baltimore, Hauser had no reputation for home runs. He followed his 63 with 31 with the Orioles in 1931 and last year at Minneapolis hit 49 although out of action for nearly three weeks on account of injuries. His home-run record from 1918, his first year in professional baseball, up to the current season is 280.

Hauser first signed with the Athletics, was farmed to Milwaukee and then sent to Providence without playing for the Braves. The war interrupted the 1918 season. From Providence he went back to Milwaukee for 1920 and 1921 as an outfielder, and from 1922 to 1925 he played his first base job with the A's. A broken knee cap put him out of commission for 1926. In 1927 he was optioned to Kansas City, went back to the A's the next year and then became a Brewer once more. He played about half the 1929 season with Cleveland.

U.S. DOLLAR STILL SLIDING

Battle Between France And United States Continues

London, July 7 (CP)—Slide of the United States dollar to another new low on world exchanges coupled the international spatial quarrel while French delegates to the World Economic Conference thought they saw signs that the conference was ready to break the pound away from its peg to the gold franc.

Seemingly settled by the agreement to drop monetary and tariff talks from the conference, the battle between France and the United States over currency stabilization still rumbled today. A surprising development was the argument of Neville Chamberlain, who carried his point against vigorous French opposition that the sub-committee on measures for financial reconstruction should proceed with the full original agenda.

WARNING SIGN ADVISED

Grimsby, Ont., July 7 (CP) —A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury at an inquest into the death of Everett Montgomery, killed by an automobile driven by Clifford Johnson. The jury also recommended the erection of a warning sign on the Mountain Road.

VOICE MAY ENHANCE; MAR PERSONALITY

Factors to be Considered in Voice Improvement

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

You will probably agree that you can be won over by a person simply because he has a voice that pleases you while, on the other hand, a person with an unpleasant voice is likely to make you feel antagonistic.

Aside from the qualities of a voice we specially like to hear, one that is well modulated, has tone, is neither too loud nor too weak, usually attracts. Contrariwise, a high-pitched, squealing voice or a rough, harsh one is repellent.

The production of voice sounds involves many mechanical structures.

The larynx is the important organ of speech. It lies in the front of the neck, the top of which is the familiar "Adam's apple." In women this prominence is more rounded than in men. It is a hollow, beak-shaped and sharply protruding.

Extending across the larynx, or "voice box," are four bands of ligaments, the vocal cords.

The two lower are the chief cords concerned with the production of sounds. Hence the two you per are referred to as the "false" cords and the two lower as the "true" cords. When the true vocal cords are made to vibrate, the sounds we call voice are produced.

This occurs, of course, when air, forced by expiratory action from between them and while the cords are tense and therefore close together.

When we have a cold or have talked too much or too loudly, the cords become relaxed. That is why we "lose our voice." Then we may talk hoarsely or scarcely above a whisper.

When people take singing lessons, many the first thing they learn is how to breathe properly. Breathing, how to hold the breath after it effectively in expiration, has a lot to do with voice culture. That singers call properly "placing" the voice is equally important. This means that the voice must be made to throw the sound of the voice up against the roof of the mouth in order that the best reverberating qualities may be obtained.

One does not have to take singing lessons however, to improve one's voice. Sheer carelessness often is the chief cause for an unpleasant voice. If one thinks about how the voice sounds one can often, one might automatically, correct its irritating features.

Why there is little difficulty in stopping oneself from talking too loudly or too softly, that being tremendously also is to be cherished and to cultivate quality in one's speech. As the popular saying goes: "The voice with the smile wins!"

Three additional features should be taken into account of serious consideration is to be given to voice improvement. These concern volume, quality and pitch. Practice, even without voice training as such, can accomplish marvelous results in these respects.

Anatomical factors, to be sure, are important as well; the thickness of the vocal cords, for instance: their ability to stretch; the natural size and shape of the trachea. Upon such structures, when favorably built, depend the ability to sing in opera or on the concert stage.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Why is useful to know, indeed, when there is acute indigestion. First congeal a pint of fresh milk by warming and adding liquid rennet or a junket tablet dissolved in water, plus a pinch of salt. After this has coiled, break up the coagulated mass with a fork and strain through muslin. Whey should not be given, however, in cases of diarrhea.

Hastings County in 1932 had 3821 acres devoted to the production of potatoes, with a yield of 480,882 bushels, an average of 125.8 bushels per acre, and a value for the crop of $211,500.

In this total, farm lands was estimated as worth $844,- 053,782, farm buildings $472,255,398, implements $154,723,478 and live stock $144,580,416.

The value of like nature in 1931 was estimated by the Statistical Branch as amounting to $1,852,057,- 607. A decrease of $32,472,693 is shown between the two years.

WHEAT GAINS ON ALL MARTS

Chicago May Futures Bring $1.10 1-4 in Trading

Winnipeg, July 7 (CP)—Persistent profit taking by speculators kept wheat futures prices ducking on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today and Canadian grain closed only fractionally higher in the face of heavy advances on all other markets induced by the rise in the pound sterling.

July closed at 80¼, October at 82. December at 84⅛ and May at 88⅝.

Chicago, July 7 (AP)—Deliveries of wheat sold by a dollar a bushel or better today for the first time since last year. Wheat and corn were both swept to the season's highest price levels soon after trading started because of the nose dive of the American dollar and the rise of the British pound sterling. Sharp reactions followed the upturns, based chiefly on heavy profit taking at timely turns in parts of the corn belt.

May wheat reached a peak of $1.10¼.

HARROW WANTS NAME TULIP-TOWN

Harrow, Ont. July 7 (CP) Harrow soon will be recognized by Horticulturists as "tulip town" if present plans materialize. Civic officials and flower lovers are arranging to stage a giant tulip contest in 1934 that will bring flower-growing fame to the town and recognition throughout western Ontario as "tulip town."

TILLIE

The Girl of the North

She thought of the oncoming winter in which it would be up to her to provide for her little family there in their attic apartment, where in winter the cold crept in.

She thought of the ragged breadlines she had been with her own arms. Gaunt-faced mothers with babies in their arms, old men, young white-faced boys, and she remembered all she could expect from charity would be a dollar a week per person for her small family.

She thought of Jackie, who could scarcely stand another winter in Chicago, and Sarah, whose consumptive cough was entirely selfish, but more the natural result of approaching old age.

And there was Kitten just starting school who deserved at least a bit pleasant a girlhood as Jerry had had.

God knew how hard it was for a girl to decide, when by being nice to a man who was in every way attractive she might have everything her heart desired and when to say "no" spelled certain suffering for those she loved.

Jerry really believed no other girl had been in quite so terrific a predicament, and she wondered if the principles she had been taught as a girl were meant to apply in these awful times, when a girl with a job was virtually at the mercy of the man who employed her.

Jerry didn't believe so. She didn't even think of him as a wicked man. She knew he was a hunter, and therefore cruel as all hunters are. She felt like a frightened thing in a cage with the hunter approaching and she looked at Joe with eyes that were ready to flood with tears.

She wanted to ask, but dared not, what he would do if she should refuse. And she crouched there in the corner of the cabin with her cheek against the cold glass of the window and her body in the dreamy—but she did not notice or care about that now.

She was a trapped thing. A hare pursued by a hound. A fluttering bird in the grass when the shadow of the hawk passes over it.

At last she said, "And if I refuse?"

"Then I may have to find another—or something," said Joe. "Drive on to the house, Gus."

CHAPTER 7

Jerry wanted to go home. She wanted more than to jump from the sedan run to the lake and throw herself from the rocks into the deep waters.

But neither course would be brave or sensible. There was nothing she could do but continue the dinner with Joe and try to act as though she were not disturbed.

Lights rolled up Michigan avenue, across the Michigan avenue bridge, with the massed splendid lights blazing on the river and the tall buildings shooting up into the darkness. Almost before she was through powdering her nose and arranging her hair they were pulling up at the smart-looking apartment building on Lake Shore drive.

Jerry took Joe's proffered arm and they walked across the deep-carpeted rugs to the elevators and went up.

Genevieve Middleton was there to greet them and she greeted Jerry with so much gushing warmth and forgave them so simply for being late that Jerry was torn all over again by Joe's perfidy.

And Mrs. Middleton was so unlike anything Jerry had imagined.

Small, with milk-white skin and very dark hair, she was the sweetest, most ineffectual, and thoroughly human soul Jerry had ever met. Jerry couldn't imagine Joe being anything but devoted and immediately the two women were friends.

"But you mustn't steal my husband," Genevieve Middleton said playfully, "because we're still sweethearts aren't we Joe?"

"Of course, my sin, Gen," Joe said emphatically.

Dinner was almost something to write home about and Jerry, for her worry and sadness, could see, help but thrill to the occasion.

It began with golden brown toasted cheese and caviar sandwiches served with the dry martini cocktails in the modernistic black and silver glasses, and Jerry, who rarely tasted liquor, felt that she needed a little warmth after the spiritually terrifying experience on the island.

They went to the dining room where the table was set with ivory satin damask and crystal, with pale roses and equally pale candles in long high above the low crystal candlesticks.

And Jerry, in her harmonizing gown of dcserved velvet, seemed a flower very fitted to this garden.

Italian mushroom broth was set before them first, with celery hearts, ripe olives, radish roses and wafers.

Then came the baked stuffed breast of squab, and Jerry, who could never resist squab thought she had never tasted anything so delicious. Then in her life. Candied yams, brussels sprouts with hollandaise sauce, clover leaf rolls with butter and guava jelly and sherry rounded out the main course of the dinner.

Tomato aspic salad with cheese wafers was followed by a parfait of raspberry mousse and lime sherbet.

Then there was a demitasse and cordial.

But despite the graciousness of Genevieve Middleton and the excellence of the dinner there were moments when the conversation dragged.

McDowell insisted upon telling rather pointless and long-winded stories. Brown and Stein talked shop, and Harriet Wilson tried to be pleasant with an effort which was almost painful.

But until Joe went into action did Jerry begin to forget her troubles.

His took them utterly from consciousness and carried her into a primeval Chicago to the camp fires of lily Villa's army around which Mexican women and children were preparing tortillas for their banquet men. You could hear the singing and strumming of the guitars and the occasional shouts and laughter, perhaps 18 dancing in the firelight.

Then Joe told the mighty deeds of Francisco his great pal who could drop an enemy at 800 yards and make him fall on his face on his back, whichever way you called the turn.

There were stories of sly braggadocio, and stories which were purely farce. There were adventures in Cambodia and in forgotten cities of the jungles where monkeys climb and chatter in the trees.

Joe it seemed had killed his bull in the Spanish bull ring, had climbed the Matterhorn and had shaken hands with Mussolini.

Genevieve listened proudly. She herself had never cared to travel, and all of these adventures had happened while she stayed safely and happily at home in Chicago.

"I don't believe I've told you, Jerry," Joe said, "how I fought and won my duel. It was on the Island of Capri in the Mediterranean where every one is a little crazy anyhow and can you believe it? It was fought with pistols.

"A very hot-tempered Italian count who ran a fashionable seafood restaurant offered to fight me with pistols, rapier, stiletto or any weapon I cared to name, because I had made insulting remarks about his lobsters.

"The betting in the public square big odds at 10 to 1 against me, for the count was a famous duelist and a wicked fighter.

"For a moment I was frightened. But I never fought with the stiletto and my swordsmanship and accuracy with a pistol were very good. So I quickly remembered I could choose the weapon and I betbought me of two boys about fifty blunt-pointed arrows which I had brought from Africa.

"Luckily I was an expert in archery.

"The count was absolutely apoplectic when I told him we would fight with bow and arrows. He said this, no gentleman ever fought with such a weapon, but he was too proud to call off the duel.

"So we went up the mountainside with our bows and arrows next morning with the count and seconds and surgeons. I Italian and flashing his white teeth savagely. The second paced off the distance and we began shooting.

"The count was terrible. He couldn't come within twenty feet of me with his arrows and I was deadly accurate and kept shooting him in his very ample paunch. Finally, yelling like an Indian he turned tail and started down the mountainside for the village to get anything him getting in a shot every few steps.

"The whole populace joined in the run and I was quite the hero of the place. But I had to leave the island shortly after that because every time I went to eat at the count's restaurant he tried to poison me."

"I don't believe a word of it," Jerry said, "but I wish you'd tell us another one."

After dinner Joe showed them his collection of guns and his miniature collection of liquors, his trophies of the hunt and his first editions. He had some striking animal drawings by Charles Livingston Bull, one of a snarling black panther, and several of other jungle cats.

But Jerry, a little weary of the whole affair, slipped away to the wide, glassed-in terrace to look out over the midnight city lying below her.

The traffic streamed along the dark drive in ribbons of light and the Lindbergh beacon wheeled its blue shaft in great 300-mile circles. The arms, lamps of Lincoln park seemed scarcely more than candles they were so far below her, and the lights of the higher towers were reflected in the lake.

Jerry thought of the people in that vast city lying below her who did not know where their next meal was coming from and of the mothers with underfed children who had no way of getting them the proper food or the proper medical care.

She thought of the men sleeping wrapped in newspapers in Lincoln park and Grant park and the other parks of the city; of men lying under the bridges and in doorways at Wacker drive huddled together for warmth.

She thought of the hundreds of people who in this rich city, with its vast resources, must gather about the garbage pits to find their food.

And she hated Joe, she hated herself for the sleek lobby clothes she was wearing and the expensive food she had just eaten.

She hated the whole world which elevated money above body and soul and which made a commodity out of virtue of her employer.

And yet she knew that if she did not play the game in the way Jr was being played she would die as surely as a wild mouse caught in a trap or any live pigeon tossed up before the trap shooters.

But the question ran bitterly in her ears. Should she say yes to Joe and have all the beautiful things she ever wanted or should she starve and be brave and good and defiant?

She was startled by the thought that after all she had never met her own worst enemy. She wanted, wanted, everything in the world. She wanted life and love and happiness. And she must not betray herself into the hands of the hunter.

What if she should open the window and jump. That would be the easy way out and the way in which people were choosing to solve their problems.

But no, Jerry wanted to live too strongly to contemplate suicide. She wanted life, crowded on pavement below.

And she made a great resolution standing there alone on the dark terrace. She would find some way to solve her problems. She would find some one to help her, she could turn for advice and counsel.

And if she could find no one she would fight her battle alone.

"What If She Should open the Window and Jump?"

CHAPTER EIGHT

To whom could Jerry go with her problem?

Sarah would be no help at all. Genevieve Middleton would not believe her and if she did it would ruin her life. None of Jerry's friends were of the sort one could have an intimate a problem.

Jerry wished that Peter Baird who had always been much more than a mere brother-in-law to Jerry could be here now. He would think of some way out. Good old dependable Peter. If there was no other way Pete would give Joe Middleton the trimming of his smooth and urbane life.

Peter had a body like an Olympic champion and a real temper when it was aroused. Then she stopped herself to remember that in all probability there was no Peter any more.

No Jerry could see no such easy solution or no such dependable successor in sight.

Then she thought of Harriet Wilson. Harriet was bitter it was true. And she had said some desperately hateful things to Jerry. But she was open and above board and she had been the only one who had thought, just a little, against Joe. Moreover, Jerry felt sure Harriet would not betray a confidence.

And Harriet seemed to have almost the power of second sight about Joe.

She controlled her business and knew his past. She undoubted, he could if she would make him behave.

And so the morning after the dinner at Middleton's Jerry asked Harriet into her office and shut the door.

"You were right about Joe," she said.

"What do you expect me to do about it?" Harriet snapped.

"I only want your advice." Jerry said. "I'm really awfully alone in this matter."

"Well?"

"You see I've got the kids and mother to look after and Jackie's sick.... And he's promised to take care of all of us and send Jackie west in a better climate...."

"And in return?"

"He hasn't asked anything definite," Jerry said dropping her eyes. "He's been very considerate and kind to me if I didn't accept the house and all the rest.... Oh Harriet I need your advice so badly."

"He's a beast," Harriet said. "I don't know why I've stood for him all those years.... And smooth! There's nothing in the world as smooth as Joe Middleton. Charming, too. Tells such delightful stories; treats a girl so romantically—so delicately so—Look, I hate him! But I can't quite believe he's dangerous," Jerry said. "Maybe he just wants to be good to me."

"Good to you! Don't you believe it. Whenever Joe Middleton is good to any one he has plenty of reason. He's good to you like a cat is to a mouse."

"What do you mean?"

"He's a hunter—sportsman' is the term he uses. He'll pay any price, fight any length of time, for the hunt, hunt till the end of the trail, but you'll be correct about where some time, and then—"

"But what can I do?" Jerry wailed. "I can't give up my job and I can't accept—"

"Here's my advice," Harriet said, and her voice was more kindly than Jerry had ever before heard it. "Play a waiting game. Out-maneuver him in every battle. Refuse to give him an answer as long as you possibly can and when he's become God help you to be strong."

Harriet's bitter, but honest words were like a bracing tonic to Jerry. She felt imbued with a new determination and a spirit of defiance. Somehow she would keep her little family well and happy and safe and bring them the wages she could honestly earn.

She felt that if worse came to worse Harriet would be relied upon to help but she did not intend to call upon her unless she could see no other way clear.

They had scarcely concluded their conference on strategy when Jerry's telephone rang and she heard Joe's voice at the other end of the line.

"We're sailing on the Sea Gull for Lexington, Mich. at 1 this afternoon," Joe said. "Have to pick up a New York buyer over there. Be at the dock at 12."

"In this a command or an invitation?" Jerry wanted to know.

"A little of both," Joe said. "I'll need you to take some letters and I thought you might enjoy the trip. It will be the last on the season."

"I'll be there," Jerry said.

She supposed after she had hung up the receiver she should have refused. But she felt definitely it had been better under the rules of command in Joe's voice. And, of course, she reasoned there would be many other aboard the yacht.

Besides this would be a good chance as any to show him once and for all that she was a totally independent person not amendable to his least whim or caprice. In fact, to bring to the danger of the situation.

Jerry had no time to get to her home and back before the boat would leave. The best she could do was to phone Sarah she would be out of town for three days on a business trip and not to worry.

Then she rushed out and bought two nightgowns, a toothbrush, a jar of cold cream, some powder and a few other essentials.

She borrowed overnight bag from one of the girls at the office and by noon was standing on the Grand Park Yacht club dock at Lexington.

Joe pulled up in a speedboat a moment after she had arrived and helped her into the seat beside him. Then across the water she caught her first glimpse of the Sea Gull, a low-lying clean-cut boat with a sharp prow some 175 feet in length with squat oval funnels and a sweep of white deck. She was spotlessly white with green trimmings and there were flashes of shining brass and deeply polished walnut woodwork.

"Well, what do you think of the old scow?" Joe asked. "This yacht is the manager in live aboard for a couple of days?"

"Not for office work," Jerry said non committally but her heart was the better with excitement over the fact that she was about to make her first trip on a yacht.

"I do wish I had been able to bring a few more clothes," she said aloud.

"Well find some somewhere," Joe said smiling. "You need a few anyhow—office work."

"Not for office work," Jerry said sternly. "This office dress should last through the week-end. And I should like to know why the $15 you advanced was not taken out of my pay today?"

"Purely an oversight," Joe assured her. "We're not going to be ridiculous about my buying you little things now and then are you?"

"Oh please," Jerry begged, "don't force me to think about that sort of thing now. Do let's have a pleasant trip and I shall starting in to be face."

"Just as you like," Joe said.

Joe, who was dressed in a dark blue suit and yachting cap turned the big wheel of the boat and sent it accompanying in dangerous curves among the lesser yachts of the harbor, then headed straight out into the Sea Gull. Jerry hung on until her fingers ached. She wanted to tell Joe to drive his speedboat more carefully, but she was afraid he might laugh at her.

"STATE TROOPER" A THRILLING YARN AT THE CAPITOL

A lamp kicked over by a cow is reputed to have started the great Chicago fire. An earthquake, followed by fire, destroyed the city of San Francisco in 1906. Overflow of the Mississippi River, maddened by torrential rains, caused the inundation of surrounding country not so many years ago. But what happened to a community of giant among oil refineries happened to be the target of bombs dropped from an airplane hurling through the darkness of night.

That is the basic situation in the romantic melodrama, "State Trooper" scheduled to open at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow (Saturday). Besides this sensational menace among decorated oil concerns who would maintain their high price on gasoline although it meant probable death and destruction.

Thrill after thrill follows in this fast moving scenario and in the hands of Director D. Ross Lederman, famous in Hollywood for his handling of action stories, there is not one lump from start to finish.

Regis Toomey and Evalyn Knapp head a strong cast including Kirby Maxwell, Barbara Weeks, Matthew Betz, Walter McGrail, Raymond Hatton, Don Chapman and Lew Kelly.

A New Western

The pulsing westward of America's frontiers by means of the telegraph, whose "singing wires" the Indians regarded with fear and hatred as a new "medicine" of the whites, forms the theme of Western-graph's four-star western, "The Thundering Trail," which comes to the Capitol Theatre with John Wayne as the star, accompanied by his "miracle horse," Duke.

Hundreds of Indians from various western reservations take part in the battle scenes of "The Thundering Trail," which forms a stirring part in the climax of the story.

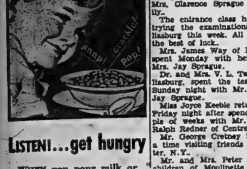
JULY 7- MR. AND MRS.- THE LAST PLACE IN THE WORLD

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION



(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Owawa was happy as they set forth and so was the old chief who went with the party; though why the old chief was happy about it was a matter concerning trouble to guess. They had marched two days into the interior when the chief sent one of his own men with a message. "It is to my friend," he explained, "asking him to come and meet us and lead us to his village."

A few hours later, as the little caravan emerged from the jungle on a broad plain, they saw a large band of warriors approaching. "Here comes my friend!" cried the chief. "See!" and he pointed toward a figure at the head of the blacks whose spears and white plumes gleamed in the sunlight. Owawa hated. "They come for war and not for peace," he exclaimed fearfully.

As the warriors came closer Owawa saw a giant warrior at their head, a white man armed with rifle and pistol. He inquired of the chief his name and was told that he was called Tarzan and his warriors are here to see what they can do for their old friend." The chief grinned. "Your rummy came," said the ape-man, "bringing your message. Tarzan and his warriors are here to see what they can do for their old friend." The chief grinned. "Your rummy came to me, O Tarzan, four days since. Two days later came the fellow with his carriers bearing gold to the coast. I told him you would buy it if the gold was rightfully his."

18 HOMELESS FIREMEN HURT

Oil Stove Explosion Destroys Three Houses in Quebec

Crevier, Que., July 17—Eight firemen were slightly burned and 18 persons were driven from their homes here Thursday when fire, caused by the explosion of an oil stove, destroyed three houses and damaged several others, causing damage estimated at $30,000.

The injured firemen, members of the fire department of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, a nearby village, were given first aid and sent home. The homeless families had made arrangements for temporary accommodation in the homes of friends.

Destroyed houses are those of Ezienne Crevier, Mrs. Normandin Crevier, Paul Crevier and Robert Harnest. The home of Rene Crevier and the nearby school house were damaged by the flames.

FELINE IMPRISONED IN TROUGH RELEASED

Four Attempts Made By Firemen Before Rescued

The ghost of upper Front Street whose midnight mewing had disturbed residents of the block for the past two days, after it had become trapped behind a false front in an eave trough hanger in the upper portion of the building, was rescued today by firemen of No. 1 station. Three times during the past two days firemen of the station under the direction of acting Fire Chief Gerald Vance, had attempted to trace the elusive feline to its hiding place, but had been forced to retire with their ladders and equipment, defeated. On Friday, another attempt was made to rescue the animal, and this time Mr. Chas. Weaver, one of the firemen managed to secure a hand hold on the tail of the cat. In spite of the wild clawing and scratching of the frightened animal it was dragged from its trap. This emaciated, dishevelled and thoroughly wild, after its two day imprisonment, the feline scrambled down with considerable speed in hiking out of sight when released.

RADIO AND SCREEN STARS IN RIOT OF FUN AND MUSIC

Paramount sets a new standard in beauty, fun and music in that amazingly vicious "International House," which comes to the Belle Theatre tomorrow (Saturday) and Monday, matinee daily.

It's an hilarious production starring the unhidden talents of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, the screamingly funny W. C. Fields, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Colonel Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle and Budd, the lugubrious Rudy Valee, Cab Calloway and his orchestra, the charming little radio performer, Baby Rose Marie, Sam's excellent troupers as Stuart Erwin, Sari Maritza, Edna Lagoe, Irene Ardrey, Sterling Holloway, Franklin Pangborn, Edmund Breese and Lumsden Hare carry the romance and comedy roles, and last those lovely "Girls in Cellophane."

Fanay Mr. Fields

You've never seen anything quite as funny as the eccentric Professor Quail, portrayed by Fields, who starts off from Jubilee, Kansas, on a non-stop flight to Kansas City with a load of 13. He used his compass needle to darn his socks, finds himself in Wu-Hu, China, believing over the "International House." Down he comes to get involved with Bonita Hopkins Joyce and her jealous ex-husband, General Petronovich, played by Sir Lugosi.

At the hotel is Dr. Wong and his radiocrew, invented to it have cons representatives of all the power conscious. Stuart Erwin, the American representative, gets measles on the eve of his wedding to the daughter of the British power magnate. Burns and Allen are the doctor and nurse, and everybody in the hoselery is slightly cracked, in the most insanely funny humor that has been on the screen in years and years.

New Songs Heard

The music written for Vallee and Baby Rose Marie is just as fetching as the previous Ralph Ranger hits. "Please," "Moanin' Low," "Here Lies Love," "The Moon Song" and Mae West's famous "A Man Likes His Fun" by Robin wrote the lyrics.

You've never seen anything quite as beautiful as the costumes worn by the inimitable Peggy Hopkins Joyce nor any girls quite as lovely as the exciting "Girls in Cellophane."

"International House" has everything, a grand story with laughs and giggles and roars galore; music that you'll be whistling for days and days, and quite enough beauty and loveliness to make your eyes pop. And it's a comic paradise and a laugh-riot for the spectator.

The screen's versatile comedian, Charley Chase in "Arabian Tight" and a tuneful revue all in full beautiful color titled "Yes for Two" and a delightful novelette will be exhibited on the same program.

Drive-Ins Tonight

James Dunn and Sally Eilers score triumph again in their latest hit "Hold Me Tight," which closes a highly successful engagement at the Belle tonight. Frank McHugh and lovely June Clyde have prominent roles in support of the stars. Fatty Arbuckle in "Hey Pop," the Belle Canadian News, and Screen Pictorial precede the feature offering.

DOLLAR-STERLING BLOC TO LIFT PRICES?

Bureau To Confirm Vote To Continue Agenda and Carry on Tariff Talks

French Delegation State They Are Not Hostile to Conference

BOOST PRICES

Britain And Canada Will Use Other Means Besides Inflation

London, July 8 — (CP and AP Cable)—Sydney was stamped "safe" on its efforts either to adjourn the World Economic Conference or to settle its discussions so as to exclude monetary and tariff topics.

High quarters said the 25 to 15 vote of the monetary commission sub-committee to continue work on all phases of the conference agenda would be confirmed by the bureau, board of steering committee Monday.

At the same time they look for a reversal by the bureau of last night to seven ballot by which the committees on commercial policy voted down a proposal to continue discussion of tariffs and quotas.

Acknowledgment of defeat, however, did not mean that the bloc led by the French Premier intended to relax the fight against any move of a nature inimical to gold currency, clen. On the contrary it was said, yesterday's development merely meant the conference would be thrown back entirely on itself, plunged from one fight into another.

"To put it anything," said a member of the French delegation, "with an important currency like the dollar fluctuating. "France is not hostile to the conference. But how can we do with money jumping about? You can make agreements, but you can't set aside currencies."

The French let it be known they consider the 15 votes they mustered for their cause yesterday afternoon formed a most imposing monority representing all Europe except Scandinavia, Portugal and Russia, and that was sufficient for their ends.

Canada And U. S. May Join

On the other hand, prediction was heard Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the United States, according on somewhat varied lines, would join for a dollar-sterling bloc in an effort to lift prices.

Such a possibility was called a consequence of the fight by European non-inflationary countries against continuing with the compromise as outlined by the conference preparatory commission.

This would not mean that Britain would embark on an inflationary course, it was predicted, but would take other steps to raise prices.

In gold bloc quarters it was said later in the day that it was said to have pointed out to Nevile Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald that if Britain did not participate in a price-raising programme the conditions might be forced to consider divorcing the Canadian dollar from sterling. Thereby he was credited with having moved Great Britain away from gold bloc sympathies.

JACK CRAWFORD

Playing inspired tennis, Jack Crawford of Australia succeeded his fellow countryman, Ellsworth Vines of the United States, as champion of the famous Wimbledon tourney whilst gathers the greatest tennis stars of the world, when he received a smashing of the score, 11-9; 4-6; 3-6; 6-4; was taken as an indication that Australia has a mighty good chance now to defeat the United States in the Davis Cup final. Last year Vines defeated Crawford decisively in the final.

Against this policy a line of defence was expected to be considered at a meeting today in Paris of the gold bloc central bank governors and experts. One plan under consideration is the purchase of gold bloc currencies if they fall below a certain level.

Following this meetings of the monetary and commercial experts sub-committees to consider what topics will be discussed, nearly all conference business was suspended until Monday.

Countess of Athlone Raises Gentle Protest

London, July 8—(CP Cable)—"We are not really robots," laughingly declared Princess Alice, the Countess of Athlone in a speech made today against public tendency to expect extraordinary physical endurance on the part of the members of the Royal family.

Princess Alice, cousin of His Majesty, was deputizing at the ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the hospital for sick children for the Princess Royal, Princess Mary, who was once a nurse at the hospital. Princess Mary was obliged to cancel the engagement at a time to take a rest.

Manslaughter Charge is Aftermath of Accident Near Brighton

EVIDENCE GIVEN

T. Martin of This City States Car Travelled 75 yds. on Wrong Side

Cobourg, Ont., July 8 (AP)—Dr. Carl Haig, Oshawa veterinary surgeon, was committed for trial in police court here today on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the deaths of Mrs. Edith Patterson and son James, killed in a motor accident near Brighton last June 16. Dr. Haig was admitted to bail of $5,000.

The accident out of which the manslaughter charges arose occurred near Brighton when the car, driven by Dr. Haig, and in which Mrs. Patterson and son were passengers, collided with another vehicle driven by Thomas Martin, Toronto school teacher.

Preliminary Hearing.

Brighton, Ont., July 8 (CP) — Preliminary hearing of Dr. Carl Haig, Oshawa professor and a Queen's University graduate, on charges of manslaughter was held here yesterday and at the conclusion of evidence was adjourned until Monday.

The charges are an aftermath of a motorcar accident near here on June 16 in which Mrs. Edith Patterson of Kingston and her son, James, were fatally injured, while Dr. Haig was driven by Dr. Haig. The Haig machine met in a head-on collision with one driven by Thomas Martin, Toronto school teacher, returning to his Bayside home for the summer holidays.

At yesterday's hearing Martin gave his version of the accident:

"I saw a car from east come over the line from the right to the wrong side of the road," he said.

"I turned over to get clear but he headed right for me and collided with me. I was almost entirely off the pavement."

Travels 75 Yards on Wrong Side

Witness said the Haig vehicle had travelled about 75 yards on the wrong side of the road before the collision.

Another witness, Junius May, 22 Clifford Street, Toronto, said he was following Haig's car, which he estimated to be travelling about 35 to 40 miles per hour. A short time before the collision he noticed that the wrong side of the road, he said, and the westbound machine was on the north side.

After the collision May said he found Haig drowsy unconscious over the wheel of the car which also contained two boys and a girl.

Edward McBrien, 523 Parlan Rd., Oshawa, said he arrived shortly after the accident happened. One car was facing west and the other was partly in the ditch. Haig's car said McBrien, was on the left-hand side of the road.

Dr. Clarke of Brighton, stated Mrs. Patterson died from shock due to a fracture of the skull.

Dr. D. Dure, of Brighton, said the place where the accident occurred was known for its sun glare and had been the scene of many previous accidents.

Mattern Requires New Engine Before Leaving Anadyr Siberia

Believed Engine Damaged When Plane Forced Down

Moscow, July 8—(AP)—Fragmentary reports received by Tass (Russian news agency) today said Jimmie Mattern had been forced down 43 miles from Anadyr, Siberia, by engine trouble after leaving Khabarovsk, Siberia, June 18 on a projected flight to Nome.

The report, received from Khabarovsk, said the American aviator had been given immediate assistance by Soviet frontier guards.

He will be supplied with a new motor and will continue after roundthe-world flight he started from New York on June 3, Tass was informed.

Mattern was flying to Nome, Alaska, when he dropped from sight. His original plans called for the next step at Edmonton and in the absence of other information it is presumed he will follow that schedule on his resumed journey.

A telegram was received yesterday from Mattern reading simply: "Safe at Anadyr, Chukotka, Siberia. Jimmie Mattern."

The report about the engine was taken to indicate that it was so badly damaged it was impossible to make repairs with the limited facilities available at Anadyr.

Undoubtedly, the Soviet government's dispatch of a plane assistance to the flyer by aeroplane but detailed steps to repair Mattern's motor has not been disclosed.

The Tass dispatch did not give the date on which the American landed nor was it explained how such a long time was required to receive word, that he was safe.

Winnipeg, July 8 (CP)—Renewed assault of heat on Western Canada wheat lands brought a wave of speculative buying in the wake today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and prices rose 3-8 to 1 7-8 higher halfway through the short session. July moved up to $1 7-8, October to 94 3-4, December to 96 3-8 and May to 99 1-4.

Upward march of prices, maintaining a trend which has scarcely been interrupted all week, paralleled higher levels in Chicago and Liverpool. Buying, generally was credited to houses with eastern and southern connections.

Forecast of continued high temperatures over the week end provided fresh fuel for bullish enthusiasm.

H. D. SHUTE GOLF CHAMP

Defeats Craig Wood Five Shots in 36 Hole Playoff

St. Andrew's, Scotland, July 8— H. Denamore Shute, 28 year old American professional from Philadelphia, today captured the British Open Golf Championship by beating his countryman, Craig Wood, of Deal, N.J., in a 36-hole playoff.

Shute had won the first hole in the last and defeated Wood by five strokes with a 154 compared to 159 all-around shot-making.

Wood had a commanding shot the double round in 73-74—149, only three strokes, over par for the 36 holes. Wood's score was 76-83—159.

Wood and Shute finished the regulation 72 holes yesterday tied at 292 after one of the most exciting finishes in the history of the tournament.

Shute succeeds to the title won last year by Gene Sarazen, who failed by only one stroke to tie the leadership. This is the tenth consecutive year the classic trophy of British golf has been a representative of the United States.

Shute was much too consistent with his irons and putted cleverly around the greens for Wood, who had the more accurate drives, except with sizes on the first two holes and was able to overcome that handicap.

Mud Turtles Attack Cow and Calf Mired in Mud at Drinking Hole

Wheatley, Ont., July 8—(CP) — There's one part of West Creek's muddy marshes Gordon Hickson's cow will not go near again. This is why—and Gordon says he has plenty of proof. Incidentally, so has the cow.

Bessie led her calf—very young calf—down to the creek to drink. She waded through the heavy mud and drank. So did little bessie. But when they attempted to return, they were struck. The old cow managed and dodged and struggled some more.

A family of some 10 big mud turtles were annoyed by the rampaging cow and declared open battle on the intruders. Mother bessie and daughter around the mud quarters perhaps not a sporting thing to do, but survival, all was seriously wounded and died after being extricated from the mud. The cow is still around—wearing large patches of mud plaster. Gordon says she is ready has given instructions for turtle soup (in large quantities.)

News of the drowning reached here today when two other occupants of the boat Arthur Pilon 21, and Rita Meloche, sister of one of the victims, were rescued from a small island towards which they had been able to struggle.

The four young people were crossing the river from Thurso Que. to Lemieux Point when a sudden squall swamped the small craft, and capsized it. Arthur Pilon and Miss Meloche managed to hold on to the side of the boat, but Miss Gauthier was swept away.

Struggles Fatal

Alphee Meloche, who was a strong swimmer, immediately went to the rescue of the young woman, but was able to seize her, and was guiding her to the small boat, but in the rough water Miss Gauthier's frantic struggles dragged them both under.

By paddling with their hands, Pilon and the other rescued person were able to propel the boat to a small island off Clarence Point. Their repeated shouts for help attracted the attention of Cecil Chevrier, operator of the ferry between Thurso and Clarence Point. He towed to the island, and discovered the marooned couple.

Police and residents of the neighborhood began dragging operations at dawn today, and five rowboats patrolled the area of the tragedy all morning without success.

The Ottawa River is about a mile wide at the point where the four sought to cross

FIREMEN STAY CLOSE TO TRUCKS

Firemen have been hovering closely to the fire trucks in both local stations during the past day or so. Rain have been alert for the first warning tinkle of a telephone alarm which might send them on the flying trucks through city streets. An air of expectancy pervades the men.

Acting Fire Chief Gerald Vance explains it this way: "School's out. Kids are building Indian tents and bonfires in vacant lots all through the city. Generally they go to the center and leave the little camp fires burning. A spark catches the grass in the lots—and then we're busy. This is our busy season."

DOGS CAUSE HAVOC AMONG FLOWERS

Complaints are heard in East Belleville of the ravages caused by dogs among flower beds and in gardens. One citizen who has gone to much care to have his flower beds in excellent shape saw a lamentable sight when he stepped into his back garden this morning. The dogs had got there first and the plants, some of them in bloom, were broken off, the sign of their passing everywhere. This citizen complained of the manner in which dogs still run at large despite the city by-law.

CRUDE WORK ON COINS SEEN

A number of silvered one-cent pieces have made their appearance in town, but have been giving store keepers some concern. The coins are crude attempts at counterfeits and appear to be the amateurish work of juveniles who might have attempted to pass them as twenty-five cent pieces in the rush of business. One of the better jobs seen was a coin filed down round on the edge in imitation of the milled edge of the genuine quarter.

POLICE DIRECT MARKET TRAFFIC

BELIEVE TURTLE BIT YOUNG BOY DIVING

Quite a Commotion at End of Victoria Park

Willis Wood stretched to his full 10 year old height on the spring-board at the end of Victoria Park Friday afternoon, and then in front of admiring companions, executed a perfect swan dive into the twelve foot depth of water below.

A moment later he reappeared above the surface, yelled loudly, and dove again. Playmates stood on the rail and waited apprehensively for the next move. Willis again broke water in a shower of spray and noise and hollered for help. Two larger boys jumped in the water and assisted him to shore.

On the raft he displayed a left foot, with blood flowing from the ankle. Blood cosed from the cuts. Willis explained that all he knew about it is "something grabbed him." Companions said it was a snapping turtle. Others said it was a big fish, while still others are watching warily for a big snake.

Although the dandelion is a nuisance on the lawn, field experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture have observed that sheep prefer dandelions to good Kentucky blue grass.

Bisley Meet Opens Today With Best Marksmen In The World

By THOS. T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bisley Camp, England, July 8—(CP)—Crack shots from all parts of the empire will compete this week in the annual competitions assure the Great England meeting of the National Rifle Association opening Monday and lasting two weeks will be one of the most successful in the long record that starting in 1860.

Canada's team of 14 picked marksmen, practicing on the famous ranges for the past week, look remarkably fit and their shooting has been consistently good at all stages. They enter the big shoots confident of dragging down some of the great historic prizes that have so often been taken back to Canada—perhaps the King's own Rifles' classic f service rifle shooting.

Miss Margaret Hyde, who runs a chicken farm near the ranges, the only woman ever to win the King's prize, is again in the competition, along with her friends Miss Babcock and Miss Rotenburgh. Mrs. Barbara Thomas of the Malay States is another women competitor. Of the women however only Miss Foster is qualified for the King's prize, having to past or present members of His Majesty's forces, having given an ambulance during the war.

Tom Fox, 80-year-old marksman, is in the lists with many other veterans who are not yet only familiar figures at Bisley but formidable competitors as well.

Some of the smallest rifle shots are using a new stream-lined bullet, which can also be used in the service rifles for which most of the big Bisley shoots aredesigned, but marksmen seem to be divided in their opinion of it.

LaBrash "Imperials" Royally Entertained in Toronto

Lindsay Goodwill Tour Stops at Trenton on Thursday

Trenton, July 8 (Special)—Royally could not have been welcomed ally could not have been welcomed like "imperial" softball team were on Thursday when they attended the annual Imperial Oil picnic at Hanlan's Point, Toronto, under the auspices of "The 56 Church Street Club."

George had everyone on deck at five a.m. and three hours later they pulled in the Imperial Oil garage at Toronto. The first order of business was breakfast with a tour of the city later with members of the Toronto staff. The most interesting feature being a trip through the Maple Leaf Gardens.

Every nook and corner were carefully examined by the local boys.

The huge ice making machines, the heating plant, grumasium and the snow rooms along the corridor. Then in the afternoon when each member was introduced to none other than "Happy" Day well known captain of the Maple Leaf hockey club. "Happy" has just returned from his honeymoon in Europe.

Leaving the Gardens the party proceeded to the starting point, where the team donned their new sweaters of red and white, the new Imperial Oil colors and marched in the swanky Ontario club, where they dined as guests of Col. E. A. Oliver, former general manager of the Imperial Oil, who was supervising affairs on July 1st.

After a sumptuous banquet, Mr. Oliver, vice-president of the Toronto, thanked Col. Oliver on behalf of his own boys, who were in attendance and Geo. LaBrash and his visiting team. Col. Oliver then replied stating that the pleasure was all his and thanked the boys to come again as he was always glad to be with them. The visiting room was picturesque with twelve men in uniform lined on one side of the table. Other officers present were George Stevenson of the school of instruction, A. R. Carr, chief engineer and three supervisors "Rex" Simmers, W. Nimmis and T. Norris.

Mr. LaBrash ably thanked Col. Oliver for his wonderful surprise in inviting the boys to such a fine place as the Ontario Jockey club.

After dinner the party journeyed to Hanlan's Point, where they enjoyed the program of sports held in the old Maple Leaf stadium. The team was photographed on the field with Col. Oliver, Mr. Pope and their generous sponsor, George LaBrash.

The trip was served at the palm gardens with the members of the Maryvales team present.

Ice cream was free and most of the local boys enjoyed their first trip to the fullest extent, especially when they found that their club pet, goalkeeper of the Maple Leaf hockey club was dishing out the ice cream. The game with the club lost, but were not disgraced as called at 6.30 p.m.

After the game the boys were free to do as they liked some attended the show, some visited and others stayed for the dance. They stayed out so long that they arrived via transport yesterday morning after they were lost or were late in arriving at the final meeting place.

Words cannot express the appreciation that Geo. and his boys hold for the generosity shown them.

The Game.

Tom Young pitched the first ball to K. Young with Col. Oliver at bat, "Abbey" the clown of Toronto and "Wardy" of Trenton thrilled the crowd with their funny antics on the field.

Pickard, the Marvelubes southpaw-twirler again faced the locals while Les Coughlin turned in a fine game for the Imperials. The Toronto lads opened the scoring when Emerson scored in the first inning. The locals went one up in the 4th after Kennedy was safe, Waldron and Berry hit safely to load the bases, Young in Waldron when he fanned on first when a hit.

"Rex." Simmers manager of the Marvelubes played his first game of the season and considering lal, he played well except it cost him one buck when he failed to score a run. LaBrash made an easy one, but it looked bad at one time after the locals caught Silmers coming up to the third sack. He failed to get on a base the other four trips homers for the Marvelubes while up, McGowan and Pickard had Jordon and Coughlin each connected for the circuit. Errors proved the downfall for the locals as they failed their frak 8-5 on Young's run struck out 10 to Pickard's five. but after nine innings, the Marvelubes had 13 runs to the Imperial's 8.

Addresses Rotary Club

Mr. Art Wilson, past president of the Lindsay Kiwanis Club visited Trenton yesterday with Lindsay community service club's trailer enroute to Quebec and the Maritimes on a good-will tour.

Mr. Allin addressed the Rotary club at the Clifford House yesterday noon pointing out the unfairness of Ontario in his boycott from the Maritimes. Much of Ontario's products are bought down east and they find no market for their products, especially coal and flax. Freedom of the tour is to bind together these two parts of Canada for a more lasting feeling of unity and friendship.

The tour is sponsored by the Kiwanis club of Lindsay and patronized by the Lindsay Exam.

It is hoped this tour will increase trade and tourist traffic between Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes.

The tour has so far covered No. 3 and 7 highways in western Ontario and No. 2 and the tourist. This is the first week in Eastern Ontario. Belleville will be visited on Tuesday under the patronage of the Kiwanis club.

The tour is expected to finish about Nov. 1 after covering nearly fifteen thousand miles and visiting 130 towns and cities enroute.

Accompanying Mr. Allin are his helpers, Norman Maldens and Rea Stinson, with Mr. Jack Maunder of the Lindsay Daily Press as publicity man.

Last evening dancing was held in the market square with music furnished by the Coach Brookes-Irwin Mr. Allin announcing. He proceeds go to the Trenton Hockey club. Between dances business broadcasts were made and a speech by Mr. Allin explaining the aims of the tour.

CRYSTALACS TIE FOR LEAD

Defeat B. A. A. A. Kids 3-1 to Draw Even With Wellington

Restricting the B.A.A.A. hitters to three hits Ross Langman on the hill top for the Crystalacs was in rare form last night and behind the timely hitting of his team mates registered to 3 to 1 victory for the "east enders" at the Alemite grounds in a pitcher's battle in which he bested Bud Roseberry of the Associaton nine.

Snappy fielding and spectacular plays by both clubs featured the game that was played in record time and witnessed by a large crowd of interested spectators. The win pulls Art Young's charges up even with the previously league leading Wellington jumkers, each club having six wins and two loses in the season's play.

Langman, with a fast breaking curve literally mowed the B.A.A.A. hitters before him when he restricted them to three singles, a triple by Cy Barriage and a single each by Roseberry and Carleyy. Don Thomas behind the bat for the "Lac" kids carefully and wisely handled the slants of Langman as catcher. Brilliant fielding by the "Lac's" infielders also featured.

Bud Roseberry, on the mound for the Association kids, was also in rare form letting the hard hitting "east enders" down with five hits. McLean with a triple and four singles were the only hits registered.

Crystalacs—Drury, rf; Binfield, lf; McLean and Rigby, cf; Sero, ss; Thomas, c; Cole and Thompson, 1b; Langman, p; Bennett, 2b; Lee and Semark, 3b.

B.A.A.A.—Carleyy, rf; Barriage, ss; Genereaux, cf; Saunders, 1b; Roseberry, p; Hall, lf; Demblo, c; Angell and Temple, 2b; Lickfold, 3b.

MAPLE LEAFS EASILY TAKEN

Fruit Lassies Now Lead Girls Loop Through 12-1 Win

Completely outclassing their rivals, the Maple Leafs, Sinh Barrett's Belleville Fruit lassies pulled into first position of the local girls' softball league when they defeated the Leafs by the score of 12 to 1 at the Victoria Park diamond last evening. Vera Hey started on the hilltop for the winners and restricted Harold Lloyd's charges to three hits and but a single run for six innings. "Babe" Lewis then took over the pitching duties and went on to three innings of no run no hit ball. A. Halsey and Marion Mordeville shared the pitching duties of the Leafs but were afforded rather loose support by their fielders throughout.

Only one home run was registered, that coming from the bat of Marion Mondeville of the Leafs who clouted one high up and far away into the Main Flirt, along the right field foul line for four bases. Doris Bland of the Fruit team left her team mates with the hickory collecting a single and a double out of five official times at bat. E. Thrasher had two singles. Poor fielding on the part of the Leafs counted for the majority of the runs scored by the winners.

Belleville Fruit—Kelleher, Morgan, Tuttle, Smith, Bland, Bowbotham. Dracup; Canning, Leavey, Lewis and Hey.

Maple Leafs—Mondeville, Young, Means, White, Asselline, Halsey, Ginsberg, Rushlow, Simmons.

Knocks and Boosts

Following the Toronto Terrier Kingston Percy game to the Limestone City one week ago today the Kingston executive decided to lodge a protest with President "Dick" Hansell of the West Toronto League, relative to the inferior class of ball played that are being presented in the Limestone City during these inter-locking games.

Perhaps the Penies are faulted in their protest but then again they may be a little premature as the New Toronto clubs are scheduled to appear down there on Civic Holiday. To date the Penies have fared quite well when they met the West Toronto teams in their exhibition games this summer but not so when the reputation of the Central League was at stake and the Penies lost two straight to the New Toronto club last fall in the first round of the senior O.B.A.A. play-downs.

Of course when a club is lying around $131.80 on the line to defray a visiting club's expenses they naturally expect the best that money can purchase in baseball circles. On the other hand and for example, the Nationals lagged nine runs in the initial frame against the Hawks last week and then went on merely to protect their lead so as to give the fans something for the price of a ball game instead of piling up a score that would eventually react against the club during future home games.

:-:-:

Incidentally we, sincerely hope that the Penies of the West Toronto loop are anything but encouraging last week. On the surface, however, and taking into consideration the class of ball Dick Mansell's clubs are dishing up, it cannot be denied that the Penies are satisfied "goats' fishin', we sumpin', rather than watching the New Toronto nabobs kick and beat the old apple around the ball yard. As a matter of fact things have become so grastic along the lines of finance in the Mansell loop that Percy Dick has personally taken over the responsibilities of "grate tender" at Oshawa today. Last year the Dukes "packed 'em in" and literally financed the other three teams. This season "pickins" have not been "so hot" in the matter city and naturally the other clubs are "squawkin'" to a fare-the-well. If things don't soon pick up the Dukes may be back in the C.O.B.L. next season. As a matter of fact we heard recently that two other clubs west of here are considering their return to their old love, the Central League, in 1934.

This afternoon "Feeney" Mills' galloping Nationals are scheduled to meet "Kenny" Lee's Pefes at James Stevenson Park given by the Ojenabos Rirye in the Lift Lock City. The Nationals seem to be hitting on all fours, eights or what have you these days and expect to continue in their present winning streak again today.

Manager Mills announced before leaving this morning that Ernie Holmes, who upset the Petes and administered onto them their only defeat at home this season two weeks ago, will again get the pitching assignment, Holmes seems to work to a better advantage against his ex-team mates in Peterboro than any other place.

After the two shellackings that the local hitters met "Speck" Scriver with, it is highly improbable he will get the call as the Petes' starting pitcher. As a matter of fact the local swat-smiths have met with marked success against both Scriver and Kitchen. Of course Mr. Lee may change his mind and throw Bill Cahillne the pushy one, who stopped the New Toronto crew last Saturday. No matter who pitches or who plays it will be another one of those Belleville-Peterboro games that is usually filled with plenty of baseball.

:-:-:

"George" Tindall, manager of the local Tip Top Tailors, tells us that his firm has donated two fine trophies to two branches of local sport. One is to be given to the winner of the local Ki-Y softball loop, while the other goes to the winner of a special Tip Top golf tournament to be staged for local golfers at the Bay of Quinte Country Club course. George is an interested sport enthusiast and always takes a personal interest in the local sport of the town or city in which he operates a Tip Top store.

Up in Oshawa the sports scribe is bewailing the fact that the Dukes apparently are invariably below form when they meet C.O.B.L. clubs. It might be well to remember that a ball club never looks quite as good when playing a superior team.

A fine turn-out of local bowlers were on the greens of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club Friday evening when a mixed rinks event featured friendly games. The perfect night for bowling was enjoyed by some 60 members of the club.

Mr. A. A. Ballan, secretary of the Ballan Shire Council, Australia, has just stated that his salary of 50 pounds a year be reduced, knowing that the council is short on funds. Much to his surprise the Council refused this application.

PIRATES AND CUBS COMING

Due to Slump of Both New York Giants And St. Louis Cards

PIRATES ....
(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.)

More because of the slump of St. Louis Cardinals than through their own efforts, Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs were back on the edge of the National League battle today.

The Cubs made a long step toward what they hope will be the beginning of their comeback and of the Giants' first real slump by whipping Bill Terry's club 6-3 in a 10-inning duel. They spotted the league leaders five runs, staged a comeback that tied the score, then won out in an extra inning.

The Brooklyn Dodgers meanwhile gave the Cardinals an artistic lacing 10-4, to lighten up the race and leave the Giants 5½ games in front.

Cincinnati's Reds lent some enchantment to the idea of the western clubs that they will find success on their home fields by slamming out an 8-5 victory over the Boston Braves.

American League

The Detroit Tigers who have been stepping right along in the American League, advanced to fifth place in the junior circuit by defeating the New York Yankees 8-6. The Tigers discounted Babe Ruth's 19th, homer of the season by clouting Yankee pitchers for 12 hits.

Coming back to the familiar scenes of Shibe Park, three former Philadelphians, Mule Haas, Al Simmons and Jimmy Dykes led the Chicago White Sox to a 9-3 victory over the Athletics behind Eddie Durham's six-hit flinging.

The four other American League teams were idle.

Poultry relish apples, especially some of the sweeter varieties and where chickens are given the run of an apple orchard they will eat large quantities of windfalls, and in this way help to destroy the apple maggot.

SHUTE THREE UP ON WOOD

St. Andrew's, Scotland, July 8—(AP)—Deasy Shute of Philadelphia, ioj Craig Wood of Deal, N.J., by three strokes in the halfway mark of their 36-hole playoff for the British Open Golf Championship today.

Shute shot the 18 holes in 73, one under par, while Wood, after dropping five strokes to par in the first four holes, posted a 75.

Although neither was particularly impressive, especially on the inward nine, Shute was much more consistent all the way. The all-American duel for Britain's most coveted golfing trophy was staged under ideal conditions for an overnight storm had drenched the links and softened the fairways baked solid by the hot, dry weather of the past few weeks. A crowd of 2,000 followed the play.

Shute and Wood wound up the regular 72-hole journey yesterday with 293 each, necessitating the playoff. They were low scorers of the field of 295, Ross "Sandy" Somerville, London, Ont., amateur star, among them.

Wood Struggles.

Wood struggled most of the way from the time, when his second stuck at the first hole, applauded into a Swinken Burn and cost him six. The New Jersey pro bravely attempted to make a stand there by becoming bare-foot boy and paddling out of the water of a brook with walled sides.

Shute rose in every crisis of the round except at the short 11th where his tee-shot kirked into the Swinken Burn and caused that mistake cost him two strokes to par which none to Wood who stood on the side of the same trap and chipped the ball into it like a duffer. Shute finally wound up with five.

At the ninth, Wood hit the pin with a beautiful second for a birdie three but Shute matched it by holing out from six yards.

Shute three-putted the second and eighth greens for his only lapses on the outgoing nine.

The cards:

Wood out	664	543	533—38
Wood in	444	444	545—36
Shute out	455	444—39—78
Shute in	454	544	454—39—75

GOLF FACTS

NOT THEORIES!

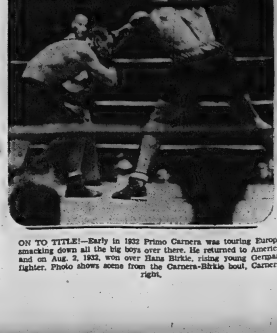
By Alex J. Morrison

ALEX MORRISON says:

Before so much attention was brought to the position of the left hand, the right hand was always uppermost in the mind of both instructor and player.

Even now many players seem to think that altering the position of the right hand on the club will overcome such errors as hooking and smothering the ball.

This does little good if the position of the left hand is faulty, for it's this hand that should control the hitting angle of the club face.



The next time you feel that your hands are out of line turn your left over a bit more and don't bother about your right.

THE WAR OF 1812

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., Local Master and Magistrate, has gone to considerable expense in gathering up the names of residents of Hastings County who were members of the Canadian forces in the War of 1812.

The United States, with a population of 10,000,000 and upwards declared war on June 18, 1812. Upper Canada with a population of only about 80,000 bore the brunt of the fighting in Canada. When the war was ended by a treaty dated December 24, 1812, no Canadian territory was in possession of the United States, while portions of the United States were in possession of the Canadian forces.

During the war on the 16th of August, 1812, the Canadians captured Detroit and took possession of the whole of Michigan taking General Hull and 3000 soldiers prisoners. General Hull and many of the prisoners were transported to Montreal, some of the Hastings County soldiers acting as guards of the captors.

Buffalo, Oswego, and Washington City were also captured.

At the capture of Detroit the Canadian forces numbered only about 800 with a number of Indians against General Hull's army of 3000. Unfortunately the hero of the canture of Michigan General Brock was killed at the battle of Queenston Heights on October 13, 1812.

It will, no doubt, be interesting to the descendants of those heroes who defended Canada in 1812-15 to know that the names of their ancestors are being preserved and made available.

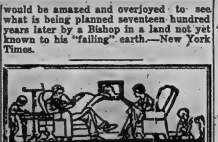
Lists of names will appear from time to time.

BACK FROM THE SILENCE

Like a voice from the other world was the message from Jimmy Mattern, the daring world solo flier, who sent out word yesterday that he was safe. The trials this man has undergone and the long time which has elapsed since he disappeared from the knowledge of mankind, have prepared a grand setting for the return of the aviator.

Fortunately Mattern is safe. Not many who have been missing will return back to civilization for the airways are exacting and Dame Nature exacts a heavy toll. Many a flier has disappeared in ocean wastes. Not long ago a missing flier's body was found on a Siberian hillside where he had been wrecked months before.

But it is a cheering note to know that some one has come through an odyssey of trials. Friends and relatives must welcome him with as much joy as they would come back from the confines from which no traveller by air or any other route returns,—the world beyond. To have suffered untold anguish in waiting the news which is so long delayed and then to be cheered by the real voice of the returning one,—there can scarcely be any greater joy on earth. That the Matterns know and only one who has gone through such an experience can fully realize the tumult and the ecstacy of their emotions.



The world loves a brave man—as a lone flier, who will track the uncharted ways, face death every minute of his world flight and then, after many days, come back.

ONE WAY TO HELP

It is scientifically impossible, said a recent writer of remote Gallic ancestry, "that we in our very own forefathers were not building some of the eighty cathedrals and three hundred great minsters with which France was (in the thirteenth century) clothing herself as with a white mantle of churches." Men and women of high and low estate worked side by side, harnessing themselves to carts, dragging in the blocks for the tower at Chartres or the belfry at Rouen, and singing canticles that passed into the very stones. Bishop Manning's recent appeal hints at an opportunity which the employed, through their gifts, and the unemployed, through the labor of their hands, may together have in giving like proud lineage to many who will be living in this city centuries hence.

The Bishop's urgent appeal is in response to letters from unemployed stonecutters, stone and slate polishers, rubbers and sawyers, tile and marble setters and helpers. Immediate employment could be given to 2,500 men if enough to pay their wages could be secured; for what is spent in this construction is practically all for labor. "The cost of the material is negligible."

Seventeen centuries ago Cyprian, Bishop of Carthage, in writing to a Roman proconsul, lamented that the earth had grown old and did no longer abide in that strength in which it formerly stood. The farmer was "failing in the fields"; the sailor at sea, the soldier in camp. Honesty was no longer in the market place, nor justice in the law courts, nor good craftsmanship in art, nor discipline in morals. But, as a modern commentator observes, order was restored, or "rather a stabilized disorder." Nor does the earth itself give sign of "failing" when the spirit of man triumphs, and its sustenance is one of the prime social duties. Cyprian would be amazed and overjoyed to see what is being planned seventeen hundred years later by a Bishop in a land not yet known to his "failing" earth.—New York Times.

THE ROBIN'S CALL

I hear you, robin, I hear you, up in the apple tree,
Your glad and merry whistle, "Cheer-ee!
cheer up! cheer-ee!"
And I'll follow your call, dear robin, back
Over the winding way,
That leads to an old-time garden, with purple lilacs gay.

And I shall pluck the blossoms, as you
sing on the maple bough,
I'll follow the lane to the old log barn;
your nest—I can see it now;
And now away you are calling to the paths
of the fragrant wood,
Where we pitched the flowers of springtime and life seemed fair and good.

Oh! the road is long, dear robin, but I'm following as you sing,
The long road, the white road, that leads to a distant Spring;
For the song that you are singing out in the apple tree
Is the voice of childhood calling across the years to me.

AN ARMED UPRISING against cats being rumored with the revolutionists rushing out at dawn to slay all black cats and any cat with an appetite for birds, considerable fear has been stirred up with the cat lovers arrayed in serried ranks against the bird lovers. Cats as household pets, mice and rat catchers are esteemed highly, even if they do kill a few birds occasionally to vary their diet, or so it seems. A recent experience of a family in Belleville would be cited as an argument in favor of cats. The family motor phaeton had been left in the garage some time while the horse folks were cramping in the country. Returning they took the car out with three friends in the back seat, two ladies with a gentleman in the middle. Hardly had they started on a sight-seeing tour about town when the gentleman arose and gave vent to anguished howls, all the time jumping up and down in a seemingly crazed manner. The car was stopped and after an exciting time it developed that a mouse had taken the trouser leg of the gentleman as an elevator and proceeded to climb him. The mouse was ejected and an examination of the car revealed a nest of mice under the seat. Since that the house has added two cats to the milk roll.

ARE YOU AS CAREFUL AS YOU THINK?

Senseless Slaughter of Humans on Roads Goes on

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Thousands of lives are lost through accidents each year. We are cautioned to be careful; Safety First" slogans are posted everywhere. Yet this useless, senseless, avoidable slaughter of human beings goes on.

Surely, downright carelessness is the primary cause of ninety-nine accidents out of every hundred. But what makes the carelessness? What, specifically, my good reader, makes you careless?

Suppose you test yourself out on this point. You read in a train, let us say, that you are taking your life in your own hands if you jump off while the train is still in motion. "A sensible warning," you think. "If people only would pay more attention to it there would be fewer accidents."

Then your thoughts drift to other things. The train slows up at the station. With other passengers you start for the door long before necessary. Then somebody jumps off, scarcely without realizing it, you think.

In this little episode several cautions and one accident are involved. One is unnecessary hurry. Another is carelessness. A third, perhaps, foolhardy acts of others. A third is knowing better but not stopping to think.

Have you ever asked yourself why you are guilty as regards failure to avoid accidents as you might be?

For instance:

1. Do you wait for a moving vehicle to come to a full stop before you get on or off?

2. Do you "duck" or run in front of automobiles?

3. As a pedestrian, do you obey the traffic signals?

4. Are you in the habit of hurrying needlessly?

5. Are you careful to acquaint yourself with the mechanism of an engine or machine before you touch it?

6. Are you careless with knives, firearms and the like?

7. Are you expert in driving your own car?

8. Do you like to speed?

9. Do you have your car overhauled for mechanical defects regularly?

10. Are you impulsive?

11. Are you suggestible?

BOY THOUGHT DEAD, FOUND

Police Turn to Kidnap Theory After The Discovery

Montreal, July 8 (CP)—As much mystified as ever over the finding of a boy's body sewed up in a potato sack in the St. Lawrence River, the Montreal police began to-day investigations of the kidnapping theory. It is suggested the boy may have been kidnapped in the United States, held for ransom and disposed of by his abductors when police began to materialize.

Resurrection of the kidnapping theory followed the explosion last night of the theory the boy was David Waterworth whose parents were widely sought at roadside motor camps between Quebec City and Ottawa. David turned up himself last night accompanied by two parents just as a man and woman local-ly near Ottawa were being questioned by police.

A resemblance between David and the body found in the river noted by the proprietor of a tourist camp at which David's parents stopped led to the police search for the Waterworth family. But while the officers were burning up the highways the Waterworths, complete ignorance of the case returned to Montreal after a motor jaunt to Toronto, rented a house and settled down.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and pop and my puppy dog Junior was taking a week before supper, and pop was reading a paper, ing passed to look at Junior, sayin' what a cute little dog, and pop said, Thanks for the compliment, his mother was Lady Hickateen and his father was Lord Effingham Stumpy, and his grandparents were Heatherway Dulcbea and Lansdale Prince, if that means anything to you.

O, very little, the man said, I'm quite fond of dogs, but I've never judged wire haired foxes in a good many shows, and they're all single, ged to look at this one. Of course a pedigree is all nice in its way, we've got to have breeding, but when it comes down to brass tacks I like a dog with a tail on both ends legs and his own ears and his own tail, he said.

Well just offhand I should say it would take a pretty good dog to do all that pop said, and the man said, Now about this dog of yours, is he any good? Any catches to his say his hike legs are O kay but his tail is sorter stubby, and besides his ears are a nice size but they aren't a tendency to fold back, and his tale could be a lot straighter, there's no doubt about that, he said. Of course I say this quite impersonally, I mean I speak purely as a dog fancier, I have no doubt the dog has a good disposition and all that sort of thing, he said.

Quite, quite, pop said. But then some of us are perfect, or at least very few. For instants take yourself. Your nose doesn't seem to me to be any great shakes either, pop said.

I was discussing dogs and I consider that quite uncalled for, the man said.

And he kept on going looking at it he wished he had never stopped.

Proving even judges swt to mind their own bizness out of office hours.

Luck ran against him, but as sure was he of a change in fortune that he offered to turn a somersault if the next game was lost by him. A companion won, and Quinn turned the somersault.

But something in his neck snapped. He fell to the floor, paralyzed, and was taken to hospital. Early today he died.

FRUIT BELT NEEDS RAIN

Difficulty in Harvesting Barley And Oats Due to Short Growth

Stoney Creek, Ont., July 8 (AP) — Needed rain fell over the fruit district, but the Niagara fruit belt report from the district this week is dry.

Grain crops, too, are suffering from drought and farmers fear difficulty in harvesting barley and oats because of short growth.

A promising crop early in the season gradually is drying out from lack of moisture. Milk producers have felt the effects through drought stricken pastures which resulted in a reduction in milk production.

There is one compensation, however, nearly all farmers report excellent hay crops.

LEARNING TO RIDE A BICYCLE IS SOME UNDERTAKING—when finally one learns to balance himself upon the wheel then the trick of steering has to be mastered and it is strange how every pole and tree seems to exercise a magnetic power on the wheel and straight for one of them it goes. Difficulties are encountered also in learning to steer a car, but the situation does when the car bumps into the side of the garage or into another car when entering or leaving a parking place is more serious and expensive. It is sad to see the car so badly damaged and the owner feels that it will never be the same again. Regarding this, however, there need be no anxiety if the car is taken to the shop of Wm. Irvin at 44 Moira Street East who specialises in car body and fender repair work —he will make the car as good as new.

WHEN GRAN'MA WENT IN SWIMMIN'

When Gran'ma was a young lady folks had different ideas about the propriety of exhibiting the female form divine. Gran'ma one of the male species—in fact it was daring to show even those little pink toes with which she is testing the temperature of the water. Notice the man way back along the beach getting an eyeful of Gran'ma when she was young and in her prime. Notice the concealing voluminous bathing suit and hat, and contrast it with the all-revealing one-piece bathing suits of today.

DON'T THROW IT AWAY IT MAY COME IN HANDY SOME DAY—this expression of opinion has resulted in the attics in many houses being cluttered with articles of varied descriptions which have passed the stage of usefulness or ornamentation. Some attics are private museums and when house cleaned much time is spent in looking over the almost forgotten relics and old newspapers from which it was some one's intention to take clippings. Saving old articles if there is any possible chance of them coming in handy again' is advisable and an instance of where this theory is justified is exemplified by the Belleville Auto Wreckers, 167 Pinnacle Street, where the shop the motorist may purchase at a considerable saving used auto parts in good condition which have been saved from dismantled motor cars. The next time you are in need of parts for your car visit the Belleville Auto Wreckers—you will be convinced that it is wise sometimes not to throw certain things away as they do 'come in handy some day.'

Spying on Sports

THE GRAVE' discussions between baseball men as to the advisability of the interleague baseball game becoming an annual affair must be more than mildly amusing to members in good standing of the Baseball Writers' association.

Not that making the affair an annual fixture is amusing. That appears to be an excellent idea. The humor of the situation is found in the fact that the original idea was a product of a sport writer's brain. While magnates and league heads moaned, groaned and twiddled thumbs over such sad things as shrinking gate receipts and lessening interest on the part of the public in the diamond sport, a sport writer was thinking up a stunt for baseball promoters to exploit more talk about the heavyweight title bout between Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera.

THE NATIONAL and American leagues have existed as rival organizations for 30 years, yet somehow, it apparently never dawned on the baseball big shots to capitalize the eternal argument between fans as to which league was the stronger

The world series, each year, only proves that one team in one league was, for the time being superior to the best team of another league A seven-game clash between the two tail-enders instead of the pennant winners would have proven just as conclusive.

Perhaps however, the idea of an interleague clash between them has occurred to a club owner. If so it was never made public and the only reason for that could be timidity. And we would rather think the ball club bosses as being a bit slow on that angle than overly courageous enough to try a radical stunt which might lessen their profits in which they have invested fortunes, a great amount of favorable publicity.

x x x

THE IDEA of an annual interleague all-star clash, attracting in fact, has many angles, which should work to the benefit of baseball in general. The system of the Century of Progress game, permitting the votes of fans to select the opposing teams, gives each fan a chance to participate in a small way in the big show. An excellent plan

Since the two leagues draw up their own schedules it would be a simple plan to allow sufficient time each year for the game. The date work-

This is the last of a series of illustrated lessons in which outstanding professional golfers demonstrate how the average player may improve his game.

Demarcee "Denny" Shute (left) and Olin Dutra illustrate some of the most important points about the swing. It is important to remember that balance is important. The weight should never be allowed to remain on one side; it should shift from the left with the swing to the right on the backswing and forward on the downswing. As the backswing starts, the left shoulder and left arm must pivot toward the right. The left hand should be in control just before the ball is hit.

In these shots Shute is using a midiron and Dutra a driver. Dutra has the club gripped firmly, but not rigidly, allowing greater freedom to his wrists. He has the club more in the fingers than in the palms. Both the finger and the palm grips and you will see that the palm grip stiffens the wrists and the forearms, whereas the finger grips allow greater freedom of action.

of a Century of Progress game, the first week in July, was well nigh perfect from several points. Far enough away from the city to escape its hot to detract from the fixture, the date came sufficiently long after the opening of the season to permit an extensive vote to be polled.

Baseball, even in its best years, can stand bolstering each mid-summer.

July days are the baseball doldrums. Any interleague games might prove just what the doctor ordered.

SOFTBALL

With one out in the ninth inning Bill Scott of the Bell Telephone team smacked a double that scored Meteau and give the Tweedsmuirs a 6 to 5 victory over the Grills' Garage game at Tweed last evening.

The game, which was of the exhibition type, gave the fans a taste of high class softball and was witnessed by a large crowd. No scoring was done until the fifth inning when Cronin connected for a home run. In the sixth Tweed counted four times, the visitors failing utterly. In the seventh the Telephone crowd scored only one to lost out in the ninth.

Coleman hurled a real clever game for the winners while E. Clarke and Reid did the receiving. Sharp fielding on the part of both teams featured.

The line up:

Grills' Garage—Barriage, Bennett, Matthews, Boyle, W. Clarke, E. Clarke, Reid, Ross and G. Barriage.

Tweed—Rollins, Miller, Meteau, McCrea, Cronin, McGee, Lucas, Coleman, and Clark.

Score by innings:

Grills.. . . . . 000 020 300—5
Tweed.. . . . . 000 014 001—6

Advice to the Lovelorn

MARRIED FOR A HOME AND IS NOT HAPPY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a bride of only two months, and I married my husband because he could give me a good home. The whole trouble is I can never love any man. You see, I was disappointed in my first love affair several years ago, and I cannot let anyone else, try as I will.

My husband is very good to me, gives me everything, and has no idea that I don't love him. Is it possible to go through life like this, and have any happiness I have no ambition for him. Although I am very much in love with me, I don't care anything about my life. Death is always in my mind. I often pray to God to take me away.

Unhappy Bride.

I've forgotten where the question occurs, but it runs something like this: "Go down on your knees and thank God for a good man's love." And I hope you will do this thing and stop indulging in morbid reflections over a love affair that turned out badly several years ago. Your present mood is a result of your coldness and lack of sympathy, he is likely, after the manner of men, to seek consolation elsewhere. Then you will probably come to the conclusion, as many women have, that you never really appreciated what you were in love with him all the time without realizing it.

SEEKS OLD FRIEND AT THEATRE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

It must be every bit of six years since I've stopped going with a very nice young man for some silly reason that I've completely forgotten now. Lately I saw him in a theatre. He looked at me, and for a time before I became conscious of it, I would the very much to see him again. I'm not in the habit of calling up or running after men, and, Could you suggest some way whereby I might be able to get in touch with him and not seem too eager? I wouldn't want him to get that impression. I'm not. You see there are several young ladies interested in him.

A. B.

Why don't you write him a friendly note and say that seeing him in the theatre reminded you that you would be glad to see him again? It is always permissible to renew old friendships.

Beauty .... By Helen Jameson

Healthy Scalp, Lovely Hair

Hair is cursed with a sympathetic nature. If the body is seized with fever, tresslocks mull. When the nervous system goes on a stampede, hair loses lustre, falls into a state of depression. Digestive upsets have a bad effect upon it. Besides all this, it has its own ills to combat and overcome. Yet women's heads these days are gorgeously beautiful.

Put your trust in good health, sunlight, scalp exercise and, chances are, the old topnop will nourish. The finger wave, that perfect achievement in the form of gracious curlicues, but is most an answer to a stern indictment; it causes neglect of the scalp. A gift from fairy a wave for the purpose of destroying it. Mercy! No.

Wave or no wave, the scalp must be frictioned. The brush is best for the task, a stimulating agent, it doesn't give more than the finger-tips, and they're kind. Ears and don't be gentle. Hair lives on the blood supply; massage stirs blood streams, which not only distribute groceries to the minute crown, but carry away waste products. With normal circulation, the glor-ia nimbus has sufficient vitality to produce a new strong frame for every hair that grows away, and for an old thatch keeps healthy and abundant.

The scalp is not to be smothered, fingers running lightly over the skull covering. The flesh should then be lifted and pinched, moved about in circles with fingers and thumbs pressed in deeply.

If the vare is not beautiful in less day before the shampoo, trickle over the scalp, a combination of water and alcohol, equal parts; the purpose of this treatment is to make the flesh glow. Anything that warms skin and tissues spurs circulation. Spread fingers and thumbs out over the head, proceed to maul your brain case.

Keep thumbs laboriary and use the fingers. Reverse the movement. Press thumbs a little higher, fingers on the forehead, then pinch. Change the position of the hands until the entire scalp is treated. Ten minutes of this energizing must carve every night will be an insurance policy against falling hair, or surly hair that ups and unmaris at you, won't stay put.

As a final flourish, grasp small strands and tweak them. The object this exercise is that pulling at hair roots toughens and tones up the tiny fibers in which the hair roots rest. When you do that, you are getting to first base.

Scalp treatment can be given without wrecking the finger wave. Finger tips creep under the surface of the hair which is lifted away the scalp, don't disturb the undulation.

Make something is done to keep the scalp stimulated, it is possible that the silky material that's stark tragedy.

LIBRARY CORNER

A story of the old West, when "cow-punchers actually punched cows" is told by Charles A. Stringo in his book "Riata and Spurs." This is the story of a boy who ran away to be a cowboy and ranger is one of adventure and action. Governor Hogg of Texas, Pennsylvania, in his introduction to the book remarks "In these days, when much is written about the West by authors who never saw a mustang except on a circus, it is worth something to be able to lay your hand on a book that tells the truth and the real thing and who tells the truth." Living in the days of ranger feuds and cattle thieves, Charles Stringo has had a life of great and continuous danger, of buffalo stampedes, prairie fires, of feuds. Added to this came the trying period of the Civil War. Few men have seen such rough times and lived to tell the tale.

A book that might well be labeled Adventure—New Style is "Death in the Air," the war diary of an English Flying Corps pilot, who took most of his accompanying some combat photographs during the war. These have been presented in the original form with the exception that all references to the identity of the squadron have been excluded. Written during days and nights of strain and stress, the diary reveals the tense emotions experienced by the pilot. The shell from the air raids, the strategy in bringing down enemy planes, all is recorded vividly. A wonderful spirit of resistance and bravery in the face of death is shown by the pilot and also by his anonymous pilot who met the fate of so many of his friends before him—death in the air.

Mark G. McMinnney has written the book of Canadian adventure "Morning in the Marsh" for "lovers of the great outdoors." The story of salt seas and sailormen, of the beauties of nature. In lighter vein are his poems "Tobacco," "Rice," "Parnassus" and "This Evil World."

Do Boys Think College Girls Are Too Highbrow for Wives

(By Beatrice Fairfax)
(Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.)
(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was graduated from the high school last term and was elected president. Mother and Dad want me to go on to college, but I'm undecided about that. Do you think of a college girl as highbrow and above her sex? I've heard they do. Besides I'm not fond of study. I haven't any definite goal in mind as a husband, but I don't want to be an old maid.

My dream is a nice little house—not an apartment, thank you—a garden, an understanding husband and three well-behaved children.

Do you think college girls are too highbrow for wives? Do you think I'm foolish to want to be a housewife?

Lucy W.

I hope you may get all those things, Lucy, but their attainment is rather a large order, considering the times. Still, women—everyday women, not fairy story ladies—have actually realized such multiple blessings as house, garden, adoring husband and three well-behaved children. And here's hoping you do as well.

Quitting the prizes drop in the order given, and notice the boys and girls come before the adoring husband and well-behaved children.

As you're only 17 and have no particular boy in mind, you probably imagine the dream husband is only a few years older than you are. Don't be too sure. Many young husbands are not apt to remain adoring. Boy-husbands, fresh from the parental nest, are often spoiled, selfish and given to regarding marriage as a sort of everlasting flirtation, instead of the unselfish companionship it is meant to be.

House and garden are usually the prizes of thrift; over a long period, unless the dream husband happens to have inherited money, a combination that is increasingly rare in these days.

Unless you have a real urge to go to college, why consider it, my dear? Students who go to college to please their parents are more apt to be a liability than an asset. Don't start be putting your parents to an expense for something in which you had no real interest.

To answer another of your questions—modern boys do not regard college girls as their grandfathers did. There are too many jolly girls with degrees today who contest in athletics with boys—swim, hike, run races with them for the old simile of the sturdy oak and the clinging vine to hold good.

As the garden seems to hold second place in your affection, avoid before the husband and children, why not take a short course in some agricultural school? Gardening as a profession is being taken up by an increasing number of women yearly. It is healthful, out-of-door work and well paid. You're as likely to meet the young man who has the makings of an adoring husband in an up-to-date nursery as at a dance or on a vacation.

Write again and let me know what you've decided.

FASTWORK, CONNIE

Fast work indeed, Connie! She has gone from decently to try her hand at British films, and before she had been there three weeks, she had signed a long-term contract with a prominent British producer, and married Ben Levy, one of England's foremost playwrights. Not bad for three weeks' stay!

Fashion Flashes

(By Alice Aiden)
(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The 50 fashion of matching hat and scarf into one set seems to be catching on. A new ensemble has both hat and scarf of plaided taffeta in rose and navy. Both hat and scarf are trimmed with navy piping and navy buttons.

A Broad Line is still the thing with our designers. A case of fine beige woolen, cut on fitted lines has a fur shoulder with enormous pleats use of natural blue fox that reach almost to the elbow.

Simple Charm is the watchword with the newest lingerie. A smart set consists of a slip and panties, done in Swiss crepe de chine with frills of pink chiffon. The black slip has the top of chiffon, the creations are worked in Turkish stitch.

Looking Into the Future we see that there is a growing possibility of the fur cape for Autumn and early Winter wear. An advance model is a three-quarters, swagger cape in supple gray kid with a deep cape of woolen in green plaid design. The vestee is of the fur with a fancy white lace.

Dress Up a frock or pair its first youth by wearing it with a matching handbag and belt set. Pretty ones are fashioned with shirring and pipings of white, bright red trimmed with large gold metal safety pins.

A light package is the new handbag made of white kid. Keep it clean with soap and water and are very smart in appearance for the dress and shoes to harmonize. One model is trimmed with gold metal belting and a metal grip handle.

We insist that there is always something new under the sun when it comes to fashion. A smart woman is wearing tiny rectangular bags, fashioned of white kid and with the hair softly brushed back. This fad promises to become popular.

The Shoulders Carry much of the interest in many of the new models. Some have a deep V carry-over from last season. A smart model introduces a new detail not inserts at the shoulders with an ornamental effect of free fabric fringes.

You must have at least one little hat of white cotton pique. A charming affair is made of this fabric ing around the top of the crown and the tight brim. The hat is starched well, which ties in a bow at the top of the hat, is of wide, stiffened ribbon.

A Grand Idea is the new nonchalant crushable linen process created by a French designer. It is the result of experimental work. It is used for a lovely frock in pastel shade for a garden print. Frock and coat are trimmed with plain white linen. The ensemble includes hat and gloves go with this ensemble.

All Over town we hear reports of the new color, Vitelly. It is used in sage somewhere or another in almost every Summer ensemble. Shades of yellow and black plaided cotton has a blouse of sage green, and sage green is a large bow and collar, both worn outside the coat.

Go riding and wear a smart habit. Note for that Summer canter is an outfit consisting of rich yellow jodhpurs, contrasting sandpapers with a cotton mesh shirt in the same shade. The mesh shirt jacket is fitted and is also in gabardine in the same shade. Brass embroidered buttons trim the fitted jacket.

ROSLIN SOCIAL FINE SUCCESS

ROSLIN—The annual lawn social of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held on the church grounds on Wednesday evening and was well attended.

A very interesting and varied program was provided, one of the main items of which was a debate, "Resolved that the automobile is a better go or farther than a man can." The affirmative was taken by Rev. Mr. Herrington, minister, (Rev.) D. C. Hill and the negative by Rev. Mr. Hill, Rev. Mr. Herrington. This number was very interesting and amusing and the result was to be left to be judged.

Music was provided by the Ballyray Trio, Rev. F. W. Besser and Mrs. Oliver gave several solos. Rev. Mr. Hill, Toronto, also read. Mrs. Mr. Donald Judson and Mr. Edgar Burleigh delighted the audience with a duet. Rev. Hill very ably acted as chairman. The programme was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem. Later a delicious lunch was served by the ladies of the congregation.

Address Honors Miss Erma Clarke

On Wednesday afternoon, June 28th several of the parents, gathered at the school to join with the pupils to bid farewell to their teacher.

Miss Clarke was invited to the front of the school and Miss Frances Sinclair read the following address and Master Reggie Sprackett presented her with a silver rose bowl and glass stand.

"Belleville, Ontario,
June 28th, 1933

"Dear Miss Clarke,

"We are sorry to see you leave us.

From out our happy band,
But the time has come that must come for all,
The good-bye kiss and pressing hand.

"We'll miss your laughter in the school,
Your footsteps in the aisle,
Your bright, sweet face and sunny smile
So ready to share our care.

You've been so generous, loving to lend your help to all,
We wish you health and happiness,
In the paths of Thought and Love.

Your life will of course be activ,
For there's lots for us all to do
But sometimes think of the school section,
As they will think of you.

For old time's sake just drop a card,
To let us know you're well,
And if you e'er need sympathy,
Write us and you'll receive with cheer.

Some of us you will meet again,
As the months and years go by,
But some we will never see
Until you meet on High.

Then Miss Clarke don't forget these years,
But keep them in memory green,
And we will try to think well of each and other,
Though miles apart and unseen.

So accept our gift as a token
Of love and esteem for you,
And always, think of this section,
When this gift is used by you.

Signed on behalf of the School Section Number Three."

Miss Clarke, although greatly surprised, thanked her friends for their beautiful gift and said she hoped to be near them and it would always bring to her happy memories of the pleasant hours spent with the parents and pupils of School Section Number Three, Thurlow, and also gathering them sang, "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

PLAINFIELD W. I.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Harrison, on Thursday, July 6th. The meeting was opened by singing "Old Folks at Home" and the Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer. Everyone answered the "Roll Call" by giving their favorite bird, maiden name, and an incident in their Grandparent's lives.

The programme for July was in charge of Miss Gladys Holden and Miss Elsie Hamilton. Mrs. Harry Harrison and Mrs. Wm. Hogle played Phyllis Hall favoured with solos and Mrs. Charles Hamilton and Mrs. Reid Hodgens gave readings.

Mrs. Harry Harrison, the President then took charge of the business part. A vote of thanks was tendered to either buy or build a cupboard to keep the Institute dishes in as the Hall and also to make flannel containers, for the dishes when stored away. Mrs. Harrison served a delightful lunch and iced lemonade.

Winnipeg, July 8 (CP)—An influx of speculative buying induced by reports of searing temperatures in the Canadian west, swept into the wheat pit shortly after the opening of the Winnipeg grain market today to change opening fractional declines to gains of almost 2 cents.

Values opened quiet at levels around the previous close but were swept quickly upward by the strong support. At the end of the first hour the short Saturday session, July was 1¾ higher at 81⅞, October 1⅞ up at 83¾ and December showing the greatest advance at 86¾ was up 1¾. Late deal at 90¾ showed the same advance as the October future.

Offerings were extremely light and the market had little difficulty in holding close to the high points. Most of the buying was credited to houses with eastern and southern connections.

P. McLAREN IS LIBERAL CANDIDATE

ecutive to be composed of the above officers and residents of the Municipal associations.

Four Names Submitted

Four names were placed before the convention, Peter MacLaren, Belleville; Joe McVickers, Melrose; John Meagher, Marysville and Fraser Agnew, Madoc, made the three withdrawing in favor of Peter MacLaren, who was made the unanimous choice, and was very enthusiastically escorted to platform where he made a short but very effective address of acceptance. He attacked the road building program and challenged the Minister of Agriculture to find records for the farmer instead of loading the taxpayer with extra costs appointing Agricultural Inspectors to enforce spending regulations.

He claimed the farmer should only were forced to comply with unnecessary regulations created to find ways and means to collect more taxes from jobs. He asked for support of the electorals and pledged to give the farmer a new deal if the Liberal party was returned to power, and if the Conservatives they were not elected he was sorry for the future of the farmer in Ontario.

Reveals Many Secrets

Mr. W. A. Fraser, M.P., for Northumberland in a characteristic fiery address captivated his audience and for fifty minutes held them in a spell bound silence.

He called for all forces opposed to the reactionary forces of Toryism to unite to bring about a new government, who would legislate in an honest way for the people and would change to live in this fair country of ours.

"There never was a time in our history when corrective measures could have been applied and the examples of Great Britain and Australia followed when the internal loan was re-financed and the rate reduced to 3 per cent and 2 per cent thus reducing our taxes by 1/3. Did Mr. Bennett do this? No. He played to the 25 men who control 80 per cent of the internal loan of this country and kidded the people by adopting the old antiquated policy of high tariff known years ago as the national policy but now called the policy of national poverty.

He was opposed to the government taking by order in council tax money of the people and using it for corporation and bankrupt provinces without interest to this over the depression, putting it into a sinking fund with the new over-burdened taxpayer-to-be's debt to be paid back to the C.P.R. a million and a half without interest and then refusing a few minutes to have this same corporation subscribe and collect interest at 6 per cent from the same government on bonds to the extent of 3¼ millions. He claimed these corporations and provinces should go to their own people for their support and not call on the poor taxpayer.

Challenges Ontario Government.

He reviewed in detail the extravagance of Hon. Harry Ferguson and his government and ridiculed Mr. Ferguson's claim to be a friend of the farmer. Ferguson and the lamentable dilemma in which he now finds himself.

He challenged Hon. Mr. Cooke to show one thing about Hydro that the government has done for the benefit of the commission, Hon. Mr. Cooke, Mr. James Simon, Mr. Meighen and the personnel of the O.M.E.A. officers, were present to hear his comprehensive political machine. Do you wonder the people of this province are up in arms against the rule of Toryism.

I have worked on the farm since I was 13 years old and have put in over a thousand acres of farm land. I have also at one time worked for Hon. James Street for ten years and farmers, let me tell you they are bidding fair to lose their farms. convinced I will always fight Toryism in the interests and yours and my livelihood.

Pleads For Unity.

He pleaded for intensive organization in unity and forces to elect a government that would give the people a square deal.

Mr. R. Boyle, the vice-president, representing the new part of the riding then addressed the convention and as a result of his address the following resolution was unanimously adopted.

Moved by James Hanley and seconded by Jos. Wannamaker that this convention authorize the East Hastings Liberal executive to meet with the Progressive officers and executive and work out a plan of co-operate" which was carried unanimously.

Short addresses were also delivered by J. J. Duffus, Peterboro, Mr. McVickers, Fraser Agnew, Madoc. Sealed on the platform in addition to the speakers were Hon. Nelson Ethelbert, M.L.A., Colin Campbell, candidate for Addington; Mr. G. H. Hubbard, secretary C.O.L.A., and the president, Mr. Ed. Roach, who graced the chair and handled the meeting in a very capable and effective manner.

After a standing vote of confidence in the leaders, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Hon. Peter Heenan, F. Hepburn, M.P., the convention adjourned by the singing of the National Athem.

GOLD BLOC TO BAR EXPORT?

Paris, July 8 (AP) — A half-way embargo on the shipment of gold, it is understood, is likely to be imposed by the group of gold bloc countries as a result of the meeting of their Central Bank chiefs today at the Bank of France.

This arrangement would be joined with a tentative agreement on joint support of currencies to constitute a united front against deflation and secrecy for their monetary standards.

A government decree probably will be necessary to enable the Bank of France to limit delivery of gold, which the law requires must be given to all comers. But it is possible regulations on the use of notes may replish the same object.

The plan is designed to hamstring exchange speculators by making gold transfers through the banks difficult. It was learned that Holland and Switzerland, thus making it difficult if not impossible, for speculators to get gold.

A suggestion for formation of a big gold pool to support currencies was reagarded coolly at the Bank of France which knows it must furnish most of the gold for such a pool. Authorities close to the government would give a guarantee against loss. Nevertheless delegates to today's meeting expected that such a scheme might be held in readiness for emergencies.

3rd Anniversary Will be Observed

The third anniversary of the opening of the present Tabernacle of the Salvation Army at Dundas and Moira Street West will be marked on Sunday by special services. Rev. W. MacArthur, pastor in charge, will have as special speakers Rev. J. D. Williams and Mrs. Williams who will conduct special services on Sunday morning, afternoon and evening. A special conference will open at Alliance Tabernacle on Monday, July 10th, and a night o'clock meeting in the evening being also conducted.

The Alliance had its beginnings in Belleville about nine years ago. It took over independent work in building known as Front Street South, and was under the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Lorimer for four years. Rev. FAMOUS BOW BELLS OF LONDON RING

Famous scrap of Rhyme in Children's Memory

(By Thomas T. Champion)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
Silent for Over Six Years Again Till Coronation

LONDON, July 8—(CP Cable)—The Archbishop of Canterbury launched a new today and the famous bow bells, silent for almost six years, sent a glad message to city of London again.

The bells, now restored and rehung, in "good, easy times" of long ago warned apprentices they must work and keep early hours, sent a message to despondent Dick Whittington that his cat on Highgate Hill to "turn again" and become Lord Mayor of London.

In the uproar of modern London's traffic, however, only those in the immediate vicinity of the famous church of St. Mary-Le-Bow heard the glad tidings.

Experiments are under way in British Malaya with road-surfacing with an emulsion of a rubber solution with asphalt.

IN MEMORIAM

BAWDEN—In loving memory of our dear son Leonard, who passed away July 8, 1930, age 9 years.
Gone is the face we loved so dear
Silent is the voice we loved to hear
Too far away for sight or speech
But not too far for thought to reach
Sweet to remember him who once was here
And who though absent is just as dear.

Dunlop Builds Complete Line

Range of Tires Meets Needs of Every Motorist

Dunlop dealers now offer to the buyers a complete range of tires in every price class.

Leading the line is the "FORT" tire, a tire built entirely without restricting factors of cost, and available in a limited number of sizes.

Next in the line is the Traction Balloon, a tire which has many enviable records of performance to its credit. Available in every standard size, the Traction is a finely balanced, strong, flexible casing which can be relied upon throughout its long life.

Then, for the buyer who seeks a safe balance between low first cost and dependability Dunlop makes two other tires in lower price ranges. These are, the Pacemaker, a good-looking tire of obvious strength and stability, and the Record, which sells at the lowest price at which a Dunlop guaranteed tire has ever been offered. Both the Pacemaker and Record have substantial performance records to their credit.

This complete range at every price is rounded out with a Dunlop tire specially built to give satisfaction on wheelchairs under roads. This tire, the patented, exclusive Closed-Grip Tire, is actually a double treaded tire, the second tread through the centre of which, of thick, tough rubber cleats moulded into and over the regular tread pattern, project. These cleats do double duty. They bite down through snow and slush to a firm, safe hold, and they give definite extra miles.

Every One in a While Joe Would Appear on Deck..... To Scan the Horizon

A moment later they were out of Jerry's vision, but she seemed to have fainted instead of merely descending stairs. She could hear a powerboat bumping and scraping against the side of the yacht as each wave rose and fell.

Joe was in the moonlight, although Jerry realized it was perhaps because more than 300 yards, in long schooner of dull gray on which a green and red light were visible. Behind this shadowy craft was a more deeply veiled by the night, were perhaps five other boats just like bulk drawn up in rough formation.

There were other lights moving on the horizon and occasional signals with quick flashes.

Jerry wondered what possible business Joe could have with these boats which were standing by. She was even more deeply concerned about the frightened figure she had seen dragged aboard the yacht.

A moment later she heard soft scraping orders issued by a man which seemed to be Joe's, somewhere above the deck. The moving stealthily, slipped over the rail of the yacht, and into the powerboat which now raced away for the nearest schooner.

Then she remembered the pistol Joe had given her. She groped for it, found it and dropped as-leep.

When she awoke the sun was high in the heavens and the yacht was once more surging forward through the waves.

Jerry had been standing beside the open porthole until she was chilled through, and until now had she noticed it. The mysterious drama being enacted before her had held her whole attention.

But now, crawling back into bed she added another cover to keep out the chill.

She continued to shudder, however, remembering the white, ag-onized face and the powerboat. Where had she seen that face? Never in real life, she thought, but somewhere, in picture perhaps. A picture published in a newspaper? But where? But the identity evaded her.

Suppose that the other boat, perhaps beneath her own cabin that man was trying to kill Joe? For a moment contemplating making a search herself, but, crawling deeper among the covers, thought better of it.

Jerry wondered if the smuggling being planned for the night, or the afternoon the way he seemed, the lake with his glasses and his powerful binoculars. Perhaps that was the thing to do with the event.

That was it, certainly. He had been in touch with the schooners and was arranging a rendezvous.

But what was Joe Middleton this supposedly respectable radio engineer, doing with this sort of thing? It was unthinkable. Jerry found herself firmly set against having anything about the unwilling passenger aboard or any part of the rest of the shady business. No, Joe was not to be allowed to share that.

She had been mistaken about hearing his voice. She was sure now that he was one of the other men. Joe was no doubt asleep in his own cabin. Every one aboard the yacht had taken advantage of the excitement to use the boat for his own ends.

FRONT ROAD LADIES' AID

Despite the heat on Thursday afternoon there was a large gathering for presentation of members of Front Road Ladies' Aid at the home of Mrs. T. J. Brown for their July meeting. The President, Mrs. S. Snider officiated in her usual pleasing manner and the meeting opened by singing "I Need Thee Every Hour," and the Lord's prayer repeated in unison. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, Miss Doris Reid who also read a letter from Mrs. Ella Mc-O'Neill expressing thanks for card sent from the Aid during her recent illness.

The pastor, Rev. Mr. Keough then read the Scripture lesson 31st Psalm and led in prayer.

Mrs. E. Snider and Mrs. A. Clarke, the delegates to the first conference of the Women's Missionary of the United Church which was held in Bloomfield, Wednesday, Belleville, on June 22nd, gave a splendid report of the convention which was enjoyed by all.

A discussion took place regarding the best method of raising funds for the society and it was decided to hold a lawn social on Mrs. C. R. Leaven's lawn in the near future. Mrs. Brown had a fine apron be started ready for the next meeting.

A suggestion was made that the anniversary services of the church this year be made an event of especial attraction in honor of its diamond jubilee as it is sixty years since the church was built.

The meeting was then attended to by a verse of Scripture from each member.

The closing hymn two verses of "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" and the Mizpah benediction brought an interesting and profitable meeting to a close after which the hostess and her assistants Mrs. R. Brown, Mrs. Ella Mc-, Brown and Mrs. M. Hall served a tasty lunch and a social half hour was spent over the teacups.

"She Fought Like a Panther.....Yet She Was Thrilled."

and sighed.

"Oh yes, and here's something else I forgot to show you," Joe said. He pulled open a door to show a wardrobe filled with gowns and lingerie, costumes and beautiful negligees.

"Luckily, I knew your size," Joe said. "How do you like them, Jerry?"

"If you have any respect for me at all," Jerry cried, "you will send back every one of those dresses before you take out another one!"

"I don't see any reason why I should keep your cabin, Joe said. "I think it's a very nice cabin, and I should like to keep it here and see how you look in some of those dresses."

"I'll tell you how I'll look," said Jerry, "I'll look furious just as I do now. I'll look like a little typhoon that is good and mad—and is going some place else."

"I've lived through several typhoons," Joe said "and you don't look very dangerous."

"I'm plenty dangerous," Jerry warned, "so you will very soon find out if you don't get out of my cabin this instant!"

"First," said Joe, "I want just one little kiss."

He crossed the cabin so quickly that although she tried to jump aside she was unable to avoid him and he was in his arms before she was thoroughly aware of what was happening. He was terrifically strong. One would never guess that underneath his sensible business he had such ample, lovable strength.

She felt as though she were nothing but eiderdown under his straining muscles and that she was as furious-ly angry she fought like a little panther. She found him with every molecule in her body but she was thrilled in the core of her being.

She kept her face averted so that he could not kiss her and with all her strength into the steel muscles of his wrist.

She could wrench away with her last strength and reach the deck where she would be heard if she cried for help. She would never go with him on this awful trip. Why had she been such a little fool as to come aboard?

As she felt he let go with the cry of a hurt beast and stood glaring at her as if she had spoiled a game which she now found was locked. Then for the first time she realized the yacht was in motion.

She stepped to the porthole and looked out. Already the towers of Chicago's skyline were faint in the distance.

CHAPTER 9

Joe Middleton was a man of mouth and dispositions. He had not been able to keep from staring into Jerry's face with a look of mingled admiration and bewilderment, but now he seemed to have forgotten his desire. His quick anger had passed, leaving no trace.

He had wrapped his bleeding wrist with a silk handkerchief and was stooping looking at Jerry with his usual friendly and almost open smile.

"You'll have to wear one of those dresses now," he said quietly. "Come, I love your blouse."

Jerry stepped down to find one white shoulder showing through a long tear in the silk and hurriedly drew the torn place together.

"I haven't a pin," she said forcefully. "Have you a pin, Mr. Middleton?"

"No—fortunately."

"Won't you go away now?" Jerry begged.

"After a little while."

Jerry stood with her pretty tousled head framed in the circle of the porthole like some warm, animate painting. She was breathing heavily and the struggle had brought rich color to her face. She stood facing him—waiting for him to go—but he lingered fearfully.

"You don't need to be afraid of me," he told her. "I only wanted to keep you here and you are a very beautiful woman."

Jerry thought she should have felt insulted but didn't.

"If you go now I'll put on one of the other dresses and come aboard."

"Good," Joe said, "and then come to the dining room where dinner must be awfully hungry after all that vigorous exercise."

"You ought to be slapped," Jerry said.

"Why don't you slap me?"

"Because more's the pity, I'll have to get back with you soon enough. And if I slapped you every time you should be slapped, I would not have any time to take dictation, ever."

"You're a spirited kid," Joe said laughing. And Jerry found herself dangerously near smiling back at the sound of his infectious laugh.

After Joe had sauntered out on to the deck, Jerry locked the door behind him and pulled the heavy curtain together over the port holes and slipped out of her torn dress and underwear.

She was enjoying enjoying the silky rubs under her feet and opened the wardrobe to choose a gown.

She was startled all over again by the weight of the silk and the beauty of the handmade lace on the lingerie. Feeling very wicked she slipped into several of the "pretty-pretties" and chose a dress to wear.

It like into a low-backed, voluptuous affair, but he pleaded a headache. Besides, he would have to spend part of the afternoon in the radio room sending and receiving mes-sages and he wished Jerry would keep out like the day off and read a book on the wicker settee. He also wished she wouldn't be thinking of work all the time.

"Work is the bane of my existence," said Jerry. "I don't believe in work. Work is a middle-class virtue which I have always held in contempt. I don't say anything more about work this trip."

Jerry pretended she had come along to work and that she wouldn't be earning her salary at all she didn't. And Joe told her that that was his idea.

So at last she went to the after-deck and lay among the pillows reading "Barnaby Ry Prierly and watching the gulls following the yacht and the porpoises playing and flying over the water.

She was intrigued by the bustle forward and the continuous messages of some mysterious nature that Joe and the radio operator were receiving but she was wise enough to ask no questions. Only once in a while Joe would appear on the deck with his high-powered bifocal glasses to scan the horizon then would go back to the radio room again. There was a constant clicking of the wireless key.

At dinner Joe seemed preoccupied and talked very little. He drank a great deal of wine and kept exclaiming because Jerry refused the wheel house for a word with the captain. And Jerry was sorry that she was tired and wanted to go to her cabin. She had imagined Joe would object because she supposed he would want to sit and talk for a while.

Instead he seemed relieved and Jerry went to her cabin wondering more than ever what was in the air. She slipped into bed, into the smooth daffodil colored sheets and watching the moon come in at the porthole to touch her bed with its gentle light.

The cry of some water bird flying and skimming over the lake came to her ears and once the honking of a wedge of wild geese high above in the moonlight brought distance and restless longing.

She had decided that there was no danger here. Her door was ex-pertly locked and almost within call were nearly half a hundred men.

And yet she knew she was afraid. The night seemed to be filled with nameless things and the great lake stretching miles on every side seemed as treacherous as some black, swirling jungle.

The humming of the propellers put her to sleep and for a time she slept dreamlessly.

She had no idea what time it was when she was first startled by with a wild sense of fear and knew that there was just outside her door. The moon was now low.

She sat up there and straining to catch the faintest sound. Yes, there it was again, the heavy breathing of several men and the thud of something soft and heavy on the deck.

Trembling with fear and cold, Jerry listened to the parleys. Then she saw in the faint moonlight on the deck made how fall back with a stilled cry of terror.

CHAPTER 10

As Jerry looked through the port-hole onto the deck lashed in dazzling moonlight she saw for just one moment the while, frightened face of a short burly man who was being dragged over the rail by two dark figures. He was securely bound and gagged.

KINGSTON PRESBYTERIAL W. M. S. MEET AT MADOC

(Contributed)

"Delegates to the number of sixty-five assembled in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, on Friday, June 30th to attend the Summer meeting of the Kingston Presbyterial W.M.S.

The President, Mrs. Geo. Reid of Belleville, presided at both morning and afternoon sessions. Devotional exercises were conducted by members of Madoc Auxiliary and were taken from The Day Book of Prayer which is highly commended for use in all Auxiliaries.

Miss Mowat, Recording Secretary, read the minutes of the previous meetings after which Auxiliary Reports were heard.

Delegates were warmly welcomed to St. Peter's Church by Mrs. Jenkins of Madoc and Mrs. Shaw of West Huntingdon, made suitable reply.

Rev. Douglas Hill of Foxboro, brought official greetings from the Presbytery of Kingston and also expressed his personal pleasure at being privileged to attend a W.M.S. Presbyterial.

Reports from various Departmental Secretaries were then heard. Number of Glad Tidings taken 453 which number is a slight decrease as compared with 1932. Library and Literature Secretary reported an active department. Sales were quite satisfactory and requests for helpful and useful literature adequately met.

Letters from Provincial M. B. Secretaries were read urging the organization of more Bands in order that the children of the Church may be efficiently trained.

Supply Secretary requested that boxes be not forwarded before Sept. first. Life membership certificates nestled the sum of $140.

Student Activities are suspended for the summer months but this department will be renewed in the Fall term.

Two new Y.W.A. organizations were reported at Kingston and Wilton and a general increase of 10 per cent in membership is urgently requested.

The Home Helpers Department of this Presbyterial is especially encouraging interest and giving splendid work above the average.

A motion was carried to the effect that any member of Kingston Presbyterial visiting another Presbyterial be authorized to convey fraternal greetings to that meeting.

Directly after lunch the Executive met. At this meeting Mrs. A. B. Fargey of Stirling was elected Vice President of the Prince Western Division. It was also arranged to have Miss Lamont, Field Secretary, in this Presbyterial for two weeks in September. Auxiliaries wishing to take advantage of this visit should communicate with the Vice President of their district at once.

Afternoon Devotions were taken by members of Tweed Auxiliary. This was followed by the Treasurer's Report showing the amount of $845.06 received to date. A letter from the Provincial Treasurer was read stating that reduced allocations are minimum amounts with which to carry on and urging each Presbyterial to put forth every effort to meet its obligations.

Treasurer of the Special Campaign Fund reported the sum of $119.20 forwarded as two Quarterly payments. The third is now due and after the offering a delightful solo was sung by Miss Henderson.

An illustrated lecture on our work in Manchuria was given by Rev. J. A. Kofend of Stirling, who has recently returned from that field, Manchuria presents a great opportunities to the Church owing to the fact that in the last twenty years about 30,000,000 people have emigrated from China. These have left their homeland and family ties behind them and therefore their hearts are peculiarly susceptible to the sweet influences of the Gospel. Unfortunately Japanese invasions are seriously interfering with the development of missionary work at the present time.

The President's address on the "High Lights of the Provincial" proved a fitting close to a very inspiring meeting. Impressive needs are more prayer in the daily Hfe; an earnest and diligent reading of the Bible and a keen sense of our entire dependence upon God.

The Challenge to our membership is to regard our work as a privilege rather than an obligation and to measure up to the example of self-sacrifice set by our missionaries on the field.

Next annual meeting of the Presbyterial will be held in Bloomfield during the week of January 15th, 1934.

After singing Hymn 539, Rev. A. E. Cameron of Pittsburg, pronounced the Benediction.

A WOMAN SNUBBED A THREAT FOREVER NEW FILM DISCLOSES

Very few persons can snub a woman and get away with it partlcularly if she snubbed is beautiful, petulant and charmingly spoiled while the snubber is handsome, daring and young with a perpetual grin which seems to get broader even when the going gets tough.

That is the start of an engrossing situation in "State Trooper," which is at the Capitol Theatre to-day and that is only the start. Beginning at that point the picture moves with amazing rapidity, intermingling an intense love complication with a story of "cops-and-tumble action made possible by its colorful locale, the oil and fruitbelt refinery industry of California.

When it was decided to bring this unique idea to the screen, the services of two film writers, Lambert Hillyer and Stuart Anthony were obtained, men who for years have scrutinized the public bull men who also had spent years of their earlier lives on the ranges and the fields of the Pacific Coast. Their story is a meritorious effort in the authenticity of detail. And to further carry out the realism of the theme, permission was obtained from the Standard Oil Company of California in all scenes of the $15,000,000 refinery located at El Segundo, California.

JOHN WAYNE

A little football and fighting character in the winning of the American West is set forth to the accompaniment of the war-whoops and army bugle calls in Vitagraph's four-reeler western, "Fighting Trail," starring John Wayne and Shirley Grey, which opens with the second feature today.

The penetration of the redskin-infested wilds by the hardy pioneers whose duty it was to string the "singing wires" across the plains and mountains is the theme of the picture. John Wayne has the role of a government scout who becomes the leading factor in carrying to success the final link of the telegraph, despite the treacherous enmity of a white renegade and his Indian allies.

The perils and hardships of those early frontier days are vividly enacted by Wayne and an exceptional cast of players, which includes Otis Harlan, veteran of the stage and screen, as Zeke Keller, the general storekeeper; Marceline Day in the role of his niece, Frank Campeau as the scout's fighting Irish pal, and Al Smith—no relation to "The Happy Warrior"—as Gus Lynch, the white renegade.

Hundreds of real Indians, descendants of the very redskins who so bitterly contested the white man's conquest of their domain, take part in the battle scene of "The Telegraph Trail." A troop of United States cavalry are an important factor in the climax.

Cartoon and news complete the programme which will be shown at complete performances today until Tuesday commencing at 2.45, 6.45 and 9.00.

Monday and Tuesday are Dinnware Gift Days.

A resident of Coderich, Ontario, bought a box of strawberries for 1-2-9-0. Inside was a note asking the buyer to write to a farmer telling him where he had paid. The note added that the farmer had been paid 1 1-2d for the box. The buyer of "THAT other chap was an impostor, Owaza," he said, "but I am Tarzan of the Apes, and I thank you for the gold. The apes need it not, and in bringing the gold to me." He compelled Owaza's carriers to bear the golden ingots of Opar to the Greystoke bungalow. Here he fed the carriers, paid them well and sent them home. Even to Owaza he gave a gift of value, telling him never to return to Tarzan's country.

When they had all departed and Tarzan, Jane and Korak were standing on the verandah, Jad-bal-Ja lying at the ape-man's feet, Tarzan put his arm affectionately about his mate's shoulder. "I'll have to take back what I said about the gold of Opar not being for me. You see before you a new fortune that has come all the way from treasure vaults of Opar without any effort on my part."

"Now if someone would only bring your diamonds back," laughed Lady Greystoke, "the chance of that!" said Tarzan of the Apes. "They are undoubtedly at the bottom of the Ugogo River." . . . And far away upon the banks of that river, in the village of Obebe, the canniba1 Bolgan the false Tarzan lay in his hut, gloating over the fortune in diamonds that would never be of value to him.

FOUR BATTLE FOR VACANCY

Every Political Faith in Province Has a Candidate

Buchanan, Sask., July 8 (CP)—Representing every political denomination in the province four candidates have now been thrown into the battle over the vacancy left in the Federal constituency of Mackenzie, with the final nomination Friday of C. H. Buchanan of Wadena, selected by Liberals gathered in convention here.

The by-election, to be held before the end of August, was brought on by the appointment of the former member, Milton Campbell, Progressive, to the Tariff Advisory Board.

For the first time in Saskatchewan, the new Co-operative Commonwealth Federation group have made a nomination of Louis St. G. Stubbs, former judge, dropped from the Macdonald Cabinet. The Conservatives, after a lapse of many years, nominated a straight party candidate, S. H. Edgar, and the United front group has posted F. F. MacNamee as candidate of that faith.

The new candidate is a lawyer in Wadena, and operates a large farm in the same district.

Up to the 22nd of June 30,864, head of Canadian cattle were shipped to the United Kingdom this year.

ALL-STAR CAST IN FUN PARADDISE SET TO TUNEFUL MUSIC

You haven't seen anything as funny. Heard songs as tuneful. Orcasted your eyes upon as glamorous a collection of beauties "packaged" in the modern manner, all in Gallopher's new you will want to see that hilarious Paramount musical extravaganza, "International House" at the Belle today and Monday, matinee daily.

An immense cast includes such stars as Peggy Hopkins Joyce, W. C. Fields, Rudy Vallee, Stuart Erwin, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Carl Marties, Cab Calloway, Sterling Budd, Cab Calloway and his orchestra, Baby Rose Marie, Bela Lugosi, Lona Andre, Sterling Holloway, Franklin Pangborn, Edmund Breese, Lumsden Hare and those enticing "Girls in Cellophane."

Funny Mr. Fields

The riotously funny story takes place in the town of Wu-Hu, China, and as Fields says "it's Wu-Hu to you, too!" The crowds stops at the International House where representatives of foreign power companies gather to buy the invention of Dr. Wenge, a radioscope, part television and part what have you, that sees around corners and into bathrooms.

Stuart Erwin is the American representative in love with Sari Maritza, daughter of the Englishman. Bela Lugosi plays the jealous Russian former husband of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, here to marry another millionaire. Peggy sinks her lamps on W. C. Field, Dr. Quail, a cracked aviator who lands in China when his gas runs out, after starting on a non-stop trip to Kansas City. Cab Calloway, Gracie Allen are the cook and nurse at the hotel.

Peggy Creps Out

Lugosi gets jealous of Fields' attention to the glamorous Peggy and Erwin gets measles on the eve of his wedding. Burns and Allen attend to Erwin. Fields delights the audience with his famous exploits in a baby-Austin, minus even better than those he pulled with the Austin in the last edition of the Ziegfeld Follies on Broadway.

During the course of the laugh riot, you hear Rudy Vallee, Baby Rose Marie and Cab Calloway introduce new songs from the pen of Ralph Ranger, author of "Moanin' Low," "Please," "Here Lies Love" and "The Moon Song", and Leo Robin. The girls in Cellophane dance, Peggy Hopkins shows how its done and Stoopnagle and Budd explain, in their inimitable fashion, the intricacies of "Stoopnocracy" and their latest "dinnyvention."

"International House" has everything, a grand story with laughs and giggles and tears galore; music that you'll be whistling for days and days and quite enough beauty and loveliness to make your eyes pop.

World's Largest Fire Alarm System Inaugurated

1. The new Fire Alarm Central Office Building on Mount Pleasant Road, Toronto, which was opened for service on Thursday last.
2. A corner view across to the back of all switchboard panels, showing the rows of electrical equipment.
3. A view of the switchboard panels showing the manually operated switches which send out the fire calls to all Fire Stations, Police Stations, Hospitals and Newspaper Offices, at one time. Operators are seen in position.
4. A view of the large bank of Fire Lineboxes by which all calls are received in the building, and are recorded on paper tapes.
5. One of Gamewell Instruments Number 1,000 Fire Lineboxes, which have served the City since 1909, photographed as the last line was cut over to the new system.
6. Another view of the Gamewell Lineboxes which have served the City since 1909, photographed as the last line was cut over to the new system.
7. Another view of the switchboard panels showing the manually operated switches.
8. The Standby Electric Generating equipment of the Sterling Electric Company.

It's a far cry from the days of the volunteer hand pump and bucket brigade of 1850, to the fire fighting equipment of today, and the contrast is nowhere better illustrated than in this group of pictures of Montreal's new Fire Alarm Central Station, situated on the northeastern slope of Mount Royal, which was officially opened by His Worship Mayor Rinfret, on June 30th, when the new central office took over the supervision of all fire alarms and calls and the old board was reported "Dead" after twenty-four years' service. During the past twenty-five years the facilities of this old board have been outgrown.

This two million dollar project has taken over two years to complete. It now holds a unique position in the fire fighting circles of the Empire, and indeed of the world, since it is the largest Central Fire Alarm Station to be found anywhere in the world.

It is designed not alone for today, but very wisely provision is made for expansion, with, a view to the day when the whole Island will constitute Greater Montreal.

BRITAIN'S BASIC PLAN PRICE-RAISING

U. S. Rejection of Plan of Compromise Praised by British Chancellor

Britain's Policy One of Friendliest Contact With World

'MIDDLE OF ROAD'

Three British Groups Praise Great Experiment by Roosevelt

LONDON, July 10.—(AP)—Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, launching a debate on the World Economic Conference in the House of Commons today declared that Great Britain's basic policy in the raising of wholesale commodity prices.

He declared that this was not possible by monetary action alone although certain monetary factors must be present as a necessary preliminary to raising the price level.

Maintaining Great Britain's middle-of-the-road policy between the gold and non-gold countries, Mr. Chamberlain concluded by advising, "to keep our heads."

He added that Great Britain also must maintain the closest and friendliest contact with representatives of all countries. . . . . .

Approve Roosevelt

The Chancellor indirectly approved President Roosevelt's rejection of a World Economic Conference promotive stabilization plan.

He asserted that the declaration rejected by Mr. Roosevelt was "pretty weak stuff." It laid down, he said, general principles but was practically confined to a declaration by the Government that they would not attempt to control check speculation in exchange.

The World Economic Conference check has not dealt a mortal blow to any of the more essential vital world problems, Mr. Chamberlain said.

Blessing of Fewer

George Lansbury, Parliamentary Leader of the Labor Party Opposing Mr. Chamberlain, declared "one thing Mr. Roosevelt has done is that he has thrown us on a screen the fact that the protective power of the world used to make a blessing instead of a curse."

When Mr. Chamberlain smiled at Mr. Lansbury's demand that the Government's policy regarding the Gold Standard be announced, the Labor Leader retorted:

"It's all very well for the Chancellor to laugh but the President of the United States, rightly or wrongly, has a policy and I would like to know whether the government has a policy, for Great Britain does not want to be crucified on a cross of gold."

Gold Standard Blamed

Winston Churchill, Conservative declared that United States had been strangling itself as regards external and internal trade by rigid adherence to the Gold Standard.

"Now they have abandoned individually all other countries," Mr. Churchill said, "and President Roosevelt has courageously declared the country upon revaluation, the danger of which we well know. I welcome this action.

"This gold has been made unnecessarily weaker as a world basis and it is extremely doubtful whether they will be able to adhere to the system now in use. "The gold countries have been approaching the United States or Great Britain, or practically each country as France, which revalued to the extent of one-fifth, and Germany, which destroyed the rentier class and relieved herself of all fixed charges and is now living her public and private debts."

Avoid Paper Speculation

Mr. Churchill said that everyone must hope and pray United States, having escaped from gold, would not fall a victim to paper speculators.

Mr. Churchill urged British to follow the principle that "a sensible man policy 'at a prudent distance' under a plan of contained revaluation' and price raising in relation to Sterling as far as possible without losing touch with the Dominions and Foreign countries of the Sterling Bloc.

Successful Experiment

Sir Herbert Samuel, Liberal leader, said it would be a disaster if the economic conference abandoned its task.

As regards President Roosevelt's policy Sir Herbert said, "It is undoubtedly the most significant experiment tried in the world, with the possible exception of Soviet Russia."

"All will join" he said, "in the hope that the heroic experiment will be a success, because if it fails the effect may be disastrous."

Sir Herbert declared that under this policy it was impossible for the United States to stabilize its currency.

ROUND WORLD FLIER FOUND EIGHTY MILES FROM ANADYR

Had Rifle And Ammunition With Which to Secure Food

Moscow, July 10 (AP)—Dispatches from Khabarovsk, Siberia, published in today's Moscow newspapers say that Jimmie Mattern, the American aviator, was forced down eighty miles from Anadyr on the same day he left Khabarovsk (June 14) by motor trouble and that the fugitive and wife of his plane were damaged in landing because of the rough terrain.

The Texan came down on a spot of sand and sailed nine miles from the bank of the River Anadyr, which on that date was still frozen over. How long he remained there without assistance is not yet known but today's advices said he was found beside his damaged plane by a frontier guard boat, which began patrolling the river as soon as the ice broke up.

Pravda's Khabarovsk correspondent expressed the opinion that the rifle and ammunition given Mattern by Soviet authorities just before he left Khabarovsk aloud the American in good stead during the time before he was rescued.

With a rifle Mattern would have been able to kill small game and thereby keep himself alive with food. Mattern carried virtually no food with him from Khabarovsk.

The frontier guard found the stranded flyer in good health and unlajured and taking him to Anadyr lodged him in the guard's barracks where he has resided since that time.

The guard also organized an expedition to pull Mattern's damaged plane into Anadyr but dispatches did not make clear whether this had been accomplished.

Meanwhile a Soviet rescue plane was scheduled to leave Khabarovsk early today for Anadyr.

MATTERN TO FINISH HOP

Plane Will be Sent to Anadyr For Him to Continue Alone

(By the Canadian Press)

A plan to enable Jimmie Mattern to continue his flight around the world—hopping over territory that apparently wrecked his plan beyond repair in Siberia—was taking form today.

From Anadyr, Siberia, Mattern would go to Chicago backing—saying that a plane be sent so he would not have to fly it home.

The backers said they would "do everything" in their power to complete the flight. Mattern's record last night saked that a rescue expedition plane be now in Alaska be sent.

The Soviet government announced a powerful aeroplane would leave Khabarovsk, Siberia, momentarily for Anadyr, and that it was ready to fly Mattern to Nome in Alaska, to return Mattern to American territory.

Mattern's own plan was to fly solo from Anadyr to Nome in the single-motored monoplane plane, and for the members of the expedition, Lieut. Levanevsky, Williams, Alexander, to return to Nome in the Russian plane.

Mrs. Linda Bengie, 27, today told how she obtained a divorce June 22 that her husband might become married again. Jay Beegle, 32, a machinist, remained at the home so that money be paid for rent and board would augment the $30 a month he paid alimony.

Miss Lydia Weber, 22, the fiancee, was invited to enter the household when she met her job.

The two children are Doris, 8, and Richard, 6.

"We all live together — but why not?" Mrs. Beegle asked, "my ex-husband's alimony is not much to live on. So he pays the board and room. We are friends — not enemies. And good friends, I'm afraid, because it takes longer for one's pride to die than for love to die."

The wedding will be as soon as the state's law allows, next June 22, Miss Weber said.

Madoc Car Narrowly Escapes Plunging Into Bay

Narrowly escaping plunging into the Bay of Quinte from an open span of the Bay Bridge a car driven by Foster McQuigge, Madoc, crashed through the safety gate which had been lowered, but which it completely off. The car fortunately came to a stop before it arrived at the open bridge span. The windshield of the automobile was also broken during the impact.

Mr. McQuigge was proceeding southward at the time of the accident and it is alleged by the police, that the brakes of the car were defective and he could not stop, when the safety gates were closed. The gates had been lowered and the attendants on the bridge had started to swing the open span to allow a passing vessel through the bridge. When the automobile struck the safety gate the arm was completely shattered and was hurled picked up lying some 30 feet from where it belonged.

Mr. McQuigge fortunately was not travelling at an excessive rate of speed and managed to stop the vehicle before it dropped over the open span into the bay.

Master Billy Gilbert, two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gilbert, Cannifton, suffered severe bruises on both legs when he pulled a tombstone on him at Wilton Cemetery yesterday. The lad with his mother and grandparents was visiting the cemetery and strolling through the grounds. He rushed against the monument which toppled over on him. He was taken to a physician at Odessa, who gave medical treatment, finding that the boy had fortunately escaped fractures.

The Southern Railway prize shots at 200 yards was the only other event on the day for the service marksmen.

STOLEN AUTOS CARRY LOOT

Police Theory Links up Thefts Across Province With Car Thefts

Peterborough, Ont., July 10—(CP) —One of the money orders stolen from the Canadian National Railways Station at Hatchfield, when when burglars carried away the safe containing about $1,000 and bank money order forms, was cashed last week at Maxwell in Grey County, it was learned today. Five Information revealed today by railway police it was believed the burglars who have staged a series of thefts across the province are held responsible by police for at least two car thefts.

Officers said they had names and descriptions of the two men wanted and have sent out the information by wire.

Before robbing the Lakefield station the burglars, police believe, stole a car at St. Thomas, Ont. and drove to the scene of the robbery, using the car to carry away their loot. The safe was found near Burketts Bridge and it was believed the men had gone on to Smith's Falls where their descriptions were obtained after they registered at a hotel there and left without paying their account. They left behind the first car and made off with another police said travelling into Grey County.

Severe infections of mosquitoes have been reported in Alberta, Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia.

Steering Committee of Parley Decides on July 26 as Date of Adjournment

Question of Subsidies Tariffs, Quotas Ruled Out

WORK GOES ON

Drafting Committee to Consider Controversy of Stabilization

London, July 10 (AP) — Winding up of the present phase of the world economic conference on July 26 was tentatively decided upon today by the steering committee of the parley, it was understood in a usually well-informed source.

The conference has been in a deadlock for more than a week over the question of currency stabilization and many delegates have frankly asserted that its continuance under present circumstances would be useless.

Meeting today to decide what subjects should be included in the revised agenda for the congress, the steering committee decided to eliminate the discussion of subsidies and commercial policies — including tariffs and quotas.

The committee, however, was unable to decide whether monetary questions, which the European gold countries say cannot be dealt with should be treated and asked a 'drafting committee to consider this controversial matter and report to the steering group tomorrow afternoon.

After today's meeting it was stated the conference would be adjourned on July 26 for indefinite period, perhaps two months.

In the meantime the conference would continue such work as is possible in view of the disagreement between the gold bloc and the non-gold countries over currency stabilization. Committees would be appointed to prepare resumption of the deliberations in the autumn.

TEXTILE CODE NOW IN FORCE

Minimum Wages in Factories Are Fixed at $12 and $13

Washington, July 10—President Roosevelt Saturday formally approved the cotton textile code and praised the industry as the leader of a "new thing in economics and government."

He signed an executive order making the code, which provides for minimum wages of $12 and $13, weekly in southern and northern plants, respectively, and a maximum 40 hour week, effective July 17.

The President's approval of the code is limited to four months. The industry has the privilege of asking for a modification at any time or for renewal for another four months at any time before expiration of the agreement.

Thirteen conditions are fixed in the executive order. They include provision for eventual elimination of the so-called "mill village" in the South and inclusion of office employees within the benefits of the code.

The planning committee of the industry is to make recommendations for eventual employee homeownership in the mill villages of the South where now the cotton mills rent company houses. This is a reform long sought.

The executive order attacked the "stretch out" evil by providing that any increases in the amount of work over that assigned to an employee on July 1, 1933, can be only by joint approval of Johnson's administration and the industry's planning committee.

The conditions imposed by President Roosevelt's executive order reach out to protect labor in numerous ways. It was made plain the wages provided in the code are not approved as a permanent wage. The wage schedules may be raised at any time if and as conditions improve to consider the question of increases.

TARIFF TRUCE MAY EXTEND ANOTHER YEAR

Possible Outgrowth of World Economic Conference

PARLEY MAY CLOSE

Some of United States Delegation to Leave July 20

London, July 10—A year's extension on the tariff truce is considered at Unified States headquarters here as a possible outgrowth of the World Economic Conference.

How much longer the conference will continue no one seems to know, but James Cousens, the Canadian-born Republican Senator from Michigan, has made tentative arrangements to sail July 20.

It was learned the Americans are becoming very restless today. The delegation started with $150,000 but expenses are understood to have been high and it may be impossible to keep the whole staff here more than two or three weeks longer.

POUND AT $5.01 IN CANADIAN DOLLARS

Montreal, July 10 (CP) — The pound shot up to $5.01 in Canadian dollars at the opening of currency exchanges here today. This was believed to be an all-time high. The pound closed at $4.98 3-16 Saturday.

The American dollar was weak at the opening, being quoted at $1.06¾ as compared with Saturday's closing level of $1.05¼, a loss of ¾ of a cent.

Il Duce Advises No Silk Hats, Favors Simplicity of Life and Humble Ways

Rome, July 10—High-hatting is prohibited literally in a code drawn up by Premier Mussolini for observance by Fascist officials.

The list of rules, attached to Il Duce's autographed photograph and circulated among the heads of regional organizations, warns them not to appear at official ceremonies with silk top (here) hats; instructs not to frequent de luxe restaurants and theatres; says they should walk whenever possible and use inexpensive automobiles or motorcycles when transportation is necessary.

Admonishing them not to put on airs, the code says: "Frequent humble quarters of the cities; get in tune with the working classes morally and physically. Avoid regular office hours, lending a patient and sympathetic ear to as many as possible of the people who come to see you."

Evangelistic Services Held Under Car Lights, No Rowdyism is Noted

London, Ont., July 10 (CP) — Evangelist Arthur Fields today was convicted somewhat for the loss of his tent and organ by the fact that his audience at last night's meeting ran into the hundreds and a distinct increase over that of other sessions.

Publicity given to the disappearance last Friday morning of the tent and organ and the resultant allegations of the tall, middle-aged itinerant preacher, a proclaimed war veteran, that he was the target for the rowdy tactics of a group who objected to his preaching last night attracted hundreds of curious townsfolk to the revival services—held in the open with the headlights of an automobile trained on the pulpit.

Provincial police in plain clothes mingled with the crowd, giving the service the protection he had demanded and there was no disorder.

During a lull in the services fields dared his opposition to throw th. egs which he said he knew they intended throwing. There was no response from the crowd, which for the most part seemed merely curious and tolerant.

Saturday night dead skunks had been placed on the lot where the meetins are held but the evangelist and his followers removed these yesterday morning.

HARDY PIONEERS CARVE OUT LIV ING IN NORTHERN ONTARIO

Pioneering still goes on. In the days of depression and want, courageous people, rather than starve in cities, have headed north to carve out for themselves and their loved ones, an existence such as their forefathers did when they first settled in Canada. The ABOVE scenes were taken in Northern Ontario where many families from southern Ontario cities and towns have settled in the heart of the dense forest, clearing the land and building themselves a home. They are tried many times, and living is difficult, but they are bearing up under the strain and hoping for the best. They at least have shelter, work and some food, they say. At top left is shown a new log cabin community hall, just completed. At right a hardy pioneer clearing his land; lower left, a mother and the children, working hard to make a living out of nature; centre right, a forest fire, which, controlled enabled the settlers to clear a huge swath of land; lower right, showing what the pioneers have done to virgin forest. The government pays these settlers $10 a month for a two-year period, and $600 and the land to start off. The new settlements are centred around Cochrane, Iroquois Falls and bordering the Ferguson highway.

Catholic Priests Held for "Politics" Freed by Nazis

Hitler Issues Order in Berlin as Pact Initialled

Berlin, July 10—Chancellor Hitler, expressing satisfaction over the concordat effected in Rome, whereby it was agreed that the German Catholic Church would abandon political activity, has issued an order for the release of Catholic priests and leaders arrested for political reasons.

The order also called for the rescinding of dissolution measures against certain Catholic societies and organizations.

Vice-Chancellor Franz von Papen, who conducted the negotiations with the Vatican, informed the Government that relations between the Church and the State had been strengthened, and that all hostilities of future strife had been eliminated.

It was explained that, in the main, the concordat merely extends to the whole Reich previous concordats which the Vatican had concluded with the individual States of Bavaria., Prussia and Saxony. With a threat of punishment, the Chancellor forbade a repetition of repressive measures against such organizations as are recognized in the concordat.

"The concluding of the concordat," he said, "gives sufficient guarantee that German Roman Catholics will hereafter unreservedly support the National Socialist State."

"I am happy in the conviction that the epoch has closed in which religious and political interests were apparently irreconcilably opposed.

"I sincerely hope the Protestant Church will settle its differences as soon as possible."

Initialled at Vatican City

Vatican City, July 10—A concordat between the Holy See and Germany was initialled Saturday evening by Cardinal Pacelli, Papal Secretary of State, and Vice-Chancellor Franz von Papen of the Reich Government, which seeks to regulate all the questions arising in the supervision of Church organizations in Germany and to prevent conflict between the two governments.

Von Papen has been in Rome for more than a week negotiating the agreement, for which the preliminary discussions were started at his earlier visit here in April.

A HIGH SENSE OF HONOR

The proverbial honesty of the average Englishman is proven in a recent story from London, where a cinema machine broke down and the proprietor of the house had the announcement made that admission money would be refunded. Strange as it may seem but a proof of honesty, exactly the amount taken in was asked to be refunded. Here was an opportunity wherein some might have asked refund of a higher amount than they paid for in this theatre some seats were dearer than others but the men who occupied the cheaper seats did not ask more than they paid. They wanted only what was due them though they had the chance of asking more because there was no record of the seats by which patrons might be checked as to the price of the seats.

Detroit Free Press comments upon this as follows:

"A whole volume could be written on that little incident to show how a highly civilized people can have ingrained in them a sense of personal responsibility. Call it honesty or honor, or what you will; behind it is a social conscience which explains why London police do not have to carry guns and rarely even carry billies, and why Old Bailey, the one criminal court in all London, only needs to hold sessions three days a week. The good Englishman knows no higher duty than the responsibility of individual citizenship."

ROMANCER PASSES

The passing of Sir Anthony Hope Hawkins, who achieved fame in the 1890's by his romances, will be regretted most by a countless host of elderly readers who were his devoted admirers in his long heyday. "Anthony Hope" has been content to be conjured with and each new novel from his pen was read with avidity. He was a son of the parsonage and a graduate of Oxford, destined for the law, but that profession had no charm for him, and instead of following his course, he dreamed dreams and set down what he saw. He was no imitator, but created a line of his own that proved a delight to many. "The Prisoner of Zenda," in 1894 proved an instantaneous success, and other books followed in similar vein. So the lawyer abandoned his calling and gave full rein to his story imagination. Tales of love and intrigue with their setting in an imaginary state flowed from his mind and were received with pleasure throughout the Englishspeaking world. Then they were translated and welcomed by foreign readers with equal interest. The author also proved a popular play and had the satisfaction of seeing other creators of fiction copying his plots and his style, sometimes with considerable success. Humor was mixed with drama in his thought and the combination was delightful. His Dolly Dialogues were in the nature of witty social satire and in his later years he wrote in more serious vein. But it was his "Zenda" books that made his reputation and that were remembered in the world of readers of pleasant fiction, young and old. They were the fresh creations of his younger days and maintained their hold to the end. When more mature years came, some of the Hope series were adapted to the screen. Sir Anthony also lectured and toured the the United States and Canada in 1897, when he had a universal reputation. It was well for the world that he turned from law and invited people everywhere to come into the mystic kingdom, for it was a happy state to dwell in for a passing period. Anthony Hope Hawkins well-deserved the knighthood that was conferred on him in 1918.—Montreal Gazette.

SIDELIGHTS — GRAVE and GAY

POETRY

It is a gate through which I pass
To bliss and joy, to wind and grass,
To trees that toss with rarer grace
And lakes that lift with shining face;
It leads to fields exotic, wide,
Where joys are all intensified.

It is a gate which shuts away
The thoughts and themes of work-aday,
And by some magic, lets me enter
The realm of beauty, and the centre
Of all things fine and fair and free,
This golden gate of poetry!

I am a child, who through this gate
Must gladly go, with heart elate,
To hear the echoes of old singing
That still float hither, nobly ringing;
A child, who climbs green hills here,
That he may better see the stars!

A REVIVAL OF OLD-TIME confidence game tricks is shown by the daily press with some of the best known and most widely published con games of a generation ago again trotted out and successfully worked on "come-ons." The crooks have even invaded Toronto and Montreal looking for easy marks but have not been having it all their own way with the canny Canucks. The old "lost wallet" game where a fat pocketbook is picked up and restored to its wealthy owner who does not care for the reward offered, but is glad to get the wallet for millions on account of "valuable" papers, etc.—the beginning of a beautiful friendship—the "sure-thing" horse race—winning the first small bets—then betting the bank roll and, fade-out the crooks with all the money. Even the old "green goods" counterfeit trick is being worked with the usual convincing letters from Barcelona, and the same beautiful daughter, and the Spanish grandee languishing in political intrigue and all that bunk. Gold bricks are also bringing a good price it is said along Broadway where a few of the boys are up to all ways at its best, where the Brooklyn Bridge is sold every day and the City Hall acquires a new owner. Gold mines are looking up and oh, what a crop of "wildcats" will be coming down the pike. Generous gents, who in the goodness of their large hearts are interested in giving away such good and sure things as gold mines with pay ore laying all around on top of the ground—physicians who can make a gold mine out of a mole hill in less than one year while ordinary mining men take ten years or more to make a paying mine, spring and autumn tonics that never fail to make other folk rich—in experience while they get the cash. With prosperity having rounded the corner and now pounding up the road opportunities for "invest" in "sure-things" will multiply and high pressure salesmen will again haunt the highways and by-ways of the land seeking easy money—mining magnates (maggots) will start again in their efforts to mine the public and the perfume of easy money will be in the air. Just ask your banker, or some hard-headed newspaper man who has been through all these games backward and forward many times. Just say, Giddap, January, it looks like rain.

YANKEES HAVE MADE a fearful mess of their back to beer regulations—every state and every city seems to have different regulations and the legal 3.2 brew is being sold in hot dog stands, drug stores, groceries and other establishments. Delaware prohibits bars, sale between midnight and 8 a.m., and the sale of more than twenty-three bottles to one person at one time. New York prohibits bars but insists upon restaurants, hotels and clubs. Oregon stipulates restaurants serving three meals a day, six days a week. Iowa stipulates sales in lots of twelve pints and NOT REFRIGERATED, Indiana prohibits draught beer. Massachusetts forbids beer sales on election day. Now Federal enforcement of the prohibition law has been removed and in New York State there has not been any local enforcement for a long time, so, in the opinion of some authorities, anybody can sell hard liquor now in New York State without let or hindrance. Clever folk these Yanks but they do mess up things terribly on occasion—and seeing this coming so long how is it they were so unprepared for the change? However, it's Uncle Sam's business and only our picnic so here's hoping he gets straightened out before too much hard liquor goes to his head, with too little 3.2 to steady his feet.

CORRECT KIND OF CLOTHING FOR HEALTH

Few Realize Tremendous Amount of Heat Radiated

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Clothing in itself does not produce warmth. What clothing does is either keep the heat of the body from escaping to the outer air or allow it to dissipate itself through the meshes of the fabric.

Few realize the tremendous amount of heat which is radiated through the skin, and quickly which it rises within the spaces between the skin and undergarments and what a difference between the latter and outer clothing.

It stands to reason, therefore, that during winter months we should try to hold on to as much heat as possible so that we may be comfortably warm. Besides, we must conserve our energy. The more heat we lose and the more we must produce through eating and exercise. In Summer, conversely, it is best to let this heat escape; so, since the temperature outside is hotter it is uncomfortable when there be either need or desire.

Various clothing materials should therefore, from this point of view, be bought of in relation to their heat conductivity qualities—that is, how much heat they will allow or allow body heat to escape through their meshes. Also to what extent do they allow cold or heat from the outside to penetrate to the skin.

Wool is the poorest conductor. Therefore it is best for winter wear. Cotton and linen, on the other hand, are good heat conductors. Therefore they are best adapted for summer wear.

Moisture in the air must also be considered in relation to the kind of clothing that is to be worn. Wool quickly absorbs moisture. This is an added reason for employing it in cold, damp weather. The opposite is true of cotton and linen. Silk is being used more and more for underwear. Silk is a poor conductor of heat and it is light in weight, and soft. In Summer, although cotton undergarments are better, silk feels more agreeable to the skin.

An excellent rule to follow is never to wear clothing in Summer that is absolutely necessary. A garment of wool mixed with cotton is therefore the best choice.

Men undoubtedly wear clothing that is too heavy while women take chances with too flimsy materials.

Irritability, uneasiness, fatigue and even nervousness may result when, because of the garments worn, the body becomes overheated and has difficulty in getting rid of its surplus heat. The best plan is to wear very light materials in Summer underwear and even lightweight suitings but to carry a heavy overcoat for outdoor use. Then, when you enter a superheated building or room you can more readily adjust your wearing apparel to the changed conditions.

Mothers still cling to the notion that babies must wear bundles of clothing. Excess woolens and flannels are, however, extremely bad for a child's health.

The color of clothing likewise is important. White absorbs less of the sun's rays than do other colors. The experience of the Germans proved that if by way of a unit standard, white absorbs an index of heat, dark yellow absorbs 140, dark green 168, light blue 196 and black 208.

Lastly, clothes should not fit tightly. They should allow ventilation over the body when one walks. This gives the pores an opportunity to "breathe."

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Food should be selected not only for its caloric content but for its satiety value as well. Meat satisfies hunger readily. Hard boiled eggs satisfy more than soft boiled eggs cooked any other way although the calorie value remains unchanged. Potatoes are more filling than bread, yet less rich in carbohydrates. The addition of butter always increases the feeling of satisfaction and the latter may be said for sweet dessert at the end of a meal.

INVESTIGATE DEATH OF RENFREW MAN

Fling On Analysis Stomach Contains Poison

RENFREW, July 9.—(CP)—Official investigation has been launched into the death of Frank Patrick, 22, Crown Timber Agent at Wilno, Ont., following the report from the Provincial Laboratory at Toronto that he died as a result of carbolic acid poisoning.

Mr. Blank died suddenly on July 1, while going to his work, and a subsequent autopsy performed on the body aroused suspicion that he had not died from natural causes.

Dr. J. J. McCann was in charge of the Post Mortem, and on the receipt of the report from Toronto, ordered an Inquest to be held into the circumstances surrounding Mr. Blank's death. The date for the Inquest has not been learned from official sources, although it is understood to have been set for within a week.

Letters to The Editor

WATERWORKS

July 8, 1933

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer:

Please allow me space in your paper to quote the following: In every Tax-payer or user of lawn service water! What do you think of the new and expensive waterworks now? Did you believe all the hooey that was said about it by those gentlemen of the council when it was being built and after? No, but the facts are bound to come out and they are a severe shock to the majority of the people of the city when the water supply fails them while the pumps could not keep up the water supply required and fail they have a great risk in the way of not having sufficient water to fight a fire if we should have one. So play safe and fill up the rain-water barrels, as you may need them. Now isn't that something. After all we were told about the purity of that water plant. So we were told to use it only from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 5.30 p.m. to 8.00 p.m. and there was no mentioning of a shortage in the near future. Do they expect us to pay for what we don't get; would you pay for anything from a store or anywhere else if you did not receive the goods. "No" so why pay for water that you do not get. If the management knew that the pumps were not capable of supplying the water required they should have told us, so that those that wanted to use the water would have known and others could have it be also known that they would not use it at the price and hours.

Now the time that something is done about it. I will certainly not pay anymore unless I can get an investigation into the whole thing from top to bottom.

Fair Play.

To Editor of Ontario Intelligencer

Yes, Mr. Editor, my little Pluffy —my little office lady—is gone. She is the fifth taken by the cars, since I started my career a kitties. In my long experience doctoring God's creatures, I have learned to allow for every ounce of affection we give them, a pound of flesh is lost—that's the lady I bought "Pluffy" from when a puppy had several dogs and the lady would not realize it being sick herself and being so engrossed with other cares that Pluffy's trouble got out and I was sent for and noticed Pluffy, the smallest of the bunch with her back arched, her eyes closed and milk. The others would crowd her back and be being too afraid to fight for her place. I bought her, paying $18 as I sensed her condition if I returned before I got her that "I was a god," till one day in the summer time my wife and I went for a ride with a gentleman and his wife. I sat in front with him when he suddenly turned to his wife and said, "Mary, it is not pathetic the way this little dog looks at the doctor—the expression in her beautiful eyes shows how she worships him?"

With the words of that beautiful hymn:

"Should I be brought there by the hound of grace
Of Him who delights to forgive,"

When I pass through the pearly gates with that multitude that no man can number on that great day of the final reunion I will look for her.

Shall I ever forget her?

Yes, when the flowers forget the sun that raised and warmed them.

Yes, when the mountain peaks are incinerating to ashes;

Yes, when love dies out in the human heart;

Yes, when the desert sands grow cold.

Yours truly,

Petes' Fielders Romp to All Corners of Outer Garden to Defeat Nationals by 11-2

Russ Kitchen Assists in Hurling Five Hit Game

CIRCUS CATCHES

Ernie Smith Silences Bats as Relief Hurler

Peterboro, Ont., July 10 (Special)—Pitching five-hit ball here Saturday, Russ Kitchen turned back the Belleville Nationals, 11 to 2, before a large crowd. The Petes played a spectacular fielding game behind Kitchen and Ernie Smith came on after four hits had off the game to pile up their big score. Ernie Smith shut them out the last three frames and held them to one hit.

The Nats had trouble with the big right-hander's delivery and when they did connect fairly, they were robbed by circus-catches by Burton, Foley and Beavis, who roamed all over the outfield to pull almost everything they touched. Orr not get a man to second all till two errors by Rose in the ninth and Chambers single sent in two runs. Green singled in the first but was doubled by Burton, who made a sensational catch and caught him out when Scarlet tried to touch second on his return. Uzonki singled in the second, Morgan got one in the sixth and Mills one in the eighth, but all died on first. Kitchen fanned 7.

Ernie Holmes was nicked for seven hits in the three innings he toiled, and six runs. He is the losing pitcher. Alex Weir relieved in the fourth, and Ellth, but the Pete's combed him for six safeties and five runs. Ernest Smith closed out the job in the last three and was on top of the home team most of the time.

He did not walk a batter, whereas Holmes issued five free tickets to first. The Belleville support was not the best. Chambers was also having a bad day to boot three. The Petes played errorless ball till Rose missed two in the ninth.

Double Play for Lewis

Sonny Green, Petes' first sack'd. Smith showed some nice fielding and Uzonki got two good catches. Holmes and Barrigar tore off a double-play in the second. Barrigar looked good on several hard chances. "Peeney" Mills caught the last frame with Green going to third, the Manager going in to hit for Barrigar in the eighth and pinched the three Peterboro outfielders and Kitchen went good in the field. Selep and Burton had particular drawing big hands for one-hand catches while Green made a hard to rob Belleville batters of extra-base blows.

None of the visitors got more than one of the five safe hits. Foley and Morgan connected with their hits in four times each. Beavis banged out a double and singled in four. The loss puts Belleville three wins behind the Pete's, and places Knotty Lee's lads within striking distance of the league leading Kingston Frontenacs.

On Wednesday afternoon the Kingston Ponies play their first game of the 1933 season on the Belleville diamond and another typical Belleville-Kingston game is assured the fans.

BEARS PROVE CLASS AGAINST THE REDWINGS

Defeat Rochester in Twin Bill And Increase Their Lead

LEAFS WIN TWO

Run Their String of Victories to Six Straight

(By Herbert Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Far from taking them closer to first place, the Rochester Redwings dropped back-to-back games with the Newark Bears have served only to strengthen Newark's hold and drop the Redwings into third place.

Bears and Redwings began a crucial series with doubleheader yesterday and Newark, taking full advantage of Rochester errors, won both games, 5-4 and 3-2. When the day's action was over, Newark had increased its lead to three games over the idle Toronto Maple Leafs who led Rochester in turn, by one game.

Baltimore and Montreal split a double bill but it took the police to quell a hot argument over the first game. During a two-run 9th inning rally that won the game for Montreal, 5-3, Pete Winsett, Royal outfielder, lined the ball down the right field foul line. Umpire Ed Hubbard declared the ball safe, thereby invoking a strenuous argument from Manager Frank McGowan. Russ Ariett and Del Bissonette of Baltimore. Hubbard couldn't get them off the field so he summoned the police to escort McGowan and his two players from the park. Walter Brown started the second game for Montreal but was so wild and ineffective that before Art Smith could retire the side, Baltimore had scored nine runs, four of them on a home run by McGowan. After that it was just a breeze for Gowell Claxt, Baltimore, winning 10-3.

Albany Now Sixth

Albany zoomed into sixth place by walloping Buffalo twice, 7-5 and 17-3. Albany won the opener by pounding Ace Elliott from the box in the midst of a five run rally in the fourth inning. The Senators climaxed an afternoon of furious batting by scoring 11 runs in the 7th and last frame of the nightcap.

A well-earned double triumph by the flashy Toronto Maple Leafs over Baltimore Orioles was the highlight of Saturday's game in the International League. The Leafs downed the Orioles 3-2 and 1-0. Montreal Royals beat Jersey City in another tight game.

Yesterdays Stars

Joe Kuhel, Senators, drove in two runs in 2-1 victory over Bidiana.

Pepper Martin, Cardinals, hit two doubles and three singles, stole one base against Dodgers.

George Pipgras, Red Sox, and George Blaeholder, Browns, pitched effectively to divide double header.

Wally Berger, Braves, clouted a homer, double and single in the first game against the Reds.

Lon Warneke and Tinning, Cubs, held the Giants to one run and 10 hits for double victory.

Babe Ruth and Bui Dickey, Yankees, knocked in six runs each against Tigers, Ruth hitting three homers.

GOLF FACTS

NOT THEORIES!

By Alex J. Morrison

ALEX MORRISON says:

One of the things that cause the high handicap player to bend his score is using a club with too much loft then playing about shots around the green.

I've watched, so many players make this mistake

The only way I can account for it is that they are trying to hit-late the expert who really doesn't need such a club for these short pitches. At least not unless he has to.

The extremely lofted clubface requires an almost perfect swing. One that the good player can't be absolutely sure of making.

Instead of trying to pitch right up to the pin, it's better to assume that you're not going to make a perfect swing and use a straighted-faced club for a pitch and run shot.

THE BIG SIX

By The Canadian Press

The International League big six had a field day Saturday as Julius Solters, Baltimore outfielder, once circuit leader Ironsides Cleveland twice, 6-2 and 6-4, while the second place Yanks were content to Detroit 5-2.

Chicago Cubs set the Giants back 2-1 in one of Saturday's headline National League games while St. Louis nosed out Brooklyn 3-2 as the pitchers' battle in another feature.

RUTH HITTING

Sultan of Swat Blasts 3 Homers When Yankees Win Two

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, III., Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Baseball fans today were faced with the task of keeping one eye focused upon George Herman (Babe) Ruth and the other upon the Chicago Cubs, who slipped into the middle of the National League scene in the past few days while the eccentric actions of the higher clubs in the standings were still holding most of the attention.

Ruth, the old gentleman who has been "through" at various times in the last half dozen years, stepped out again yesterday and hoisted 3 home runs into the bleachers at the Yankee Stadium and personally conducted the Yanks to two victories over the Detroit Tigers by the scores of 11-7 and 7-5. The double circuit swats, which drove in six runs, lifted the Babe's total for the season to 22 and left him only two behind Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics, the Yanks, however need only a half game and remained four behind the Washington Senators, who scored three runs in the first inning and edged out Cleveland's Indians 5 to 4.

The Cubs climed into third place in the National League, passing the idle Pittsburgh Pirates, and threatened the St. Louis Cardinals' hold on second as they took a pair of new games from the pace-setting New York Giants, 2-1 and 3-1. They ran their string of victories to five games and New York's defeat chain to six.

Giants' Lead Reduced

The double defeat reduced the Giants' lead over St. Louis to 3½ games but their neighbors, the Brooklyn Dodgers, kept things from becoming worse by dividing a twin bill with the Cardinals. A triple by Ralph Boyle with two aboard in the 11th inning gave Brooklyn an 8-6 decision in the opener, but Tex Carleton turned in a seven hit shut out and St. Louis won the second game 3 to 0.

The Boston Braves' winning streak took them above the .500 mark for the first time this season as they won two close games from the Cincinnati Reds, 3-2 and 5-1.

The Boston Red Sox and the St. Louis Browns divided a doubleheader that meant little to the standings, the Sox winning the first contest, 4-3 behind the five hit pitching of George Pipgras and the Browns pounding out a 9-2 victory in the nightcap.

The Phillies and Pittsburgh in the National League and the Athletics and Chicago White Sox in the American had open dates.

Washington Senators featured Saturday's play in the American League, defeating Cleveland twice, 6-2 and 6-4, while the second place Yanks were content to Detroit 5-2.

Chicago Cubs set the Giants back 2-1 in one of Saturday's headline National League games while St. Louis nosed out Brooklyn 3-2 as the pitchers' battle in another feature.

Knocks and Boosts

After being carefully groomed and ruled like new softball diamond, which is to be the home of the Girdle Garage nine for the remainder of the season will be officially opened this evening. The grounds is situated on the site of the old Colborne Park diamond made famous years ago in the days of the old Belleville City League, when the old town boasted of a real city baseball league.

Although there are no modern grandstands or bleachers the new diamond is fairly level and once a new back-stop is erected, will be as good, if not superior to any ball park in the city. It is expected, that numerous old time fans will be seen along the sidelines at the Coleman Flats diamond this season, if for sentiment sake only.

Despite rumors to the effect that the local junior loop is a walk-away for Art Young's Crystalaire and the Wellington kids the other two clubs in the loop, the Frankford and Trenton nines, are by no means in the running. According to the league's play-off schedule the third place team meets the second place team and the winner of this series goes with the winner meeting the first place club in a two out of three series for the league title. As the loop now stands the Associated Oil lads and the Moose Jaw boys are fighting neck-and-neck for that coveted third place. They meet at the Alemite Field on Tuesday evening.

The season's largest turnout of sailing vessels were entered on the bay yesterday With Geo. H. Goodfellow's Avenger II. undoubtedly the bay two other large foreign yachts were also seen gracefully skeed under a stiff breeze. The entire fleet of local pests were out enmasse and many a little friendly tiff was the order of the day. Sailing apparently has returned to its pre-war class and not previously the Pastes have been literally presented with the Canadian National when they played in Belleville. "Peeney" Mills' charges only have one home game in the Central loop now. That is to-morrow night's scheduled tussle with Trenton. The first of which is being played here Wednesday Of course the Nationals will entertain "Chuck" Fournier, their ace, left hander, Tuesday evening. The slight mound-per turned back the Nationals here two weeks ago.

Manager Mills will not announce his starting pitcher until after tomorrow night's National practice session. It is now been learned that the Nationals will workout on Tuesday and Thursday for the remainder of the season. The Victories have been over the Monday and Friday night games. It is said, I guess, that Vinny Uzonki or Jim Morgan will get the local hurling duty call.

It may be news to know that Uzonki is the leading hurler in the C.O.B.L. having won three and not suffered a single loss this season. Should Mills, in the event he needs a relief hurler bet, the game was considered a win for the starting pitcher in each case.

Even in the face of an 11 to 2 defeat in Peterboro Saturday one thing stood out clearly and that was the manner in which Ernie Smith allowed the long ranged guns of the Peterboro hitters. The elongated youth from Camelford literally sized the Petes on their ears. Smith relieved Alex Weir in the sixth after the Petes had pounded both Weir and Holmes, the starting pitcher, to a fare-the-well. Smith stepped in and stood the Petes up, letting them down with one single blow from the sixth to the ninth. After the way that the Petes had been pounding the old pill all day the feat was one of note.

Never in the history of the Central loop have we seen such an exhibition of fly-catching than was demonstrated by the Petes' outfielders last Saturday. Understand us, the Nationals hit the offerings of Russ Kitchen hard enough to win any man's ball game but, the work of Burton, Beavis and Foley was just super-natural, that's all. Young Lee Burton made two running catches in left field that would have been a credit to any big leaguer. Burton caught both fly balls running with his back to the ball and eventually catching them over his left shoulder. Tommy Foley also pulled down two clever catches that helped save Kitchen's bacon. Vern Beavis also had a day on and galloped all over the vavelous game played by Burton and Foley as it was "just their day."

Amid an ovation that is seldom afforded a visiting ball player in the C.O.B.L. Manager Mills stepped to the plate as a pinch hitter in the eighth and showed all and sundry that he can still pound the old apple. Incidentally he celebrated his birthday, on the celebrated Sunday, by hitting a mighty smash in right centre field for only pinch-smash of the plate. Following the last Belleville game in Peterboro in which the Nats won we stated, that it was a pleasure to play a ball game in the old town. Here are a few given the well known Rronx cheer for that performance. "Belleville Nationals we say the same thing" ——"It's a pleasure to play ball game in Peterboro". When a visiting player makes a good play he is roundly applauded by the fans.

Napanee Opens Memorial Park With Win Over Brighton

New Home of Ball Team Credit to Town of Napanee

By C.D.T.

Opening a new ball park and having the home team travel twelve miles to win from their opponents is an event seldom recorded in sport annals but such occurred on Saturday in Napanee, when the George W. Gibbard Memorial Park was opened for the first time to the public and the "Gibbards" had to go 13 frames to down Brighton 6-4 in a league fixture.

Hearing considerable of the new park, that was to be the home of baseball in Napanee, we accepted the kind invitation of Ernie Gibbard, son of the man for whom the park was named, and can say, that the park lives up to all the nice things, that has been said about it. The new home of the Gibbard Ball Team is a replica of the Maple Leaf Stadium on a smaller scale and every convenience for the comfort of the spectators and players has been provided for. The diamond is built on big league scale, the infield being skinned and the outfield grassed. The infield is rounded from the mound towards the base lines in a gradual slope and the fences are placed far enough from the plate to make a player earn his every base by hustling.

The stand is built fairly close to the plate with accommodation for 600 fans, while along each side seats have been arranged to accommodate 400 more. On each side of the diamond has been erected a dug-out for the players while under the grandstand have been placed showers and dressing quarters. The park is compact, neat and credit is due the designer and to Ernie Gibbard, who personally supervised the construction. It is understood free labor was given unstintingly by well wishers of the ball team and these also deserve special mention. Baseball will be put on a higher plane in Napanee by the acquisition of this splendid park.

The opening ceremonies were graced by the presence of Hon. G. H. Challies, Provincial Secretary, the son-in-law of Ernie Gibbard, who took an active part, while Jack Adams, manager of the Detroit Red Wings in the National Hockey League and resident of Napanee was given the honor of throwing the first ball. The Napanee Band intruded out and marched to the flag pole, where the Union Jack was unfurled. Miss Eva Hawley head of the office staff, presented to Ernie Gibbard, manager of the team, a floral bouquet, while Charles Lowcks, factory superintendent, read the address wishing the team good luck in their new home.

Napanee won the ball game but it was a real contest. Brighton showing unexpected strength backed by excellent hurling by Campbell. Doug Fraser, who was queried on for spendicills early this spring and for years has been the mainstay in the box for the "Gibbards" was given the honor of pitching the game, but was relieved in the sixth, when his side started to trouble him. Tommy Pointer went to the mound and gave a Shipley of flinging, that was phinking but a's teammates probably because of stage fright and impression of the occasion nearly booted the game away. However in the 13th frame the Napanee worked a man down to second with two out and on the next play, "Dinty" McKinnon made the pickup of a hard hit ball to short but overthrew first base and the ball game was over.

Fashion Flashes

Never too many blouses since we wear suits so much. With a simple gray suit one wants sweaters. Very distinctive blouse of red satin. The satin is a heavy hospital leather-like fabric and is made simply, just a bow at the neckline and at the empire waistline.

Just like Mother wears are many of the new ensembles for children, a charming model has a three-quarter length swagger coat of bright red in a drop shoulder and with a scarf of the same fabric. It is worn with a white linen frock with a matching red satin bow.

Side sway under a broad brimmed hat, for smartness. A charming model with a wide brim is of navy blue linen with gay yellow "sun flowers" for trimming. The brim dips in the centre, and is piped with yellow linen.

Just too grand is a lovely satin ensemble for evening. The frock is of white satin with a broad band of pink satin draped about the hips. The accompanying full-length coat is of the black satin, lined with pink and it fastens at the side neck with a brilliant buttonr.

Just right for a smart outdoor event, is a new ensemble, "The frock of white satin with white lace for the upper bodice being made of the lace also. The short coat is of the white pique and has lines of stitching. It is worn with a white hat with a black band.

It won't be long before we select costumes for early autumn wear. To be shown in early September is a lovely suit in tan brown, loosely woven, thin woolen. It has winged collars and a box calf belt with a solid metal clasp. Cold metal hook and eye clasp the back of the skirt, and the blouse is in soft beige satin.

Beauty .... By Helen Jameson

Keeping Hands in Beauty Form

It is the housewife who utters loud lamentations about hands that are rough and ragged, the redness being even worse than the roughness. Gels for care both to keep home the bacon, spending their working hours in soaps and others, haven't any hand it's worse than fretting about. The mama has all of them.

Hands that run the domestic machinery are in and out of hot and cold water many times a day. That's where the trouble lies. Frequent immersions rob them of the natural oil, enlarge the veins, coarsen skin texture. Cream is not proper for especially harmful, and no housewife has any found a way to accept the job of digging out dust from crannies, cleaning window sills, polishing furniture. If the little mites are to be protected in their work they must be protected.

Such a dishmop, don't have the water extremely hot, select soap that is suitable for toilet use. Avoid cleansing that contain strong, skin-flaying elements that dry out the fibers of the flesh. There aren't many of them on the market. Some women having discovered that the best line of selling talc concentrated on hand safety. After all, pretty hands are important than the spotlessness of the kitchen sink. Anybody will say so.

Even with protective measures, hands need a soothing lotion. Those that blend jelly-like substances are effective; as they dry almost immediately, one can keep right on with the three-star chores. A night some oily substance should be used with at least five minutes massage and pressure on the knuckles to keep them toned. Cold cream will serve. Cocobutter and lanoline are good. But friction is an important part of the treatment.

Rubber gloves are good friends, but they must be worn before one's contact with dirt, but many women find them a bother, difficult to remove quickly. Some prefer large cotton gloves. It's worth while wearing them.

Hand exercises sound interesting and are beneficial when joints are stiff, but ordinarily the housewife doesn't need them. Her little buttorflies are pretty much on the move all the time.

To wear gloves in night serves no purpose other than that of keeping the creamy application from rubbing off on the bed linens.

With canning and preserving season here, we must urge the home gals to keep the cut lemon on the kitchen shelf, as it immediately after using have settled themselves. Plunge the finger tips into the pulp. The acid of the fruit will whiten nail eaters too.

A manicure is well worth the price. It grinds off black marks that appear after brittle scouring.

Stimulate Scalp by Massage

Gently Pulling The Hair Will Wake up Lazy Capillaries

(By Helen Follett)

In the little cup-like cavity in which the hair roots rest are tiny muscles. To this little house the blood streams, bringing groceries on which the hair thrives and has its being. Both muscles and capillaries are stimulated by a gentle pulling of the hair it is an excellent form of scalp treatment. When the beauty seekey has a moment to spend on self adornment and improvement let her grasp her glorious locks, strand by strand, pull them gently. She should conclude her treatment with a heavy massage and rub her hair hard at the back of the neck, work on the arteries that are located there.

While hollow cheeks respond to a clawing form of massage, after the skin is warmed by hot water, even with a heavy cream, the quicker method has to do with diet, since nourishment is the main point. Be a heavy milk drinker a quart a day isn't too much. Eggs, cereals, cream down a bowl of cereal, trimmed with cream and sugar. Add more butter to the bread, use it on vegetables. Get nine hours sleep every night.

Particularly necessary is the magnifying mirror if a girl must tint her eyelids. It is not to apply shadows neatly. The effect depends upon a skillful fade away of the tint. Avoidance is to extends beyond the far corner of the eye. That is where should be the point of the eyelash line fainter as it creeps toward the cheekbone.

Do you know that, very often, the first wrinkles appear just in front of the ears? Yawns there are not, but these delicate. Then doing out the sweetly outdoor complexion of which we hear so much. Cereous taps right there. And ice rubbing won't do a bit of harm.

Green soap is recommended in treatment for blackheads, because it is soft, can be thoroughly rubbed in with the finger tips. Rub it in thin it with which hazel or alcohol. Let it stay a little. Add cold cream or vaseline and just about the same consistency, blend those evenly and work briskly hot; cold water won't budge it. Dry the skin surface gently, apply powder and rouge.

Benjamin, Sister Orange Lodges with L.O.B.A. Attend Services

Bishop George Marshall Addresses Brethren on Occasion

Despite threatening weather there was a goodly number of the members of the Orange Orders of this city and district in attendance at the annual 12th. of July church parade Sunday morning, which was held under the direction of Benjamin L.O.L. No. 274, D. Asselstine, W. M. Visiting Orangemen from Shannonville, Sidney, Point Anne, Foxboro, Wallbridge, Trenton, Canniffton, Frankford and Foxboro joined with their Belleville brethren in the procession to the church where Bishop Marshall preached. In the absence of the Rt. Rev. George Marshall was in charge of the service and delivered the sermon to his fraternal brothers and sisters. Led by the Belleville Pipe Band and headed by members of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association of this city the procession moved from the Orange Hall up Front Street and Victoria Ave. to the place of worship and following the service returned to the hall via Church, Bridge and Front Streets.

The lesson was read by Everett Bell, chaplain of Benjamin Lodge and W. R. Barlow, leader of Emmanuel Church, recited the prayers or the morning.

Sermon Well Welcomed

On behalf of the wardens and vestry men as well as himself, Bishop Marshall welcomed the members of the various Orange societies to the church and said their attendance proved an inspiration to him. From the 1st. Book of Chronicles, the 12th. chapter and 32nd. verse, the preacher had chosen the text for his morning delivery. "Men that had understanding of the times to know what Israel ought to do."

No nation had ever been without its trials and perplexities and this had been particularly so with Israel, and it was no answer out or one trouble than into another. But it had found a compassionate God to show the way out of difficulties. The troubles of that nation was due to the forsaking of the commandments of Almighty God.

Success was more dangerous to spiritual welfare than adversity. Saul, the first king of Israel, in success, forgot God who he was pledged to serve, and ended disastrously. In success God was forgotten but turned to in distress. Churches, great men and organizations had come into being for heroic highs to guide the footsteps of men. When these receded why God called them into creation they would be great indeed.

Under Three Headings

Bishop Marshall divided the theme of his discourse under three headings: 1st. times of which those men had understanding; 2nd. the men who had understanding of those times; and 3rd., what those men accomplished. Carefully the pastor developed his subject. Man's extremity was God's opportunity. Men of understanding adopted right methods. In this connection there were men of understanding who will not come to the front to guide in destitute. They claim it is none of their business. they wish only to find fault. Men active in politics are criticized by righteous-overmuch. Men of any nation who had accomplished and achieved the greatest good have been God fearing men. Christians should not stand idly by but arise to the occasion and grapple with the problems of the times. We should maintain our faith in God and help in the solving of difficulties of some one just around the corner. Some have mourned the difficulties of the times we are now passing through who have not themselves touched by them. They have done more willing than those who have actually felt want and hunger.

Today in London 68 men from all the nations of the world were trying to solve the grave problems besetting it and endeavouring to find some means of bringing the world stagnation of the present times. They are receiving much criticism than prayers for their success. Why should not all churches pray for the success of these men's deliberations?

"In our British Empire we have a glorious ancestry, a noble history, a great empire, a pious King, and a faithful God. A God faithful with us; lets us be faithful to Him," concludes Bishop Marshall.

Correct Manners

(By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman)

THE WIDOW'S NAME

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Kindly advise me as to the correct forms in the following instances:

1. When addressing an envelope to a widow, is it correct to write: Mrs. Mary White

Two Home Terrace

Belleville, Ont.

or should her husband's name be used in place of her own?

2. When a widow signs her name to a letter, should she use her own name, or that of her deceased husband?

H.

Before I answer either question let me say that a widow should use exactly the same form of name that she used when her husband was alive. Her visiting card remains the same.... usually her widow's card, not even change to a black-bordered card.

1.—We address an envelope to a widow just as we did when her husband was living:

Mrs. Henry Allen White

Mrs. Henry White

Of course if we are positive that she prefers that her first name be should, naturally, bow to her wishes. But I would say that will use this correct form of her name as suggested above. Suppose a woman, a widow, a divorcee, should avoid using her first name in her signature?

2.—A widow's letters, too, are signed with her own name, as suggested when her husband was living. Thus three wives would sign:

Devotedly,

Mary,

The letters to people whom she doesn't know as well, but who do know her formal name, are signed:

Very sincerely yours,

Mary Brown White

Business letters, professional letters, and other letters of formality, are signed:

Very truly yours,

Mary Smith White

(Mrs. Henry White)

IMPORTANT NOTES OF THANKS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A young lady friend of mine has been visiting a community with a young man for a considerable time. Recently the young man asked her to be his wife. I consider to be hostess to his mother and brother for a week-end visit, during which time the young lady's mother served and cooking dinners and luncheons. To whom should the thank-you note be addressed..... the young lady or her mother?

Many, many thanks.

M.

It is most important that the young lady write a note to his mother, each write a thank-you note to his sister who was so exceptionally kind in her hospitality. It would be pleasing to the mother, especially under these circumstances that you have outlined for each of you to have a separate note to the young lady. But it is also proper to the mother, who was the hostess, that are the imperative one.

Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on good manners submitted by readers.

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

"Stair Trooper" at Capitol is Rich in Plot and Love Interest

"Stair Trooper" with Ralph Bellamy and Ginger Rogers in the leading roles pleased a capacity house at the Capitol Theatre on Saturday evening. There is plot and there is intrigue, which holds the audience on its mettle until the solution. Situation crowds upon situation in this play of love and intrigue. There is melodrama and considerable of it but not enough to make the story depend upon this alone for the characterization is good and a love story is portrayed.

Regis Toomey plays the motor traffic officer of Scotland Yard" who is adamant in the performance of his duty, even to the snubbing of his "spoiled" young lady (played by Evalyn Knapp), daughter of the head of a petrol oil company. The film is particularly of this age and finds the automobile on the highway, and have read of sabotage and poor construction that apprehend the power of the story.

The melodrama is powerful stuff and is played with ability by Toomey and Bellamy, assisted in creating the picture of business rivalry. The scene in the large garage where Bellamy is held as prisoner, and where an attempt at murder is made by the chauffeur at the secret of the plot, and foiled in a graphic manner, the dramatic scenes in the control room and the frustrated plan to bomb the refinery and the air are but a few of the many interesting features. The innocent "Sheriff" who will lunch which had been tampered with by the plotters in order to cause an accident by setting the steering gear and the story how the daughter of the passionate unwillingly upsets the well laid plan for the destruction of the works were well done.

A story of the laying of the telegraph services in the west with Indians and bad whites, rounds out with the news service a full evening's entertainment.

CHILD WHO IS ALWAYS BOASTING

(By Constance Cameron)

There are some beautifully wise mothers in this world. One of them has a son of eight years who had been making himself most unpopular by constant boasting. He bragged about everything. He could run faster than any other boy; his dog was the biggest dog in the neighborood; his father had the newest car on his street and as a fitting climax, his father had more money than the father of any boy he knew.

The mother hadn't heard all of the boasts, but she happened to hear that last one. And Sonny heard about it. He was called in from the porch where he was boring his cohorts of friends, the only moral for him because he had lots and lots of toys and slides and baseballs, etc., at his house. Inwardly, they despised him.

"Why do you boast about how much money your father has?" inquired the mother quietly. "Not only boasts to enhance his own importance, and your father's money is no credit to you. He has worked for it. You don't deserve one bit of any of the credit it may bring him. Why don't you go something similar than anyone else? Then you will have a right to boast." She smiled quietly but Sonny was mad.

Too Busy to Read

The boy was sullen. "And I can make some money too", he said. "Fine," said his mother. "Why don't you?"

That appealed to him, and the two talked over ways of earning money through the summer. The last got the agency for a magazine and made a garden and sold vegetables, but the money he earned was not making a presentable allowance for a lad his age. But, as the wise mother knew, he had learned a lesson about it, for in his sense of achievement he established a right to recognition, for importance and considers within each of us. He was making a success of the things he'd started and he could afford to be more unassuming to his comrades. He was silent, knowing that

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Trading in New York of Indifferent Type And a Bit Irregular—Buying Active in Hollinger And Teck Hughes Presumably by New York Interests—Interest Again Apparent in Distillery Issues on Account of Early Voting on Prohibition in U. S.

WALL STREET

New York, July 10 (AP)— Dropping dollar rates appeared likely to bring the one-time fast "follow-through" in financial markets today and trading in most categories was of the indifferent type and prices a bit irregular.

The pound sterling jumped about 10 cents to within reaching distance of its former gold parity and other European currencies were equally strong.

Shares of McIntyre, Porcupine, Dome, Canadian Pacific and International Nickel were fractionally lower. The Canadian dollar moved up ¼ cent to 96 cents, presumably in sympathy with the buoyant pound.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, July 10—(CP)—Opening prices were the best of the day in the Toronto Mines Market today, the initial price level falling moderately as the session developed. At the close the big gold leaders were off by unimportant fractions of a point. Hollinger which held a gain of 30 cents at 10.05, Teck-Hughes weakened 75 to 4.75, McIntyre 50 to 30.00, Dome 75 to 32.50, Pioneer 25 to 14.50, Wright Hargreaves 10 to 6.80 and Teck Hughes five to 6.65.

International Nickel was pulled down by the receding trend in Wall Street and closed with a loss of 50 at 20.50. Mining stock opening was not held, the close showing a loss of 75 cents at 42.50.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, July 10 (AP) — The stock market was quieter today.

Prices were irregular in the late dealings, specialties and utilities were higher while rails and most industrials inclined to ease. Advances of a point or more were shown in National Distillers, American Rolling Mills, Consolidated Gas and Continental Baking "A". Equivalent losses occurred in Hollingbour, American Telephone & Telegraph, Union Pacific, New York Central and Du Pont. United States Steel and Case were steady. Transfers approximately 4,700,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 10 (CP)—While the price trend in the industrial section was towards lower levels on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, downside slants were impressed in some with narrow gains predominating at the close. The distillery issues featured, the day's trade, particularly Walker's common, which advanced five points to 30 and Distillers Seagram which added three points to close at 34.

Oil shares moved within a narrow range and leaned towards the downside at the close. Imperial was up ¼ and McColl Frontenac at 30.00. Dome Exploration Oils dropped 1, Supertest ordinary ¼, International Pete ¼ and McColl American closed unchanged.

Nickel was particularly influenced by New York heaviness, weakening 80 cents to 20.50. Smelters dropped a point to 138, C.P.R. a point to 20, Brazilian a fraction to 16⅛ and Ford of Canada ¾ to 13¾.

MOTOR PARTY BACK IN CITY

Fire Chief W. J. Lynch Tells of Experience on Northern Road

Mr. W. J. Lynch, chief of the Belleville Fire Department, arrived home from Sudbury on Sunday evening with Mrs. Lynch, their son James and Mr. and Mrs. Cephas Johnson. Mr. Lynch speaking of the accident which he had some distance on this side of Sudbury at five o'clock one morning last week while on his way home, said his automobile was travelling about twenty-five miles an hour. He had come to the top of a hill and he remembered a right turn, but two car lengths ahead was a left turn. He was unable to make the turn as the car was gathering momentum going down the incline and he was forced to take to the ditch. A four hundred pound boulder on the side of the road was carried across the ditch by the car and before the car came to a stop, the stone had caused damage to the fly wheel housing and the under-part of the car caused the engine.

Mrs. Lynch suffered several bruises to the scalp and other members of the party were more or less bruised. The automobile remained upright. Mr. Lynch and his party returned to Sudbury where his daughter and her husband, who is a son of Mr. Johnson, live, and there remained vile until Sunday morning when they started out to arrive home in the evening without further mishap.

Chief Lynch learned on a motor trip to Waterloon, N.Y., on Tuesday to visit his daughter.

Maintain Religious Heritage Message Given to Orangemen

County Lodges Join With Cannifton to Attend Service

A large and representative gathering of South Hastings County Loyal Orange Lodges attended Division Sunday afternoon, at the Cannifton United Church. In attendance were members from the L.O.L.'s of Halloway, Foxboro, Trenton, Frankford, Plainfield, Shannonville, Wallbridge, Point Anne, Meyer Hall and Belleville, from the Royal Black Preceptory of Belleville and Foxboro and lady members of the L.O.B.A. from this city and Frankford.

March to Cenotaph

The afternoon was ideal for such a gathering and shortly after two o'clock a parade was formed at the Orange Hall, marshalled by R. W. M. George McCullough of the R. B. P. of Foxboro, and headed by the Belleville Pipe Band, marched to the Cenotaph of the village, where Bro. James Lake of the Foxboro L.O.L. who had lost a son in the Great War, had the honor of placing a memorial wreath of the Orangemen, in recognition and memory of the members of the Order for South Hastings lodges who had rendered the supreme sacrifice for King, country and freedom. Ladies of Lydia lodge of this city and the lady members from Frankford led the procession to the Memorial and on the return parade to the church.

The Rev. W. R. Merrick delivered a brief, but most appropriate oration at the monument which marks Thurlow township's honor to its war dead and Jamie Clark, piper of the 21st. Battalion Club of Belleville, played the lament "Flowers of the Forest."

Church Service

The church was filled to capacity when the members of the Orange Order were seated. On the platform with the pastor, the Rev. Bro. W. R. Merrick were the County and District Masters, H. Mack of Belleville and Harry Harrison of Plainfield. Miss Myrtle Mills, pianist, and choir leader, had arranged special music for the occasion and the choir rendered two very fine anthems, "Sing Every Nation," and "Under Two Flags." Miss Phyllis May sang most pleasingly as a solo "My Task" with Mrs. Chambers as accompanist and during offertory Mr. Ted Watts presided at the piano.

The arrangements for the afternoon were under direction of Carleton L.O.L. No. 2230 and W. M. John Small, and the lodge's recording secretary, Wm. Cole, had every detail working out to perfection from the opening in the Orange Hall till the close of the day's events in the lodge room, subsequent to the church service.

The Sermon

The Lesson for the afternoon was chosen by the pastor from 6th. chapter Judges, verses 7 to 15, and in welcoming the Orangemen of South Hastings County Lodges, Mr. Merrick said he appreciated greatly the honour that had come to him to bring the message to them, the members of the South Hastings lodges.

From the 11th. chapter of Daniel and the latter part of its 32nd. verse, the Rev. Mr. Merrick had chosen his text, "the people that do know their God, shall be strong and do exploits." To be strong and do exploits was the aim and ambition of many and when directing with intelligence and accomplished with success these exploits, military, political, scientific or physical were viewed with pleasure and delight. Marconi in 1902 had accomplished an exploit of high 'order when, through the ether he had sent his wireless message from Devonshire England, his colleague in Newfoundland, and today that exploit has made possible the pleasure and delight we have in our radio. A few years ago the world resounding with praise for the lone airman, Col. Lindbergh, who leaving the airfields of New York, next touched terra firma in France. The years and ages have been filled with exploits and those who accomplished them have been duly acclaimed.

Other Exploits

Scripture reminds us today that there are other exploits besides those associated with military and political events and scientific findings. In the field of religion there has ever and ever will be a wonderful realm for exploits. The greatest and grandest exploits of all have been and will be in the realm of religion. Samson, the champion of Israel, knew and feared God and had accomplished wonderful exploits of physical strength. Those who believe in God and live according to His rules and commandments become strong in mind and body but the real test of a man's strength and personality should not be judged by his physical accomplishments but by his knowledge of God, the man who answers God's call and responds to the challenge to live his life according to the will of God and has an understanding of that will.

"To know God is something more than to know about Him. Those who truly know God accomplish things. The Prince of Orange, King William III, knew God and was made strong in his knowledge of God to make the glorious stand he did and accomplish an exploit outstanding in the annals of the histories of the nations of the world. He was imbued with strength moral and spiritual and was made strong to maintain a simple religious faith for Ireland and England. When Powers were crushing out religious and political liberties a call was sent to the Prince of Orange to come and set free those institutions in Great Britain.

King William III. lived according to the will of God and in the face of murderous plots, treason and contentions against him, had carried through his campaign for the maintenance of an evangelical faith with a composure of soul unshaken because of his knowledge of God. He had been made strong by his intimate knowledge of God to expound and win religious and civil liberties for the oppressed of Ireland and England.

Maintain Religious Heritage

It is for you and me today, said the preacher, to maintain the religious heritage received by the sacrifices of our forefathers and the exploits of the past. The Protestantism is to redeem we must not fall down in our duty or be found asleep at the post. In our lives must be embodied the principles of Protestantism as founded on God's word. This is an exploit for you and for me, to keep an open Bible, the message of God in our hands, God's word known intimately in your homes. With that foundation the Protestant churches of this and other lands will be filled with a worshipping people.

"Seek Him who alone can make us strong to remain true to our religion, our king and our country" concluding Mr. Merrick.

As a closing hymn, after the pastor's masterly sermon on such a subject, "Pull on Our Fathers" was fervently sung by the congregation.

Two Will Defend Titles in New York Shows

New York, July 10 (CP)—Ben Jeby of New York opens a bush week for boxing champions at Newark tonight defending his claim to the world's middleweight championship against the assault of Young Terry, aggressive 160-pounder from Trenton, N. J.

Jeby, whose title claims rest upon recognition by the New York State Athletic Commission following a technical knockout over Frankie Battaglia of Winnipeg, rules a six to five favorite despite the fact that Terry took a decision from him two years ago. The bout, to be held in Dreamland Park, will be over the championship distance of 15 rounds.

The middleweight crown has been in dispute ever since Mickey Walker outgrew the decision. Marcel Thil of France, holds National Boxing Association recognition as titleholder.

Three other champions. Freddie Miller, Maxey Rosenbloom and Midget Wolgast, a-so swing into action this week as will Billy Petrolle, Duluth veterans, who has abandoned his plans at weight-making and will campaign strictly as a welterweight hereafter.

Miller, National Boxing Association featherweight king, will defend his crown in a 15-round match with Abe Isreal of Seattle, tomorrow night.

Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, and Wolgast, generally regarded as flyweight titleholders, will appear in overweight matches, the former against John Henry Lewis, Phoenix, Ariz., negro at San Francisco tomorrow night and Wolgast against Lew Farber of New York, at Pugasy Bowl, here tomorrow.

Bad Break Proves Good One For Mosolf, New Chi Cub

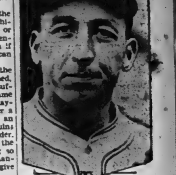
By HAROLD K. GEORGE

General Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Ill., July 10— Three weeks after the 1932 season opened Jim Mosolf still had to play a ball game in the outfield for the Kansas City Blues.

Today, the young man from the timberland of Washington is a Chicago Cub and playing regularly, or until Kiki Cuyler or Riggs Stephenson return it remains to be seen if either Ki or the Cubs Old Hoss can get back his place.

MOSOLF GOT the worst of the breaks when the season opened, forced out because of an injury suffered in a game with these same Cubs with whom he is now playing. Mosolf was coming in after a short fly back of second base in an exhibition game with the Bruins when he collided with an infielder. MOSOLF GOT the worst of the deal. His substitute was hitting so well that Tris Speaker, then manager of the Blues, couldn't give Mosolf a chance.



Three weeks passed and when the Blues slumped, Tris tried Mosolf in a different outfield position because the team was going badly and any change might mean the Blues out, of it." It wouldn't have surprised Mosolf if Tris had shipped him off to another club!

The chance to play was appreciated, however, for Mosolf would rather not be in baseball if he couldn't regularly. He took full advantage of the opportunity and up to the time of his departure for the American association had an average of .383.

During that time he was at bat 243 times, made 93 hits and was near the top in runs scored and runs batted in.

MOSOLF IS not new to the National league. The Pittsburgh Pirates held title to him from late in 1928 until last year when he was turned over to the Blues as part payment for Pitcher Bill Swift.

Jim started with Los Angeles in 1926 and was turned over to Art Griggs of Wichita in the Western league the next season for develop-

By Russ Westover.

Jerry lay awake a long while listening intently, but heard no sounds other than the ripple of the waves and the throbbing of the propellers. And at last she dropped asleep.

Next morning at breakfast Joe made no mention of the disturbance during the night and although Jerry's curiosity was running at fever heat, she realized it would be unwise for her to question Joe.

Joe, however, seemed willing to let her wait forever, a wee bit ashamed of his morning, gay and full of improbable stories; and his conscience, if he had one, appeared to be as clear as a baby's complexion.

He said he had changed his plans about going to Ludington to pick up the buyer. He had been in touch with this man by radio yesterday afternoon, he said, and the buyer had decided to clean up some business in Detroit first before coming to Chicago. Joe was glad he had made the decision because now he would have some time to devote to Jerry.

"If there is anything that bores me, it's the radio business," Joe said; "how I hate selling radios."

Joe proposed that Jerry learn how to shoot clay pigeons and suggested they go to the upper deck and blaze away at the clay disks for awhile, letting one of the sailors send them whirling up into the air.

Jerry had never used a shotgun before and Joe thought the kick of a twelve-gauge with black powder would soon discourage her.

On the contrary, she was soon cracking half the birds and was getting the hang of leading them correctly and judging the distance and the wind.

Joe smiled with satisfaction.

"You could certainly take care of yourself in a jungle or a gun fight or even in the hot hands of matrimony, couldn't you?" he said. "Well, I hope you never have to."

Joe had a wiggle clean the guns when they were through shooting and then put them away in his cabin.

"By the way," he said, "all the guns on the boat are in my cabin. Once Tim I was in the south seas we had a mutiny, ugly business. I've kept all the guns in my cabin ever since.

Jerry wanted to ask him why he carried so many guns and about the man who was lying somewhere below. She wanted to ask him about the mysterious fleet of schooners and where they were going, and what she had no reason to believe he never told the truth.

She thought of slipping into the wheelhouse to ask Capt. Peterson a few questions, but hesitated to risk it. He would immediately report the matter to Joe, Jerry feared, and that would be sure to cause trouble.

Besides, the captain was having plenty to worry about without any extra trouble from Jerry.

As evening approached the haze thickened until the captain was continuously ringing the bell and blowing the fog horn. The big electric searchlights on the boat could scarcely cut the blanket 30 feet and the speed was reduced to five knots.

"Looks like we're in for some bad weather" the captain told Joe, "think we'd better head south for Chicago?"

"Keep going north," Joe said: "you know your orders."

CHAPTER 11

Dinner was at eight. Already the fog was lifting as Jerry and Joe sat opposite each other at the table. But the wind blowing the fog away was increasing momentarily in velocity, and the long, surging rollers were being chopped into crests while capped waves.

The wind was whistling around the superstructure and tugging at every pennant and bit of tarpaulin like a living thing; and the waves were getting high enough to jar the dishes on the table and make the chandelier swing like a pendulum.

Once Captain Peterson intruded cap in hand, to say that the barometer was falling rapidly and he believed the wisest course was toward Milwaukee.

"This is no little squall we're heading her into," said Peterson. "We should try to make some harbor."

"Keeping going north," Joe said.

Jerry watched the sailors hurrying about their tasks, battening down the hatches, bringing in the deck chairs and furniture, and the afterdeck, and protecting the yacht wherever they could with tarpaulins.

She wondered why this strange man with whom her fate had been so recently but so completely cast, insisted upon running head on into the storm against the captain's better judgment when the glass was falling and the wind rising every minute. But looking at his face coolly as he peered out into the lashing storm, with the wind cloudy whirling across the sky and the waves foaming over the prow she knew that he loved it.

He was in his element here, a storm petrel courting danger and riding the storm.

Now he brought oilskins from a locker and suggested that they make their way back to the pilot house. The ice deck which was still covered precariously dry. Jerry sought the spirit of the living and imagined into the evil-smelling black garments and the big sou'wester hat, laughed unctuously at the ridiculous figure she cut.

"No one would ever want to rescue me while I looked like this."

"Wouldn't they though," Joe said with admiration. "You look like the Queen of the Pirates or something equally romantic. I'd rather rescue you than Greta Garbo, definitely. Marlene Dietrich and Clara Bow all going down on the same boat."

Jerry fought their way, laughing and shouting to be heard in the storm, back to the big comfortable library just forward of the afterdeck and kept the children playing oblivious and began a game of chess.

Jerry kept in touch with the captain every few minutes by telephone at his elbow, but managed to play an excellent chess game nevertheless, and Jerry knew now, that it was more than a game with Joe. He was playing for the soul with all her intellect his clever moves on the board.

One by one, however, she saw her little pawns of ivory swept away. Then she lost a castle, a knight and a bishop, and finally found her king in danger.

But just before Joe was able to checkmate her queen, the storm grew violent, wave sent the chessmen tumbling in confusion all over their checkerboard world.

Jerry laughed, but Joe was unamused and angry.

He strode to the window and peered out into the darkness where for moments at a time the green moon was visible. Then they could actually see that glint of green in his dark eyes.

The library was dark save for one small, forger-iron lantern in which a dim candle was burning. And the green of his eyes was best seen in the dark.

Jerry remembered how as a little girl she had had a wild little cat whose eyes glowed like twin green semaphores at night when a playful child widely dilated in the yellow iris. But in the daytime, study his eyes as she might, she could see no glow.

Joe's eyes were like that. Only they were so unavoidably brown together and mercilessly held there by the storm.

Jerry wondering if she would be a prisoner with Joe man all through the night and noticed that there was no curtained alcove or other place apart, where she could sleep.

And then Joe turned from the window and came toward her.

His anger had passed and his voice when he spoke was as soft and low-toned as heavy velvet.

"Don't you know that in another hour we may both be dead," he told her. "We will be dead and soon forgotten and will never have had our moments of happiness together?

"Don't you realize how brief and unimportant human life is?

"Don't you realize how brief and quickly in the great scheme of things we are snuffed out?

"And suppose there is something after, which I for one do not believe. Even supposing a heaven or a Nirvanna. That will not be for us together again will we find human blood pulsing through our veins, be able to smell sweetness, taste delightful food or touch beautiful women."

He laid his hand very gently upon her arm, but Jerry felt that an electric current had been sent through her. She drew away quickly, fearing herself almost as much as him and tried with clumsy but well-meaning words to assure him as but appealing philosophy.

"We aren't going to die," she said with conviction, "and even if we were I should want to spend my last moments alone, thinking deeply about many things I have never had a chance to think through thoroughly.

"If human life is nothing, as you say, then I would not want to spoon my last few hours in shallow living. I should want to think about what was ahead."

"Yes, you are a good little Christian," Joe said in the same soft-toned voice. "But if you had lived in as many countries as I have, had seen how many and varying are the religions and the beliefs you would concentrate less upon the hereafter and think more of the pleasures of this world."

Jerry did not know whether it was the drunken wind and rain pouring down outside, or the drunkenness and heady words storming around her which made thought so difficult and emotion so easy.

"I know I should answer your arguments," she cried, "I am not so old or so well read or so experienced as you. But I have my own convictions and they are as clear to me as day."

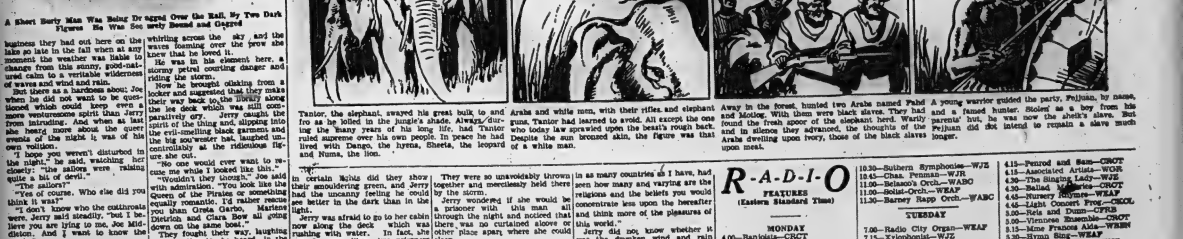
"You can bully me intellectually as much as you like but I still know what I think."

"How do you know you are thinking" Joe asked, and there was slight mockery in his voice now. "How do you know the little process that goes on within that pesky noddle of yours is actually thought?"

"All that you can truthfully say you have are reiterating the old platitudes that some one has told you your mother or your Sunday School teacher or some one else."

Jerry put her fingers in her ears. "I won't listen to your arguments all," she said. "You never speak anything you say. You just talk so that I will forget what is right. Everything you tell me is worse than a lie."

"Nothing is the truth, nothing a lie," said Joe. "Everything is somewhere between.... I believe every word I have told you..... Jerry you are so beautiful."



"I'm not listening," Jerry said.

business they had out there on the lake so late in the fall when at any moment the weather was liable to change from this sunny, good-natured calm to a veritable wilderness of waves and wind and rain.

But there as a hardness about Joe when he spoke that went to the quick. Jerry sensed which could keep even a more venturesome spirit than Jerry from intruding upon when at last she heard more about the quiet events of the night. So she held her own volition.

"I hope you weren't disturbed in the night," he said, watching her closely. "Joe and the sailors were raising quite a bit of devil."

"The sailors?"

"Yes of course. Who else did you think it was?"

"I don't know who the outfitters were, Jerry said steadily, "but I believe you are lying to me, Joe, about them. And I want to know the truth."

"Oh, of course," said Joe. "If you prefer to have me tell you that sea pirates are boarding the yacht and Jackie were going a sailor's honorque with it played. We pitched them overboard."

"No," said Jerry, "I would rather have you tell me about the man who was brought aboard this yacht gagged and bound and frightened for his life. I'd like to know why he was kidnapped and why you had to do with the fleet of schooners I saw in the moonlight."

"As I said before," Joe continued calmly, "the sailors were raising quite a bit of devil. You follow in particular —Smith, the second engineer, who is a Scotch Presbyterian—tried to commit suicide by jumping into the lake. One of the fishing schooners was passing at the time and we threw a powerboat to help us pull Smith out."

We had to bind and gag him so that he wouldn't do himself any more harm. I don't know where you got the idea there was any mystery about the affair. You must have been seeing too many movies."

"I'm going to find out what's going on around here", Jerry warned Joe, and dodged past him.

Nevertheless, the afternoon wore on Jerry began to wonder if after all she was not telling the truth. It was perfectly possible her self that Joe was not telling the truth. It was perfectly Possible her overwrought nerves and the queer light by which she had seen the sailor had lent an altogether false and sinister aspect to the matter.

Joe's story was perfectly plausible, but all of his stories were that. Still

IS FACTOR IN HIDING PLACE?

British Consul Requests Steps Taken For Apprehension

Chicago, July 8 (AP)—New complications were injected today into the already complicated case of Chicago's missing stock broker — John Factor — when the British Consul requested active steps for his apprehension in the belief he is trying to escape extradition to England.

The request for his capture was made by the Consul Lewis Bernays, and Attorney Franklin R. Overmyer, representing the London authorities. Overmyer said the request was made to Melvin Purvis, head of the Chicago Office of the United States Bureau of Investigation.

"It's up to the United States now to produce," Overmyer's aide quoted as saying.

Factor is accused of having swindled British investors out of $2,000,000 and an appeal by Factor to prevent extradition is now pending in Supreme Court here.

The missing man's friends, however, scoffed at the suggestion he had dropped from sight to escape going to England.

Meanwhile speculation as to Factor's whereabouts took on new life with a fresh batch of reports. One of the latest grew out of the finding of a note in Eufaula, Okla., signed "Jake the Barber." Asking the writer was "held by Al Capone henchmen." Factor was once a Halsted Street barber, who reputedly made "big money" as a speculator.

CENTENNIAL IS OBSERVED

Oxford Group Movement Dating From 1833 is Theme of Vicar

The Oxford Group movement, which wrought great transformations in the Church of England in the past century was referred to by Rev. A. E. Beauchamp Payne, vicar of St. Thomas Church preaching to the union service for Anglicans at St. Thomas Church at eleven o'clock on Sunday. The vicar spoke of "great men" in this particular matter, quoting Keble, Newman, Pusey and others. Among the results of the movement noted were the growth of missionary zeal, the beautification of the church interiors and the making of the church services more impressive and dignified. Increase in the zeal of the members of the church was attributed to this great ecclesiastical movement.

Throughout the Anglican world the movement was marked for Sunday.

RUSSIA'S BEST BET

MAXIM LITVINOV

Major, world-famous caricaturist, who went to world economic conference for Central Press Canadian, makes a striking sketch of Maxim Litvinov, Russian commissar of foreign affairs. Litvinov has achieved the greatest success of anybody at the London conference. He has had England lift its trade embargo, he has obtained a trading arrangement with the United States on cotton (looked on by some as virtual recognition) and he has consummated a treaty of non-aggression with the Baltic state, Poland and the Little Entente, thereby freeing the rear of the Soviets from the fear of attack from the west.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Leonardtown, Md., July 10—(AP)—Calmly, a new kind of casino—a crap log.

The bird did it. Cleared by Clarence Ohm of Washington, speeder who drives in pursuit of fleet but in summer his game is soft crabs.

The gull dashes into the shallow water, seizes the crabs and brings them to shore. He has learned to stay away from the snapping claws of the hard crabs.

Sharon, Pa., July 10 (AP)—The golf game has halted while club-grinders watched a strange contest between a robin and a snake.

Golfers said the snake, a small one, wrapped the struggling bird in its coils but the robin beat free with its wings and attacked the reptile with its claws and beak, then tried to fly away with the prey.

A British air pilot recently observed what appeared to be ruins under the Mediterranean, and diving down found columns and walls of some old seaside town.

BALDWIN PIPES UP—CHURCHILL PIPES DOWN

Here is one of England's most popular statesmen, shown lighting his famous pipe in the usual cloud of smoke after leaving the Friends' meeting in London, where he vigorously defended his India policy—the policy of the "white paper" of the British Conservative party. Mr Baldwin, according to reports, quite satisfactorily squelched opposition on the part of Winston Churchill, and won the plaudits of the congress by so doing.

Two Cars Overturned in Ditch Near Trenton, Saturday

In Neither Case Were Occupants of Cars Injured

Trenton, July 10 (Special) — A car owned by Stewart Evans of Detroit, was overturned in the ditch west of Trenton on Saturday afternoon when he tried to pass a wagon with another car coming in the opposite direction. Evans tried to get back but seeing he could not he took the ditch. He was accompanied by his wife, two year old child and Mrs. Gladys Leroy, all of whom were uninjured.

Evans went with his passengers to the farm house of John Hendricks near by, where Hendricks' dog attached the child inflicting a bad wound on the nose and cheek. Dr. Farley was called to attend the injured child.

Evans reported the accident to the Trenton police.

Went Into Ditch

M. J. Langlois of Fairview Blvd., Toronto, and a car owner with the Consolidated Industries Ltd. on the Dundas road about 7 p.m. on Saturday doing about one hundred dollars' damage to the vehicle.

A motorist from Trenton and one from Oshawa were ahead of Langlois and the car ahead pulled to the left around some bundles of hay which had fallen on the highway. Langlois admitted he was travelling about fifty miles an hour and could not stop, so went into the ditch. The driver was unhurt but the car was bent at the top, fender badly torn and running board damaged on the left hand side. It was brought to Graham's Garage for repairs.

A neighbor of McDonald's, Walter Fox, reported an 8½x2¼ tire, tube and rim had been taken from his garage.

No arrests have been made but the police are working on the case.

Grass Fire Halted

A grass fire that might have caused much damage to farm property was averted on Sunday after considerable work by the farmers near Mr P. A. McAuley's farm on the York Road.

It is believed that children had started a fire in some bush located on the bank of the McAuley farm where it spread to the grass and fences of the Bellyea farm and, latterly to the little place. Two spraying machines were filled with water to combat the blaze. Rail and stump fences were burned across nearly a half mile stretch before the fire was brought under control.

PANTHER WOMAN AND LION MAN IN STORY OF JUNGLE

Excitement runs high in the new film which opens at the Belle today—Tuesday for "King of the Jungle" is the story of a real wild man—a boy brought up from early childhood by a pack of lions. And, although the story deals with the taming of the Lion man, at the hands of a beautiful woman, it glorifies the jungle beasts in their native setting and builds a narrative of primitive power.

The role of the Lion Man is in the hands of a newcomer, Buster Crabbe, swimming champion of International renown, and is played by him remarkably well. The magnificent physique of the young athlete was originally responsible for his selection for the important role following a nation-wide search among both athletes and actors. But he has, following a nation-wide search among both athletes and actors. But he has, in addition to his splendid build, a smile of vast charm, a personality that is likely to make a deep impression on feminine fans, and an allotment of genuine acting ability.

Frances Dee, who is one of the most promising of Hollywood's younger group of embryo stars gives a great deal of charm to the role of Ann Rogers, young school teacher and the only person who can handle the Lion Man when he is captured and brought to America as a circus performer. Nydia Westman, recent recruit from the stage, proves an adroit screen comedienne as Ann's friend and room-mate, and Sidney Toler, Irving Pichel, Dorothy Dunbrelle and Ronnie Cosby score in other prominent roles.

Beginning in the African jungle, where the Lion Man rules supreme among the beasts, the film moves from one exciting climax to another, culminating in a circus fire during which the maddened animals break loose and stalk through a city's streets, leaving behind a trail of injured and ruin.

FIRST STAGE CONFERENCE TO END WITH JULY

Delegates Confident U.S. Will Agree on Currency Stabilization Before Long

Problems, Which Agreement is Unanimous May be Discussed

SILVER PACT?

Premier Bennett Gives View of Present Status of Conference

(By DeWitt Mackenzie, Associated Press Staff Correspondent).

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 11.—(CP Cable)—The Canadian delegation to the World Economic Conference left by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett expects to return home at the end of July. By then it is expected the Conference will have concluded the first stage of its work.

This will resume in the autumn when the United States situation is clarified and there is greater likelihood of concrete results in the monetary field.

In a brief meeting this afternoon the Main Conference Steering Committee confirmed the recommendations of a Special Drafting Committee, which Prime Minister Bennett, served, the effect being that Conference will proceed until about the last week of July with such matters as can be settled by unanimous agreement. Other questions, notably monetary monstrosities, would be left for examination at conference.

Unanimous Consent

Prime Minister Bennett said the decision meant the work would go on smoothly, and other leaders, he stressed the attitude taken by the directing heads of the conference, that it is useless to go on with matters on which no unanimous agreement can be secured at present.

But the Canadians are actively engaged in a study of the whole field with the work of the Main Conference proper. In the Empire gatherings with the United Kingdom and other declarations for further development of Empire trade is coming under review. The problem of currency, currently, has received preliminary examination.

Wheat negotiations in which Canada is playing a leading part with the Danubian nations are reported to be proceeding satisfactorily. The big Four wheat exporting countries headed with Australia, the United States and Argentina—are agreed in principle to wheat production curtailment and there is also gaining cooperation of the four wheat exporters while actively seeking the help of the big importers.

Silver Agreement

An agreement will, it is expected shortly be concluded between the silver-holding and the silver-producing countries, including Canada, for orderly marketing of the white metal. Canada is furthermore actively working for international agreement on the production and marketing of lead and zinc. The additional time on timber has adjourned till October but in the meantime every country concerned is organizing national statistics of production, and trade relations of lead, zinc, timber, and studying the possibility of arranging agreements.

While all these activities are going on around the Conference proper it was decided the Conference proper it was decided the first monetary sub-commission will vote on the discussion of the war indebtedness. The second monetary sub-commission will consider resolutions on silver and on cooperation of the Central Banks, already adopted by a sub-committee.

"Any Subject" Considered

The second monetary subcommission is also authorized to consider "any subject on its agenda which may by general agreement be considered suitable for discussion."

On the Economic Side Committees will proceed with the enlarged programme on the monetary and financial side they will tackle the problem of international position of indebtedness, cooperation between the Central Banks etc. They will also temporarily aside subjects which may be the bone of contention between the gold and non-gold countries. This programme of work is likely to fully occupy the conference till until the contemplated recess at the end of the present month.

Optimistic Hopes

And while the Conference may take time on the larger monetary problems, backed by the power of the United States to consider currency stabilization, there is an optimistic hope that before the Conference finally winds up many months hence it will have achieved marked strides on the entire programme laid out for it. Many delegates expressed confidence the United States would be willing to effect stabilization before many months.

London, July 11.—The Steering Committee of the World Economic Conference today adopted a report providing that the parley will discuss silver and the question of indebtedness and such other subjects as sub-committees agree can be dealt with without discussion.

This course was recommended by the monetary drafting committee and action was taken by adopting this group's report.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett said at the end of the meeting "this agreement will permit smooth progress."

Discussions might well be spread out to include subjects other than those indicated, but points on which there are sharp international differences will be scrupulously avoided, the Canadian Premier said.

Unanimity Required

Agreements to be effective must be unanimous, he added.

The drafting committee indicated in its report which the conference, or bureau, or Executive Committee, adopted that in addition to silver discussion, the conference upon resolutions already approved regarding central banking co-operation and the creation of central banks in countries where they do not now exist.

In quarters close to the drafting committee it was indicated efforts felt there was the possibility that in the near future the American government might take steps to prevent fluctuation of the dollar in foreign exchange such as the cession of further monetary problems.

REVENGE IN KIDNAPPING

Theory Advanced By Friends of John J. O'Connell

Albany, N.Y., July 11 (CP)— Belief that John J. O'Connell, 34, held under threat of death for $500,000 ransom, was kidnapped in an act of revenge against his uncles, Ed. and Dan O'Connell, Democratic leaders, was expressed in sources close to the family today as investigation by the reward went from the kidnappers.

"Because of the enormous ransom demand," one of the family announced said, "and because the kidnappers failing to keep their promise to communicate with us yesterday, we now suspect revenge and not the desire for ransom prompted the crime."

Young O'Connell was spirited away under mysterious circumstances about one a.m. Friday morning. A series of threatening messages and notes were received Friday and Saturday by his politically powerful uncles. Then, in accordance with the kidnapping spread throughout New York State, the messages abruptly ceased.

SHOOTING IS ALLEGED IN MURRAY TWP.

Claude Waddell, Wounded in Arm From Slug of Gun

IN HOSPITAL

A. McCullough, Close Friend of Waddell is Questioned

Allegedly firing a shotgun point blank at Claude Waddell, a farmer residing in Murray Township, Andrew McCullough, a neighbor of Waddell's and a friend of long standing, shot Waddell through the arm about 10.30 o'clock Monday night inflicting a severe wound in the muscles of the arm. The bullet or slug entered the fleshy part of the arm above the elbow joint, and without breaking the bone. Waddell's arm was bandaged by a neighbor and Waddell was brought to the Belleville General Hospital where he is now confined and after receiving medical attention. The arm was bleeding badly and the flesh around the wound was badly scratched.

The firing of the shot followed an allegedly drunken brawl which is said to have taken place at the home of Waddell on the second concession of Murray township, just north of the Provincial Provincial Constable McBrien of Brighton, investigated the shooting and later investigated the shooting and interviewed Waddell on Tuesday in the hospital.

Trial Friendly

Waddell admitted to the police that he had been fast friends with McCullough but on returning home he met him on his way home from Trenton early Monday evening. He said McCullough, Fred Scott and Orlith Terry, all neighbors, the four met had consumed wine. An argument ensued after a time between McCullough and Waddell, the other two men leaving the house. Later, Waddell stated, he left the house and as he passed the kitchen window he perceived that McCullough had a shotgun in his hands, which he is alleged to have pointed at Waddell and fired through the window at him.

Apparently the bullet wound did not affect the use of the arm at the time as Waddell picked up a shotgun in the kitchen window and attacked McCullough, knocking him down with the butt of Waddell from the house, he said, and made his way to the home of a neighbor where another neighbor, administered first aid to the injured man before he went to the hospital. Dr. G. S. Stobie attended the injured man.

Provincial Constable questioned McCullough in regard to the occurrence after individual statements had been laid up to a late hour Tuesday afternoon.

HOPPERS WING WAY OVER WEYBURN DISTRICT

Pests in Flight Look Like a Snow-Storm

Weyburn, Sask., July 11 (CP) — Countless millions of grasshoppers winged their way over Weyburn from the southeast for several hours today.

Hordes of the pests landed in Weyburn and surrounding district. Most of them appeared to have small red parasites attached to them under their wings.

While the flight was thickest the sky presented the illusory spectacle of a snowstorm, with big flakes being driven by a strong wind.

Twelve years ago a similar flight of hoppers took place over the Weyburn area.

NO REACTION TO HAT ORDER

Top Hats Worn Only on Rare Occasions in Belleville Now

Have you a silk hat!—if so you may still wear it if you wish despite the fact that owing to the will of Mussolini the high silk hat will not be worn by Fascist officials in Italy in future as he considers that it gives to much authority the appearance of arrogance and therefore has no place specialized effect upon the ordinary citizen of the country.

Some years ago many citizens of Belleville wore silk hats especially on Sunday and the custom to and from the churches was quite impressive—now one is seen occasionally, the custom has seemingly tend dignity to the office which they perform by wearing a silk hat and one and then when some personage visits the city a few silk hats may be seen, but their style is seldom that of recent vintage. Many ladies in Belleville no doubt, have hidden away in some dark corner a silk hat which the householder even proudly at one time or it may be an heirloom from a grandfather or a great-great grandfather which was worn by him, perhaps when on a recent visit to church, council or lodge processions or acted as marshal of the parade. The twelfth of July is quite always to light some ancient silk hats and many Belleville old gentlemen slaled today that they had had requests for the loan of their silk hat as a celebration of the Twelfth of July tomorrow.

The stores in Belleville do not stock silk hats, if required for a fashionable wedding they are ordered specially. In one store only was a silk hat found today and it was a very small size. The merchant is hoping that, it will not be too far out of style when it is next required by some bridegroom-to-be with a small head.

There is no by-law prohibiting Belleville officials wearing silk hats but His Worship himself does not wear one to his office at the city hall every morning. He has, however, one which is not too far out of date and he wears it at times upon some important occasions. Ex-Mayor Panler says that he has a silk hat which he wore at the time the present King and Queen visited Belleville years ago as the Duke and Duchess of York. He has been, worn it for years, but if he desires to do so he will in spite of Mussolini in the matter. Woodley is of the same opinion as Ex-Mayor Panter and if he and the other officials of this city decide to don silk toppers they will do so when and where they will as there is no recognized Mussolini in Belleville.

MAINTENANCE DEPT OF HYDRO ENTERED

$30.00 Taken From Cash Drawer By Persons Unknown

Alleged to have gained entrance by a cellar window robbers stole the sum of $30.00 from the maintenance department of the Hydro Electric building on the west side of Pinnacle St. sometime during Monday night. Early Tuesday morning the local police were informed of the robbery and after investigation by Detective Harman it was found, that the cellar window was open. The money was taken from a cash drawer but nothing else of value was reported missing.

The maintenance department is situated on the second floor of the Hydro garage near the corner of Pinnacle St. and Victoria Ave. The money stolen was kept in a cash box from which local bills are paid. How the robbers knew of the whereabouts of the money is still problematic.

KIDNAPPERS SWAT GUARD

O'Connell is Lieutenant in New York National Guard

New York, July 11. — The black hand of kidnapper has dared finally to slap the face of one of America's armed forces.

When kidnappers unatched Edward J. O'Connell, 25, they took as prisoner not only a kinsman of the politically powerful O'Connell brothers, but also a lieutenant of the New York national guard. The idea that they might be stepping on the toes of the military may not have occurred to them. His commission as a lieutenant in the national guard, however, holds possibilities of striking a blow to the very heart of the branch of crime.

Spokesmen for the United States army in New York and Washington said today that merely because Lieutenant O'Connell's commission as a national guard officer there was scant likelihood the army would take official notice of the Albany abduction. One officer, however, amplified his comment this way:

"Guard Not Regular Army.

"The national guard is distinct from the regular army, and originally their activities are unrelated. The only way the United States army could be employed in a war to wipe out kidnappers would be by order of the President of the United States, as commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces."

The national guard itself appeared today as most likely to strike back at the kidnappers. No official O.K. the guard would be quoted, but several said serious consideration was being given to the idea that the son of Governor Lehman of New York to call out the guard to help rescue young O'Connell kidnappers.

Gunmen Sought.

Albany, N.Y., July 11 (AP) — Breaking a three-day silence, the family of kidnaped Edward J. O'Connell, 24-year-old nephew of the upstate Democratic leaders, Dan and Ed O'Connell, today sent Dan O'Connell a note and telephone the second list of men who might serve as go-betweens for them and the kidnapers.

While the O'Connells maintained their silence today, it was kept after their nephew was kidnapped early Friday morning, it was learned that kidnapers received their demands for $250,000 ransom and said the original send to the newspapers was inserted in a newspaper advertisement Sunday at the kidnapers' request.

In response to the kidnappers' demands, the O'Connells today caused to be published in Albany newspapers a new coded advertisement.

Exiled Maharajah is on Visit to Ancient London

Exile Declines Statement Upon Arrival on British Soil—Travelled in Railway Coach From Which All Leather Had Been Removed

London, July 11 (CP)—The Maharajah of Alwar, exiled on instructions of Lord Willingdon, Viceroy of India, for two years from his native state arrived in London today. On his last visit to London he headed a delegation of Indian princes to the Indian round-table conference.

The dispute between the Maharajah and the Viceroy, former Governor-General of Canada, and the exile which resulted has aroused intense interest here where it was related Alwar led all the states in recruiting at the beginning of the war. The Maharajah maintains two regiments of infantry and one garrison force, both of which served in the war. He is a colonel in the British army and is entitled to a 17-gun salute.

The exile arose from the agrarian unrest in Alwar state. British troops were sent to restore peace but there were allegations that they were used in the unrest continued. The conditions of peace laid down by the Viceroy were opposed by the Maharajah who said he was not willing to carry them out.

Consequently the viceroy ordered the Maharajah's exile and appointed F. V. Wylie of the Indian Civil Service as Prime Minister to conduct the administration of Alwar during the Maharajah's enforced absence.

The Maharajah declined to make any statement when he arrived at Dover with his retinue of 16, where he was greeted by the Lord Mayor and the Mayoress. He travelled up to London in a big private car from which all leather had been removed, his religion forbidding any contact with leather.

John J. O'Connell Jr. Kidnapped from Car and Held for 250,000 Ransom

Held Captive For Three Days According to Report

LIFE IN DANGER

Father Prominent in New York Politics as Democrat

(By Max Harrelson, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Albany, N.Y., July 11—Kidnapers today held 24 year old John J. O'Connell, Jr., nephew of Edward J. O'Connell, powerful New York State Democratic leader, for a $250,000 ransom, believed to be the largest sum ever asked by abductors in the country.

With the state political machinery of the state at their command, the O'Connells were powerless to aid the fear the kidnapers would carry out their threats to kill young O'Connell. Meanwhile, the abductors had not been heard from since late Saturday when they issued the first communicaties he named.

O'Connell, a college athlete, disappeared early Friday morning but his kidnapping was not made public until last night. Members of the family still have not commented on his disappearance.

Police did not become aware of the abduction until the newspapers which had withheld publication of the story, spread the news. Immediately after the story was published, Senator Copeland (D. N.Y.) made a plea to Attorney General Cummings to spread the news. Immediately after the story was published, Senator Copeland made a plea to Attorney General Cummings for Federal aid in apprehending the kidnapers.

Although no action had been taken today, it was understood state military authorities were considering the possibility of asking Governor Lehman to call on the New York National guard to aid in the search for O'Connell, who is a lieutenant in the organization.

Son of Congressman

John J. Junior, is the only son of John J., one of the three brothers who dominate the Democratic organization of Albany and Albany county and the only nephew of Daniel P. and Ed. Members of the family have remained constantly within reach of a telephone since the kidnapping, hoping to hear from young O'Connell.

Meanwhile, the eleven intermediaries named in the demands, a code notice, published in the Sunday Knickerbocker Press, were to send from different places of business and had not been heard from since their names were made known.

A telephone call to Samuel Arnowitz, telephone operator at Edward J., received on Friday was the first intimation that young O'Connell was held for ransom.

"Tell Eddie that we've got his nephew and that he will hear from us," a muffled voice advised Arnowitz. "He'll be tells the caller and "he'll kill him."

A letter was received during the day, advising the family to designate intermediaries through a code message in the newspaper, the notice was inserted. Another telephone call and a second letter followed. The kidnapped was received by the O'Connells Saturday, the last word from the kidnappers. The contents of the letter were not revealed.

Police Chief David Simon, directing the police inquiry said he was acting almost entirely on the basis of newspaper reports.

Cannot Locate Family

"We have been singularly unable to locate any members of the family," he said. "We have started to cover the usual places here young O'Connell could be found, but we have found that he has not been seen by friends in several days.

There were two versions of the abduction. One was that O'Connell was forced into an automobile as he stepped from his own car in front of his home on Putnam St., a quiet thoroughfare. The other theory was that he was leaving a beer garden in South Pearl Street with a young woman companion when two men slunk pistols in his ribs and forced him to enter an automobile.

O'Connell weighs 213 pounds and is a excellent athlete. Around college he was commissioned in the New York National Guards as a lieutenant shortly after he was graduated from Manlius School.

The O'Connells are reputed to be moderately wealthy, but friends said they were not more than $250,000.

It was said, however, they would have available a more reasonable ransom if the kidnapers would agree.

TROUSSEAU IS SCATTERED ON THE HIGHWAY

LONDON, Ont., July 11.—(CP)—Just what was would a truck driver do with several pairs of girls' slippers, as many pairs of silk stockings and other feminine apparel? That's what Constable Matthews of the local police department is trying to figure out today.

Matthew's sister was married. On the way to the wedding cake of the ceremony, fell from the car in which she was riding. So far as is known, but persons in the next car saw a truck driver pick the articles from the street and make away with it. A search had been offered for its return.

Auditors Find $6000 More of Tickets Missing

BRANTFORD, Ont., July 11.—Brantford's "car ticket" investigation continued today, with a staff of auditors trying to find out what happened to car tickets valued at around $6,000. Originally, the probe was instituted when it was discovered $18,000 worth of tickets had been "rung up," but the total was increased yesterday when Fred Ellis, head of the accounting firm which conducting a preliminary audit had reported $6,000 worth of tickets were missing.

Possibility Hilliard Foster of Toronto, formerly manager of the Municipal Railway here, would be called to the stand, and Harold William Brader, former employee of the railway, charged with conspiracy to defraud the city, were mentioned in indications "something was amiss" with the tickets as early as May 1, 1932, and had told some of the commissioners about it as that time.

MATTERN LOST FOR 16 DAYS IN THE NORTH

Flier Experienced Extreme Hardship in Siberian Waste

WENT TO RIVER

Subsisted on Small Game Shot With Gift Rifle

Moscow, July 11—A dramatic story of how Airman Jimmie Mattern was lost for 16 days in the wilds of Northern Russia before being rescued was related early today in a special dispatch in the newspaper Izvestia from its correspondent in Khabarovsk.

The despatch gave the first comprehensive details of the mishap to Mattern, who took off June 14 from Khabarovsk in an attempt to fly to Nome, Alaska, on another stage of his solo round the world flight.

Fourteen hours after leaving Khabarovsk, the Izvestia despatch said, Mattern noticed that his motor was beginning to falter and he decided it would be better to land. Finding no suitable place in the wild, mountainous country he crossed on, apparently hoping the trouble would right itself, only to meet with a virtual complete failure of the engine. He necessitated his coming down in an extremely unfavorable hilly spot about three miles from the Lena River, a tributary River, on which the village of Ana-dyr is situated.

In landing his plane was virtually destroyed. The propeller was bent, the landing gear smashed and the fuselage and the motor damaged.

Mattern, however, was safe and brave although not of a serious nature.

Right Days' Trek to River

The place of landing was one of the most forbidding country but few inhabitants, but apparently hopeful that he could find his way on foot out to walk to the river equipped with only a small supply of chocolate and biscuits.

In his laborious trek, Mattern reached the Lena River on the left bank, his scanty food supply having given out and the plane was wandering. What he did for food the remainder of the time was not explained in the despatch except, but it was felt here that he subsisted on fish. He reached Khabarovsk to good use, avoiding starvation by shooting small game.

Reaching the river he saw two small boats going downstream but his attempts to attract them with frantic signals from the shore and waving him by the dispatch said.

On the ninth day he sowed a short distance downstream he saw that the river was in a narrower, but the days passed without sign of habitation. He suffered intensely from cold and wind, he improvised a tent from his flying suit in which he remained six more days, the Khabarovsk correspondent reported.

Rescued

On the night of June 29, two more boats passed down the river. They were manned by native fishermen who this time saw his signal and took him to their camp where he was fed, given a bath, despatch said, and there they gave him food and he slept. Shortly afterward he was taken to the coast a short distance away, where natives boarded a steamer and started to his assistance.

Mattern's plan which had been on the lookout for the missing aviator from the coast, received the instructions from Moscow, took Mattern immediately to Anadyr village where everything was done to make him comfortable.

After Mattern had slept and eaten sufficiently, the despatch related, he requested the frontier guards to go to his plane, remove the engine and all the instruments, he having decided to abandon the ship.

HEART OF THE U. S. MAY SOFTEN TO RUSSIA

Soviet Has Been Extremely Kind to Jimmie Mattern

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(CP)—Some people here think Jimmie Mattern's hard luck may speed the softening of America's attitude toward recognition of Soviet Russia.

Since the Texas flyer cracked up in Siberia, the Soviet has been extremely kind to him, and the American citizen is appreciated by his government.

Mattern, it is reported, probably flying high in the opinion of the Anadyr region initiated by the U.S.S.R. and he may fly from Anadyr to Nome in a Soviet plane.

ACREAGE WILL BE CUT THOUGH CROPS POOR

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP)—Henry Wallace, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, said today that he will proceed with his program for cutting American farm acreage, despite up-to-day's forecast of the smallest harvest of grain in many years, decades—the result of the worst general crop damage in 50 years.

The crop reporting board said ravaging damage from excessive heat, drought and grasshoppers in the Northwest has reduced the yield of wheat and more than 100,000,000 bushels below normal demand needs; that the four poorest in 23 years, and that the output of oats would be the lightest since 1897.

His estimates, regarded as gloomier than private reports of recent days, indicated a total production of corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye and flaxseed of 3,783,304,000 bushels. This would be 1,100,000,000 bushels below last year's harvest of these grains, 1,105,500,000 bushels below the average output for the five year period, 1928 to 1932, inclusive.

Poorest Crop in Memory

Many large areas in the middle west have the poorest crop outlook in the memory of their oldest farmers. Hot winds, which set a new record eliminated on thousands of farms the opportunity to harvest little or no grain to sell, will have no opportunity to harvest little or no recent general advance of farm prices.

Under reading the report, Wallace said that in his opinion the crop outlook indicated a smaller harvest rather than less for his program for reducing the farm surplus.

"The exceedingly short grain crop this year, will make it easier to maintain the surplus carryover from last year, can easily cause both farmers and the public to lose sight of the fact that we are still producing too much for the market can be consumed in this country and abroad," the Secretary of Agriculture said. "Of course, we will make no statement as to the effect of the crop on the Ham and Pig Plan, if any, until the conclusion of the Economic Conference at London) and until I have had opportunity to confer with the group of agricultural experts."

George N. Peek, the chief administrator, called attention to the fact that the carryover of wheat estimated at about 360,000,000 bushels on July 1, was more than 100,000,000 bushels below the average of the past five years.

The crop of all varieties of wheat was estimated at 485,881,000 bushels compared with 570,000,000 bushels last year and an average of 861,000,000 bushels during the five-year period.

GASOLINE SUPPLY POSTPONES TAKEOFF

Leading Machine Fails to Rise From Water

Reykjavik, Iceland, July 11—(AP)—Despairing of the gasoline supply for Cartwright, Labrador, the next stop on their flight from New York to Chicago, was postponed today probably because of difficulties with the gasoline supply.

The airmen under the command of General Italo Balbo, returned here from Vatnagarder Bay after having been ordered last night to be ready for the take-off.

Early today a heavy fog made the attempt impossible.

Lieut. Balbo made an unsuccessful attempt to lift his plane from the bay, and then returned to the landing buoy.

ACREAGE WILL BE CUT THOUGH CROPS POOR

Childhood Sweethearts Marry in Charming Sussex Town

(By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 11—(CP Cable)—In the little village church at Glynde, Sussex, a friendship that started in childhood culminated today in the marriage of Anne Bingham to the seventh Earl of Warwick, Charles Guy Greville, a young lieutenant in the Grenadier Guards.

The bride is the grand-daughter of General Sir Cecil Bingham. Her mother was the former Lady Rosabelle Brand. She wore a simple gown of white satin, made in princess style, with a long train of the same material. She was attended by seven bridesmaids wearing white picture frocks, with wide sashes of red velvet to tone with their bouquets of red garden roses.

The groom, Master of historic Warwick Castle in Warwickshire, is 22 years of age.

Residents of the charming Little Sussex village prepared a scheme of decoration emphasizing the bridal game. White roses and tall pillars of rambling roses adorned the Little Church, which holds only 100 persons, and the churchyard gate was covered with roses. Five hundred guests were invited, there unable to watch the ceremony waiting for the reception which followed.

A novel present was a floating mattress such as those for use in emergencies at sea, from Lady Angela St. Clair Erskine.

An absentee member of the family was the 94-year-old Dowager Countess of Roudon, great-grandmother of both the bride and groom, who regretted she would be unable to "see my dear great-grandchildren married." Sybil, Lady Eden, 80 years of age, was among the guests however.

Semi-Invalid Banker is Seized in Home, Resting Before Retiring for Night

Clever Ruse Adopted in Order to Enter Banker's Home

NO TRACE OF CAR

Woman Assists Two Men in The Kidnapping

Lisbon, Ont., July 11 (AP)—August Loer, 71, semi-invalid banker, seized in his home as he was changing into slippers before retiring, is the latest victim of midsummer kidnappers.

Loer, who combines banking with meat packing interests, and is a prominent Lutheran layman, was abducted last night by a crowd of young women and men. The first word or his whereabouts has been received since his disappearance in the abductors' motor car.

Relatives, professing no knowledge of the identity of the kidnappers, today anxiously awaited receipt of a ransom demand.

For the captive's life, even if money payment is arranged. He has been in partial health since suffering frequent heart attacks. A recurrence of one of these spells of sickness he habitually uses might easily prove fatal.

An ever-spreading search by police failed to find any trace of the automobile in which Loer and his captors disappeared. The large machine was described as a sedan and a quarter northwest of Alton where it was traced by a neighbor who witnessed the abduction.

Fifteen months ago the banker received a letter threatening his life if $6,000 was not forthcoming. He made no response to the letter but hired a body guard. Later the guard was discharged.

Entrance by Window

Entrance by the kidnappers into the Loer home was obtained by a ruse. The young woman and a companion presented themselves at the door and inquired for Mrs. Loer, according to neighbors. The banker's wife explained he lived nearby and invited them inside when they advised if they might use the telephone. Immediately upon entering the woman stepped to the phone and severed the wire. Her companion hurried to the front door where Loer was listening to the radio and seized the banker by the shoulders.

His wife screamed and a third, burly, middle-aged man appeared, dragged Mrs. Loer to another room, and flung her to the floor. Her bound struck the corner of a mantelpiece, inflicting a gash. Bleeding from the wound she rushed back into the hall to see the abductors dragging her husband into a motor car which had been parked in the drive.

Screaming "Carl, they're stolen Papa," Mrs. Loer ran towards the street in search of help as the lives serves the thoroughfare. Both Carl Loer and his wife heard the commotion and reached the front door in time to see the abductors' machine pull away. They said it carried an Illinois license.

BOAT WOULD HELP IN THE RESCUE WORK

New York, July 11 (AP)— John Connelly of the United States volunteer life saving corps has received a gold medal awarded by the East River. One was a 16-year-old girl, the other a grandmother rescuer. Connelly held them both up until a coast guard boat came along.

"I get tired sometimes," said Connelly to the judges, most of the number of his rescues after they passed 30 while I was at sea. About a $50 one would be swell."

RECOGNIZED AS HERO

MOOSE JAW, Sask., July 11 (CP)—Nine-year-old Elwood Armes was recognized throughout this district today for rescuing from drowning this 13-month-old sister Elizabeth, boy playing about his father's barnyard, when he heard the child cry and ran at speed to the scene and found the little girl had fallen into a big water tank. He lifted her out and stayed for the shock the child showed no effects from her narrow escape.

DRIVERS' MENTALITY

Non-collision accidents which cost lives, were no fewer than 78 in Ontario last year. Almost all of these were caused by driving off the roadway and striking a fixed object.

A statement of the Ontario Motor Vehicles Branch enumerates numbers of reasons why cars may leave the roadway.

There are many reasons why a car may leave the road. Defective tires or steering apparatus; a defect in the road surface; fatigue; excessive speed, inattention, distraction, and other forms of faulty operation; any of these may put a vehicle into the ditch, but in the great majority of cases the driver will be found at fault. In the first instance, good tires or properly inspected and adjusted steering mechanism seldom fail. If a driver operates a motor vehicle which is defective, he can surely blame no one but himself if a sudden stress or strain caused by excessive speed or sudden application of brakes, causes his vehicle to fail him, so that he loses control and drives off the roadway.

High speed is a frequent cause of these accidents; speed which hurls the vehicle from the roadway on curves; speed which leads to uncontrolled skidding when an emergency stop is required; speed which, coupled with a second's inattention, carries a vehicle to disaster.

One year hears motorists boast of the speed they made on a certain trip — how they travelled 100 miles in less than two hours—how they managed to elude the traffic officer. It is a curious mentality which leads to such boasting. Certainly one doesn't boast of breaking the law; how pleased the law, nor murderers praising their ability to take lives without getting caught. Why, then, should motorists boast of attempts to flout a provision of the law enacted for the safety of the public? Why should they think it 'smart' to endanger their own lives and the lives of other motorists? Why do citizens listen and smile when drivers boast of their excesses which may have jeopardized the lives of little children?

Of the 502 persons killed in motor vehicle accidents during 1932 in Ontario, 100 were drivers. They were not old inexperienced drivers—their average age was 38 years. They were not inexperienced drivers—their average driving experience was 7 years. It would appear, then, that neither age nor years behind the wheel is the explanation.

The driving records of these drivers, on the whole, were worse than that of the average operator. Some of them had the reputation in their communities of being fast or loose drivers. They no doubt felt a certain amount of satisfaction in the superior skill—in their ability to avoid mishaps in spite of their speed. It dawned on them that if an unsafe act or practice is repeated a sufficient number of times, regardless of the experience of the driver or the condition of the road or weather or of any other circumstance, eventually and inevitably an accident will result. It is impossible to predict when the accident will occur. A mishap may result from the first unsafe act or the hundredth. A safe driver will think of the possible consequences to himself and others before he acts, and will have no narrow escapes that can be attributed to his own behaviour.

The coroner's verdicts begin to show how safely they drive rather than how fast they drive, the sooner a reduction in the waste of life and property will be brought about.

MUSSOLINI'S ADVICE

Some hints which are virtual commands which Mussolini has given the heads of regional organizations in Italy, might with profit be listened to by people of other countries, particularly those with regard to the prohibition as to the use of expensive motorcars or motorcycles when transportation is necessary and also in respect to walking wherever possible.

They are told not to put on airs and they are to develop their sympathy with the people by frequenting humble quarters of the cities, to get in tune with the working classes morally and physically, to keep regular office hours, and to lend a patient and sympathetic ear to as many as possible of the people who come to see them.

It may be claimed that some of these hints may be used for political purposes to prevent the young Fascists from forgetting their humble origin and to keep alive the spirit of Fascism among the workers and humble. But to be sympathetic with the least prosperous, to keep regular office hours, and to keep in tune with the spirit of the people is no mean advice to be given the people.

The top-hat is to be absent at formal ceremonies. It is, of course, taken as a sign of the individual's falling from the simple life when he wears a "topper."

Mussolini's experience has taught him the value of simpler things.

There is a foolish corner even in the brain of the sage.—Aristotle.

Foppery is the egotism of clothes. — Victor Hugo.

NOT AS A WATCHER

Not as a watcher, idly looking on
At some vast play, for which the stage is earth
Am I content; my joy can not be drawn
From tasks my fellows do, nor from their mirth,
But I must have my own allotted part,
However weak and few my lines may be,
And I must spend the riches of my heart
Before time steals my hour away from me.

In poignant pain, in toil, in ecstasy
Let me my tides of life pour proudly out;
The gifts I make, let them be full and free,
Not marred by one reluctance or one doubt;
Not as a watcher, coldly drawn aside,
Who, having feared life, lost it ere he died!

CONSIDER THE PROSPECTOR. He puts his shoepacks on his feet and his pack on his back, lights his pipe and plunges into the bush. He fights with black flies, mosquitoes and all the vexations of a bush trail—goes to sleep under trees wrapped in his blankets, wakens in the dew or the rain, makes his fire, and enjoys his bannocks and bacon.

Then he puts his fire out carefully and starts out with his prospector's pick in his hand to chip off any rock encountered and examine any promising looking outcrop. He finds a likely looking formation and stakes a claim or two. Goes on about his business until grub runs out, then he returns to the city and if money runs out he sets busy finding someone to grubstake him. This is not difficulty for an experienced prospector. Some individuals generally make a big chance, give him grub and supplies and take half, a third, or a tenth interest in any claims he may stake. It's a good game and, depending on one's luck or good, healthy, red-blooded youth, a life in the open, with the pot of gold rainbow beckoning just ahead. It's not a safe and sane game but good prospectors never grow old, and you will find on the trail that leads to fortune or an eternal sleep under the trees young men who have been prospecting half a century or more. Your own boss, lots of room to move and sleep and eat. Variety on the menu for the rifle can bring down a buck deer or a moose, with partridge on the side and an occasional bear, if brutin gets too inquisitive around the camp, and a steady diet of sugar and bacon and such things. Then the fishing—but why go on writing this sort of thing. It's a life of hard work, dirt, with the blue sky and trees and fine waterfalls miles and miles away—but hold the line, we'll be seeing you, in the sweet bye and bye.

FULL OF YEARS, HONOR AND ODDITY. The editor and printing staff of the Daglonega, Georgia, Nugget, passed away June 13 in his print shop, where for forty years he published the Nugget weekly all by his only self. It was 78 years old and his paper was a mirror of himself for he believed that anything that happened to him was Grade A and would never wrote any copy but put his thoughts into type without bothering to write it. Proof-reading was also a waste of time so he put the type in the paper and let the readers read proof, consequently there were many errors which only added piquancy to an odd newspaper published by a very odd fellow. He was married and had five children, but although on excellent terms with his family, preferred to live alone in a shack adjoining the print shop. He slept from sundown to 2.30 a.m., his feet hanging over the footboard of the bed. Even his weather reports were original. Here's one of them: "When retiring last night it was still warm enough for us to pull off our breeches as is our custom on warm nights." The last line of type he set, read: "The editor is sick."

LEUKEMIA IS VERY CURIOUS TYPE DISEASE

Red Cells and White Cells Contrasted by Expert

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D. Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright 1933, by Health and Psychology).

As you probably already know, our body contains not only red cells—"corpuscles" they are technically called—but white cells as well. Normally the ratio between the red cells and the white is as between four hundred and one.

In a curious disease known as Leukemia, however, the proportion of red cells to white may be as ten to one, and there have been cases recorded in which the white corpuscles actually outnumber the red ones.

A polite millimeter of normal blood contains approximately five million red corpuscles and six thousand white cells. In circulating blood the red cells are seen to be bunched in the middle of the stream while the white ones seem to be the outside; in other words according to the walls of the blood vessels.

White blood corpuscles differ from red corpuscles, possess a peculiar kind of ability in relation to motion. In fact they are the only ones "amoeboid movement."

The red blood corpuscles are the oxygen carriers. The white corpuscles assist in the process of digestion, conserve energy in hemorrage; besides, they protect the body against the bad germs which enter and then absorbing them.

Not only is there increase of white blood cells in leukemia, the bone marrow and spleen of course as well. These two blood factories are highly important in the formation of new red cells.

Leukemia is a slowly progressive and insidious disorder. Often times a man himself may be unsuspecting of its presence for months. Such a person may even look healthy although emaciation is likely to occur sooner or later.

Dropsy may be the first sign which attracts attention. In such cases the abdomen gradually increases in size and shortness of breath is noted. Repeated bleeding from the nose may be an early symptom of repeated attacks of indigestion.

The earlier the diagnosis of leukemia is made the better. Although leukemia is a rare form of disease it is a disease varies markedly in different individuals and in different cases, lasting for months at a stretch, should always be looked for. The best way to discover the presence of this disease is, of course, by making a microscopic examination of the blood and doing what doctors call "blood count."

As complete rest as possible is highly important in the management of leukemia. The reason for this is clear since the red cells which are present in the blood to carry the needed and vitalizing oxygen. Special diet, nutritious and rich, to maintain the strength of the patient, is essential.

X-ray and radium treatments, in skilled hands, are of definite value of good results in addition to the general regime outlined.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

For building strong teeth and bones, calcium is necessary. Children especially should eat some food each day which contains this valuable mineral. Foods which are rich in calcium are milk and grains with the outer coats remaining. Other foods that are highly important in this connection are buttermilk, cauliflower, celery, spinach, cheese, string beans and cabbage.

Little Benny's Note Book

This afternoon our cook Nora was making some of the little round cakes like she makes, smelling grate, and I went and looked in the kitchen door trying to think of a swell compliment to make her feel generous with. Finally I says you certeny are a neet cooker, you keep everything so shiny and you order dropp anything on the floor or anything.

I'm intirely too neet, that's just what's trouble with me, that's just what made me a slave and a best of berden scrubbing and rubbing and polishing and dusting and from morning till nite while other girls go along about their work like butterflies not caring how things are or who says anything so long as the work is done one way or another, that's the happy way to be intirely like Mary Lane me toiling and slaving like an eggnoyed. She is always everybody's spick and span, so go away with your lawk of neetness and get some funny face out of me kitchin door, Nora said.

Not sounding like such a good start, and after a while I said Well anyways, Nora, you dont need to worry about anything else as long as you keep looking like Lovey Darling.

What you leerking about now, what blarney is this? Nora said, and I said, It's no blarney, it's the truth, all you half to do is go and see Lovey Darling in Harris and Clubs, and if you don't think you look just like her why then you're blind. Lovey Darling washers if your hair was cut short and cerly the here I mean, only couldn't tell the difference between bevvy looking than her, I said.

Well all I do is fool tak I never heard the best of that, it's blind Nora, and then she slla out of your mind, Nora said. Here, take this in your silly mouth and shut and leave me alle, she said.

And she gave me a cake just out of the oven smelling better than perfume, Proving people would go to their graves unthankful for what they haven't got than on what they have.

MAPLE LEAFS WITHIN TWO GAMES OF TOP

Down Jersey City to Score Their Seventh Straight Win

ONE HIT GAME

Blake of Redwings Holds Bears to Single And Wins 6-1

(By Orlo Robertson, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Pitching is playing no small part in Rochester Redwings' successful efforts to keep in the thick of the fight for the International League pennant.

In the team's last eight games, five of which the Wings won, the pitcher Manager George Toporcer sent to the firing line was still on the mound at the end of the game. Fred "Sheriff" Blake pitched and won two complete games. Tony Kaufman and Jim Lindsey went the route in one each and won while Fritz Ostermueller dropped two and Al Thagman, one.

Blake turned in one of the best mound performances of the season yesterday as he held the league leading Newark Bears to one hit, a single, while his team-mates were getting to Marvin Duke and Manager Al Mamaux for six hits and a 6-1 victory.

Toronto Maple Leafs moved to within two games of the Bears as they won their seventh straight game with a 5-1 victory over Jersey City. With young Jimmy McCloskey pitching brilliant ball, the Skeeters moved into the eighth inning holding a 1-0 lead as the result of a five-run attack of Izzy Goldstein.

McCloskey weakened, however, and the Leafs connected their bombardment off Joe Cascarella until they had scored five runs. Pinch hitter Ervin Brame's single with the bases loaded drove in the tally.

In the only other league game Albany's Senators slammed Buffalo pitching for 13 hits and won a 9-3 decision in a battle that lasted nearly three hours. The game was close for seven innings with Albany holding a 5-4 lead but the Senators scored nine runs in the last two frames to turn the contest into a rout.

WHEN BABE RUTH passes from the baseball scene as an active player or the days of the dangers will be with him—or so it appears. And this, despite the fact that several players in each league are grinding out as many home runs as ever.

More significant is the trend in major league style of play than the current flurry of fence busting. That is the determination of several clubs now just in the standings, to build up their lineups with fast men rather than clouters.

Also significant is the fact that the leading hitter of the New York Yankees, one of the most accomplished slugging clubs, is not a slugger at all, but a ball-of-fire smacker of short hits. He is Ben Chapman.

Throughout this season Chapman has forced the Yankees home run twins Ruth and Lou Gehrig, to eat his dust in the fight for the American league championship.

THE BOSTON RED SOX, accordingly to observers who have been following that team closely this season, are the Cleveland Manager Eddie Collins is seeking fast men and not sluggers in the building of a pennant contender.

The Sox have sluggers in Dale Alexander, Smead Jolley and Johnny Hodapp, but among the newer Boston acquisitions are speed prospects.

Dusty Cooke and Bill Werber, recently acquired, are fast men. Cooke is a streak on the way to first and a base stealer with a great deal of promise.

If speed is to be the new deal in baseball the Sox are getting in on the ground floor.

THE CHIEF lament of those Clevelanders who blame the huge size of their municipal stadium for the fall of the Indians is that the Tribe is—or was—a team of sluggers and not speed artists.

The long drives which whistle off the war clubs of Earl Averill and Joe Vosmik of the Clevelands turn into long flies in the vast area which is the Cleveland stadium outfield. Had the Indians been place hitters and fast their recent home stand, some critics aver, would not have been so disastrous to their pennant hopes.

If this is true we may expect to see the Cleveland club join the Red Sox in the hunt for speedy talent.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Judging from the amounts collected when the hat was passed at the last two girls' softball games at the New Toronto Park diamond the death knell has been sounded on the playing of future games on that diamond. Last week Harold Lloyd's Maple Leafs took in exactly 45c, while three days later the Belleville Football Club enriched their treasury some 70c and a few shekels.

:-:-:

Taking into consideration it costs a team manager in the vicinity of $2.50, that merely covers a new ball and the initial cost of two umpires. No club can exist on collections such as have been received at Victoria Park.

:-:-:

On the other hand the league officials have taken the situation well in hand and are endeavoring to have the game returned to the Armourites town. It may take a few days to clinch the deal but in the meantime the clubs can either carry on at the park or try the new diamond over on the old Coleman Plots.

:-:-:

"Skinny" Eager's pond racers will hold another race in their series on Wednesday afternoon. Some startling races are slated—ing more spectators every week and not only give the fans plenty of sport but the audience can either bask in the sun on the shore or sit on the cool shade of a tree and enjoy the real boy breezes.

:-:-:

On July 15th the Quinte Stables, owned and operated by the Orr brothers of this city, will ship a few horses over Mc-Kinney, Jr., and Catherine Gibbs to Napanee to compete in the harness races that are being staged in the Limestone City in conjunction with the Orange celebration down there. Mr. McKinney, Jr., will start in the 2.14 class, while the Gratton mare is slated for the 2.23 class. Both these horses have turned the mile at a rather fast clip previously this season and are about ready to step in fast and show a fair measure of some good horses in Eastern Ontario circuit.

:-:-:

On Wednesday Jack Derry's league leading Kingston Ponies come to Belleville for their final 1933 appearance. The Nationals have yet to come down in front of the Ponies this year despite the fact that on two previous occasions the game seemed literally in the bag until the youthful Nationals blew up. Incidentally it would not surprise us to see Manager Mills give a couple of the local juniors a chance to show their wares with the Nationals in future games this season.

:-:-:

Just who Manager Mills will start on the hilltop against the Ponies is problematic, but on the surface it looks like either Jim Matthews, the O.S.D. left hander, or Vinny Utroski, who is at present the leading pitcher in the C.O.B.L., while either "Chuck" Fournier or "Sammy" Jamieson will assume the pitching duties for the visitors. Wednesday will be the last day on which the fans can see the Ponies in action here in Belleville this season. The Ponies always give the locals a real argument on the diamond and Wednesday's tilt should be no exception.

:-:-:

When the present executive of the Nationals took over the reins of the club last spring it was quite evident that the club had to be re-built from the ground up as the situation now stands we think that some excellent material has been unearthed. Take Roy Smith, Jim Matthews, Ernie Smith and Art Scarlett for example. They are good enough ball players to catch with any man's club. Then the work of Earl 'Sonny' Green behind the bat has been an inspiration and Green will be ready to make things hot for these so called fast men next season. Another shining light has been the work of "Chuck" Barrage at third. Barrage was always an excellent defensive player but, previous to this season could not hit. Chuck is hitting the ball better these days. Then Utroski, Weir and Chambers are good for at least five more successful years but at least one more up-and-coming young infielder is needed.

:-:-:

With four junior baseball clubs being operated in this immediate vicinity surely there are at least two young infielders who will be ready to try under ball next season. What has been suggested by some of late is the carrying of at least one junior player, and using him, each game for the remainder of the season. By so doing the younger players have some initiative to continue playing baseball. Stars do not rise overnight neither here or in the big leagues. Give the youngsters a chance, if they peave wanting it by some one. That's our motto, especially when a club is re-constructing. All the youthful Nationals need is a little moral support and they'll put the old Bay of Quinte district back on the baseball map inside of two seasons. So step your hammer and get a horn; give the kids a break and they'll not let you down in the long run.

LEADING HITTER IS EARL GREEN

Smacking Horeshide at .340 Clip With R. Smith Close Behind

Gradually increasing his hitting as the season progresses Earl (Sonny) Green graduated into the coveted .300 class recently and today leads the Belleville National hitters in the 1933 edition of the Central Ontario League with an average of .340; he has participated in every league game played by the Nationals and recently overtook Roy Smith, who for the first half of the season led the Belleville hitters. Smith is hitting at a .339 clip, just one point behind Green.

The averages thus far show the Nationals to have six men in the .300 class, including pitcher Ernie Smith, who has participated in only four games. The others are Mills, Matthews and Utronki.

The individual averages for the season of date are:

	O	AB	R	H	PC
Green, ...	15	50	12	17	.340
R. Smith	15	56	9	19	.339
Mills, ...	14	45	9	15	.333
E. Smith, ...	4	6	2	2	.333
Utronki	15	53	6	17	.320
Matthews	9	22	2	7	.318
Scarlett	15	51	10	13	.254
Weir	15	57	11	14	.245
Barrage	10	28	3	6	.214
Kerr	8	20	5	6	.206
Chambers	15	50	10	10	.200
Morton	8	15	1	3	.200
Holmes	8	16	2	3	.125
Jamieson	4	10	3	1	.100
Creiney	2	7	0	0	.000
Seeney	1	0	0	0	.000

The above figures give a total of 493 times at bat, with 131 hits making the batting average .265. They have scored 70 runs in the 15 games, which includes the tie game played with Peterboro here some three weeks ago.

BUCK WALTERS, one of two players brought from Seattle by the Boston Red Sox, has played ball for Boston before. However, it was as an infielder for the Braves that Buck saw Bean Town duty.

YANKEES GAIN FULL GAME ON THE SENATORS

Score Nine Runs in One Frame at Detroit to Down Tigers

13TH VICTORY

Lefty Grove Still Bowls Them Over in The American

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Maybe New York Yankees aren't the same formidable baseball machine that overpowered all opposition last year but it still does not do to count them out until the last man has been retired.

Bucky Harris and his Detroit Tigers were ready to testify to that today for the Tigers had the Yankees well beaten yesterday, were sailing along with a 5-1 lead, when the world champions clubbed over nine runs in the eighth inning and earned a 10-6 decision that enabled them to cut Washington's American League lead to three games. The Senators dropped a 3-2 decision to Cleveland in 12 innings.

For seven innings the Yankees bowed tamely to Carl Fischer, getting only one run and three hits. But his own wildness and poor support from his mates was Fischer's undoing in the big eighth when the Yanks sent 11 men to the plate.

Two walks and Tony Lazzeri's single filled the bases with none out and then the Tigers' defense collapsed. Three errors by Billy Rogell and Charley Gehringer, Gerald Walker and Ervin Fox mussed signals on a fly and Hank Greenberg picked up a roller and then stood there holding it while Yankees romped around the bases, and sandwiched in with these mixups was a timely single by Babe Ruth, which drove Fischer from the mound and Lazzeri scored with two on.

Triple Beats Senators

Earl Averill's triple with Willie Kamm on base, gave Cleveland a triumph over the high-flying Senators. For 11 innings it was a brilliant pitching duel between Mike Harder and Walter Stewart, but the latter went out on a home run hit and Bill McAfee was touched for the winning run with none out in the 11th.

Lefty Grove hung up his 13th victory of the season as Philadelphia Athletics nosed out Chicago White Sox 3-2, in 11 innings in the first game of a double-header, but the pale hose came back to take the second game 7-1, behind Bill Dietrich's three-hit pitching. Ed. Coleman's homer with one out in the 10th, decided the opener.

St. Louis Browns scored eight runs in the second inning and coasted to a 9-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The only National League game of the day saw the Chicago Cubs trim Philadelphia Phillies, 3-2, and moved into third place ahead of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Red Lucas's stronk's single with the bases filled in the ninth decided this battle, a fine hurling duel between Larry French and Ed. Holley.

THE BIG SIX

No change took place in the membership of the International League standings yesterday as the two of the players, Boone and T. Thompson got into action and both boosted the mark five points to .378 with three hits in four tries but is still four behind the leader, Solters.

MEDAL ROUND TO B. REITH

Two Rounds in 149 Puts Winnipeg Kid in First Flight

(By Charles Edwards, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Shaughnessy Heights Club, Vancouver, July 11 (CP)—Bobby Reith, the kid with the flawless swing who conquered amateurs and professionals alike in his Manitoba stronghold at the age of 17, marched over the hilly highways of Shaughnessy Heights today on his second attempt to wrest the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship from the east.

This time the 18 year old stripling from Winnipeg, with the qualifying medal in his pocket and a grand string of successes to bring him confidence, is one of the most feared players in the group of 32 that set out this morning in a series of 36-hole eliminations.

MEN'S SENIOR SOFT BALL

Coming from behind to stage a last innings rally the Delaney Bear Cats kept up their present clip pace in the local Men's Senior Softball loop, when they downed the Grills' Garage nine by the score of 9 to 8 on the Ford Grills' diamond on the old Coleman Plots. The game was largely attended by the fans from the Ford Grills' garage and played in record time, while down at the Cricket Field the College Hill Cubs hopped back into the league running by downing the McNabb nine by the score of 8 to 6.

The game on the Plots, however, proved the most interesting as both teams had their batting eyes and the hits eventually developed into a pitchers battle between B. Carter and E. Clarke, with the former's team mates giving him air-tight support, while he was hurling a game, that went down in city league history. It was a timely single by the official opening of the new city league diamond that gave the Bear Cats the margin from the attendance and the enthusiasm shown that the diamond will be a centre of attraction for softball fans for the remainder of the season.

F. Tuttle led the Bearcat hitters with two singles and a double to his credit, while H. Bawden collected a pair. Batchelor Matthews was the only "Mechanic" to hit safely more than once for the losers, he helped himself to a triple and a double during the melee.

The lineups:

Delaneys—St.	R	H	E
Denis, Caulin, C. Bawden, F. Tuttle, Jenkinson, Ridley, Hanna and Carter.	9	11	2
Grills' Garage—Barrigar, Ross, Hood, Rogers, Batchelor Matthews, Clarke, Thompson and Halsey.	8	9	4

Score by innings:

	R	H	E
Delaneys	041 003 9—10	11	2
Grills	300 050 0—8	9	4

Umpires—Miles and Strachan.

In the other game, Fred the College Hill Cubs experienced little difficulty in trimming the McNabbites nine by the score of 8 to 4. The losers were cast at fault throughout having to draw players from the sidelines to round out a nine.

The lineups:

College Hill—Lapenette,	R	H	E
Gray, Murray, Miller, A. Morgan, Simpson, Robinson and McDonald.	8	10	2
McNabbs—Murphy, Morgan, Corbett, Donaghy, Gough, Berrigan, Stringer, Gilmour and Argent.	4	7	3

Score by innings:

	R	H	E
College Hill	201 040 0—8	10	2
McNabbs	010 201 0—4	7	3

Batteries—Miller and Murphy for the Cubs and hurled his usual steady game keeping the McNabb hitters from bunching their hits.

BOB M'NAMARA, New York umpire, football and baseball star, is said to have turned down a $300 a week offer and a possible chance to become a New York fan-ee, to play ball for a semi-pro team here.

GOLF FACTS

NOT THEORIES!

By

Alex J. Morrison

ALEX MORRISON says:

It's so easy to form bad habits in what you do on the links. Habits that are in many cases a direct violation of the rules though the player may not know it.

One of them is the habit of taking a practice swing right over the ball. The player will take his stance as though to play the shot and then make a swing perhaps an inch or two above the ball.

This actually amounts to practicing a faulty swing and one the player wouldn't want to make at the ball. Of course, he does it in an attempt to loosen up, but it results in tightening the muscles of his arms and shoulders at least.

The best thing to do is to stand well away from your ball and swing it the proper level, but not in the direction of the hole.

Fashion Flashes

A neat notion is the tailored nightie of rayon crepe. It is all one, hand tailored, is in white satin with splashes of coral and a monogram also in coral. It can be had with a matching jacket, which is slipped over the nightie like a pocket.

Made in uniform means that we shall all soon be wearing nice little frocks of black satin, as the ideal costume for all day in town. A typical model has a cropped coat with short sleeves and diamond buttons and belt buckle.

In the shade of the wide brimmed hat the faces taken on some alluring shadows. A lovely hat for daylight, chiming with a black picture frame, shows with black lace appliqued on brim and crown. Black ribbon ties under the chin and poses under the brim complete a lovely model.

What to do when it is a dull cool-ish day in town. Well, the right clothes will help and so here is a delightful frock done in red, black and white plaids; silk broadcloth. It has large buttons on the small bodice and a big bow under the chin.

Coiffures Cut Long Enough For Bobbing Have Bangs Right Down Over Eyes

Coiffures Take on Fanciful Notions

When the world's working concerns of hairdressers re-elected the short bob it was playing good beauty politics. Short locks have wonderful possibilities for beautiful arrangements. What is being tried with the exceede all previous efforts to make charming and becoming the serious crown of woman.

We're not saying that pigtails will never come back that would be silly. But by popular acclaim, pigtail advocates have been silenced. Hair's no good unless you can do something with it to make yourself prettier. And what can be done with rat-tail and bob-tails except to wad them into bunches from which string shreds are always trying to escape? Off with 'em.

It is possible to announce that this or that design is the correct mode. All of which goes for the several happiness of the sisterhood, since endless beautiful arrangements permit the personal touch which, after all, means so much—doesn't make us paper doll copies—every gal is a hairdress designer on her own.

According to the pattern in which hair must be cut. This is no chance job; it should be gone by one who knows something about feminine heads, where to thin, where to permit fullness to flourish.

A new note in coiffures is attained by cutting the side locks in odd tiers, curling each tier edge upward. Very soft-looking and lovely outsidely only for the fresh little debby.

Head catchers along the hairline make for individuality. There may be a single curl, filling in space where filling is needed. Or a cluster of fire peeking out from beneath the first up-going wave line on the right side of the left side part—the first upturn of the thick side when the hair is parted.

Prim circles in front of either ear are passed, but we caution the full faced darling against them; they are the privilege of the girl with the oval contour.

As for back hair, there's no limit to new twists in the way of undulations and ringlets.

What's going with rear locks depends strictly upon the shape of the nose. Do not forget that, pretty one. Though curls are supposed to be flat, their location must necessarily change the head silhouette somewhat.

A smart coiffure shows short curls back of one ear, hair combed smoothly across the back of the head, up and down sausage puffs behind the other ear. Excellent for the head that has considerable bulge at the rear.

With all these new coiffures either naturally curly locks or permanently waved hair is necessary. The old curling iron has gone into the garret returned, but it's a swell friend in the not-so-good old days.

It is worn with a sheer black jacket.

Just a trifle of velvet adds smart contrast to silk or chiffon. A lovely navy frock of the silky taffeta is black, gray and white with velvet buttons in front and a large black velvet bow.

The flag waves bravely and so we are all for costumes that favor red, white and blue. A white chiffon frock for informal evenings is polka dotted in red and is worn with a blue velvet jacket, the jacket having revers of the white polka dotted chiffon. The frock has ruffles at the hem and neckline.

Advice to the Lovelorn

(Beatrice Fairfax Letters)
(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What would you do if you were placed as I am? I have been keeping steady company for a year and a half with a young man for whom I care a great deal. He professes to love me, but will not commit himself in any way; yet we have come to a partial understanding.

Two years ago I was in a sanitarium and was discharged as apparently cured, but this uncertainty has caused me to worry and has, in a sense, brought back some of my former trouble.

Should I let this man go for my health's sake, as I want to go away for a while to rest and build up my strength again, and be able to do and enjoy myself as formerly, or how is it possible for me to find out if he cares enough to marry me?

Worried.

You're very sensible, my dear, to go away, and not let the uncertainties of this affair seriously affect your health. To tell you not to worry over this state of affairs is asking all too much of human nature. It's a nerve-racking complication, and you're very wise to leave it for a while. Meantime, this young man should let you know his plans. You're certainly entitled to know. And here are my best wishes that things come out the way you want.

A SISTER' PROBLEM

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My mother is dead and I am taking care of my young sister of fourteen. She wants me to come home every night of the week. In your opinion, how often should a girl that age go out, and at what time should she be home?

Worried Sister.

By going out, I take it you mean having dates with boys, and she's entirely too young for that if she belongs to the class known as "good girls."

A girl of fourteen shouldn't go out at all unless she's going to a party or to spend an evening with friends known to her parents.

You have quite a problem on your hands, my dear, and I hope you have some friend or relative near at hand who will be able to help you.

HIS FASCINATING RIVAL

Dear Miss Fairfax:

It seemed to be a case of love at first sight when we met at the party. She couldn't have been playing me" as I very seldom look her way place or even much on the floor. One night when I called I found another man there, and we all drove home in my car. She asked to park while she did a little dancing—and from all she loved this other fellow. I didn't let her see how deeply I was hit.

A couple of days later she wrote me a special delivery, saying she didn't realize how much I meant to her and she was only playing with the other man. She said she was fighting its influence because the other chap was in a position and she wanted me to help her as a friend. And can see she is very strongly attracted to this amateur Casanova.

Would you advise me to take a chance and hope she'll get over her bewilderment for this man, or am I a fool for continuing with her in spite of the present situation? What made her write and want me back, after saying it was all a mistake?

Sorrowful John.

Someone has said it we only know why anyone of anything it would be one of the world's most valuable cleverness. Maybe is the answer to most of our unaccountable actions. After the young lady confessed she cared for the other man, very probably she had an opportunity of discussing him with you to your advantage, but I'd wait until her feelings have a little more settled before taking the situation too seriously.

Suppose you make yourself a little scarce for a while and see if her fascination for the amateur Casanova doesn't wake. It's so often a flash in the pan with that type.

MONOTONY CAUSE OF NERVES

(By Helen Follett)

Beware of a monotonous existence. Going through the daily duties, with no intervals for play or relaxation, will bring along evidence. Like this girl, you'll suffer in time. It is very noble to live for one's family, but it is quite the worst sense to live a bit for oneself. The family isn't an keen appreciative when nerves are ragged and she's close to a state of collapse. Ditch the household duties, go out with the girls, jig into the beauty shop, get a hair cut. The housekeeping job is bound to prove tiresome now and then, don't fall a victim to it. And get your beautifying hair rinse every night even though the hubby has a tantrum and the old man growls.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Announcement by Walkers Drives Price to Record High—Active Trading in all Industrial Stocks—Hollinger Only Issue of Senior Gold Group Active in Session—Wayside Pushed to Higher Ground—Grains Furlein Spotlight in Financial Markets.

WALL STREET

New York, July 11 (AP)—Grains again portioned the spotlight from financials today, with the latter serving most stocks, and bonds to flutter aimlessly in the shadows of uncertainty.

Little attention was paid to the usually dominant dollar factor. The British pound dropped about six cents under its yesterday's close and leading gold exchanges were fractionary. Rye soared about 10 cents a bushel at Chicago, and wheat and corn jumped one to three cents a bushel. Bar silver firmed and copper was steady. Bonds were heldless.

Gains of one to three or more points were recorded by National Distillers, United States Industrial Alcohol, American Commercial Alcohol, Owens-Illinois, Celanese, Tobacco Stock and Tube, United States Steel Preferred, Vanadium, Republic Steel and American Rolling Mills.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 11 (CP)—Distillery shares provided the industrial market on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, Walker's common leading with a rise of almost a point to 67¼, while price was shadey only slightly at the close. Distillers Seagrams advanced to 30 before easing back to 29¾ for a net gain of 3¼. Canadian Industrial Alcohol closed with a net gain of 3¼ and Distillers Corporation Seagrams up 35 cents, closing at 2.25.

The rest of the market was irregular, interlisted stocks being under restrains from New York influence. Brazilian dropped 1-4 to 18¾, Nickel 35 to 30.60, while Ford and C.P.R. were steady.

TORONTO MINES

TORONTO, July 11.—(CP)—The Toronto Mining Market was busy only in spots today and the price structure held about evenly with narrow gains and losses scattered over the board. Base Metal shares were slightly weak in the early session but firmed in the afternoon while Silvers were strong all day and the golds irregular.

Dome, Pioneer and Teck Hughes were steady and Hollinger, Lake Shore and Wright Hargreaves up a little and McIntyre off 50 cents. Wayside featured the copper list and advanced as much as 14 cents to 56 under heavy buying. Sisco fell back to 1.37 and Granada at 1.20 was off 2.

Nickel made a low of 330 in the forenoon but closed at 30.35, off 25 cents.—Noranda also scored a partial recovery to 32.25, down 25 cents.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, July 11 (AP)—Specialties worked higher today in the market instead of merely buying in "wet" shares. Rails also firmed in the late trading after having lagged earlier. LINDSAY'S GOOD-WILL TOUR

Fifteen thousand miles will be covered this summer by the Lindsay Community Service Club's trailer, shown above. The tour is sponsored by the Lindsay Kiwanis Rotary Clubs, and 130 towns in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes will be visited.

"Goodwill," was the subject of an address by Art Allin, member of Lindsay Kiwanis Club, who is conducting a goodwill tour sponsored by Lindsay Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs and the Chamber of Commerce in the trailer given to the Belleville Kiwanis Club today at the Quinte Hotel. There was a large number of the members present and Lieutenant-Governor Bell remarks of the speaker. Jack McIntosh as president presided and after the toast to the members responded the car in which the party are travelling.

"This is a medium of service by which we intend to foster good relations between the Maritimes and this Province and while on our trip we will try to induce the Maritimes to sell us all we do not grow nor manufacture and also try to induce the Maritimes to deal with us," said Mr. Allin. "We will tell what we are doing and try to work out a more harmonious feeling between the two sections of the Dominion. We are also distributing tourist publicity and hope that our efforts will have the desired effect and have more inter travel between the two sections.

Tonight there will be a street dance at the City Hall square, where an address will be given by Mr. Allin and after which the broadcaster will be used for the dance music. Everybody will be welcomed as no charge will be made.

IMPROVEMENT IN BRAZILIAN

Toronto, July 11 (CP)— General business improvement was reflected in "moderate improvement" shown in business of the Brazilian Traction, Light and Power Company, President Miller Lash, K.C., told the annual meeting here today.

C. D. MacDef of Toronto was elected to the directorate to fill the vacancy created through the death of Hon. Justice F. H. Phippen.

Other directors were re-elected without change. Discussing company operations for 1932 the President said results made unfavorable comparison with 1932 due largely to the exchange situation. "Moderate improvement" however, during the first three months of 1933 indicated general improvement in Brazil, he said.

Young Man Brought Down With Bullet in Leg as Man Runa Amok

Parry Sound, Ont., July 11 (CP)—Arrested after Roy Riddell, 24, had been brought down with a bullet in his leg, James Kotelish, who police say apparently ran amok at Lost Channel, was arraigned in the police court today on a charge of intent to murder and was remanded for eight days.

Riddell was shot as he ran with a crowd of other men for shelter as McLeish, according to police, walked in front of the general store and started shooting with a rifle. He was brought here and handed over to the provincial police after several men had overpowered him in a fierce struggle.

The youth was not seriously wounded, police said, but more men asked for a remand to await result of his injury.

"DISTURBANCE" OVER REVIVAL MEETING

Fifteen Year Old Girl Brings Father to Court

London, Ont., July 11 (CP)— Large crowd which filled the court room here today to hear evidence in the trial of Jacob Beerens, who faces charges of disturbing the peace, preferred against him by his 15-year-old daughter Rose, went away disappointed today as the case was not held as scheduled.

The charge is a child of the religious fervor in which has been waged in the village of Parkhill by the past two weeks in connection with Rev. Alfred Field's evangelist meetings.

Race Barnes wanted to attend the meetings, held in a canvas church by the former London janitor. She claimed his objection became so strenuous and she left home.

The 15-year-old girl went to the police and told them her trouble. They informed her they could not take action but she could, according to the sworn out a warrant charging her father with disturbing the peace.

INDUCTION AT COE HILL

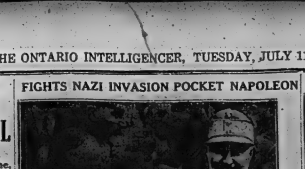
Rev. Stanley L. Osborne, B.A., B.D., is New Minister

Rev. Stanley L. Osborne, B.A., B.D., graduate of Emmanuel College, Toronto '32, was inducted on the 7th. of July as minister of Coe Hill Pastoral charge.

Mr. James Wood, stated supply at St. Ola, conducted the worship service and carried out the adage that it was better to fill a gap than make one. He told of Dr. Dale of Carr Lane, Birmingham, who on a preaching tour, dropped the remark that while he believed his people loved him they never said so. This got into the papers and when Dr. Dale got home he found that a great reception was prepared, while over the entrance was a banner with the legend "We love you and will tell you so."

Rev. T. Smith of Montcalm, addressed the people from I. Thess. V., 12-13. He commended the officials at Coe Hill upon their regular payment of the minister's salary. Yet he knew of cases where the minister was not provided for with any proper regard. When a man came to church once in six months and then put a nickle on the plate there was a lack of regard. If a man was carrying a burden of debt and had his own spirit chilled by things that very often his congregation bore nothing in mind, it was hard in that case to put much life and spirit into a congregation. He said if your minister fails to give you the kind of food you need don't talk about it to your neighbors—invite your minister in—and over a cup of tea tell him what the need of your soul is. Above all support your minister in prayer.

Rev. J. M. Fraser gave the charge to the minister, speaking from Eph. 6: 20, "I am an ambassador." As all roads lead to London, so every verse of God's point to Christ. The prison house was a strange place for an ambassador, but from that place even they of Caesar's household heard the Gospel. It was written of the late Prince Albert of London:



"He held the lamp of truth that ray by ray
So low that once might miss the way,
And yet so high that all might see
That picture fair—the world's true light to be."

Therefore, at all times and all places as a representative of Heavenly pleaded with men.

Having answered the questions of Presbytery Order, Rev. Stanley Osborne was duly inducted and received by the right hand of fellowship. He was escorted to the manse. He expressed gratitude for the happy inaugural and hope for years of faithful service and co-operation. The benediction pronounced by the newly inducted minister. He was then introduced to the congregation by Mr. W. N. Gilroy and Mr. Arthur Bonar.

Rev. Mr. Osborne has spent the past year at Paradise Valley, a mission field of the Bible Hills Institute, A.T.C.M. and has had three years' preaching experience mainly programs with young people in Toronto. Fully equipped in scholarship and native ability the people of Coe Hill district look forward to his ministry in North Hastings being richly blessed.

Weeks' New Second

The Wooler Leafs moved into second place when they defeated the R.C.A.A. last evening by 10-5. Pafford pitched a steady game for the airmen except in the third frame, when with two out the Leafs started a batting spree ending with five runs. George Ruttan, in centre field for the Wooler lads, was sensational with his many catches that looked impossible. ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION

BONARLAW—On Friday evening of last week a large number of the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald McKeown gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Mumby, Bonarlaw, parents of the bride, and gave a miscellaneous shower. So large was the gathering that the house was filled and the lawns presented the appearance of a garden party.

An address was read expressing to Mr. and Mrs. McKeown the esteem in which they are held by one and all and wishing them much joy, health and prosperity.

Both Mr. and Mrs. McKeown thanked the guests assembled in a few well chosen words for their good wishes and many useful and beautiful presents showered upon them and invited all to visit them whenever convenient in their new home.

At sang "For they are jolly good fellows" and gave them three hearty cheers. As so many of the guests could not gain admittance to the house to hear the address and replies the bride and groom consented to come out on the verandah where they were again given three cheers and a "tiger" by those on the lawn. The ladies then served a dainty and bountiful lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. McKeown will reside in Springbrook where Mr. McKeown has taken over the garage business recently purchased from Mr. Robt. Scarlett.

Bonarlaw, Ont., July 7th, 1933

TIGER Tilly

By Russ Westover.

Suddenly Joe's mood changed. "I'll make you listen," he said. "I'll give you the sort of argument you can understand."

He grabbed her roughly by the shoulders, his eyes shining.

CHAPTER 13

"Why don't you trust me?" he asked. "Why can't you accept the little things I want to give you and be, at least be my friend?"

Because I'm afraid of you," Jerry said, "I know you are not free to give me your love, or to say the things you say. You're—"

"Yes, I'm not trustworthy. I'm dangerous man. I'm a cad. A playboy—I know all the answers. Your every sense and nerve tells you even though you don't say them with your lips. But, b-b-don't care what your eyes say. I am old enough now not to be afraid of a girl's eyes. And I want you to be a little kind to me, don't you understand?"

"I understand perfectly," Jerry said, looking back unflinchingly into his eyes. "I understand only too thoroughly that I am not liable to be caught. You think if I am human and if I love the children and my mother I will at least weaken."

"I wish you didn't have the children or your mother to care for," he said. "I wish this were only a duel fought right between you and me with no odds on either side. I don't believe in shooting birds or gazelles on the set. It's a bit more sporting to shoot them on the wing."

"What I mean is that I wish this were a little more of a sporting proposition. But it is sporting enough."

"You'll think so," Jerry warned.

"You're a defiant little thing, aren't you?" Joe said coolly. "I will break you between my fingers like the storm cast down the would break a candle I could dismiss you cold. Lord, you are lovely.... I wish you would see yourself standing here looking into my eyes.

"You're the smallest thing I've ever seen in my life and I've known girls all over the world."

"Please let go of my shoulders, Jerry said, "you hurt."

"And what if I do?"

"You haven't any right to hurt me. You have no right to take advantage of my defenseless state to order me out her where you have me in your power, to threaten to dismiss me."

"Do you think I'd work for you a minute?" Jerry said passionately. "If times weren't what they are? Do you think I'd even let you talk to me the way you have if there was any other job in the world I could get?"

"I think you would. Joe said, "because I think you love me. Look at me."

"I haven't the right to love you, Jerry said, choking down the sob that rose in her throat. "I haven't even the right to be here with you like this. You're a married man. You belong to Genevieve. I don't love you, I hate you."

"The storm outside, with increasing violence, shook the cabin. Gull ... with a roar. Waves pounded over the sand and against the superstructure until it was a wonder it was not carried away by their attack. The wind was a wraith of the narrow deck, pinning the spray against their face and hair.

It was a wonder the boat did not ... its beam end.

And Joe, feeling the power in the elemental violence of waves and water, swept Jerry into his arms with all his strength and covered her face with kisses, the first kisses he had ever had with any meaning.

At first she fought and resisted but at last she, a bird caught in a trap, she released in his arms. She felt very tired and small and that in his strength she might safely sink that moment before he would ... again with his unwelcome kisses.

... to be speaking to her. The ... was saying he knew, Jerry knew ... that.

It was the first time Peter Baird ... to her as he has in the old days, full of strong friendship and warm affection, and instinctively gave Jerry a strength she did not know she possessed, a new strength not wholly hers.

She raised her head from Joe's arms and faced him defiantly.

"I thought you were a sportsman," she said scornfully. "I was proud of your manners and honor in any crisis.... And a coward. You are the sort of man who would run a loaded dice."

"How dare I? I been unfair?" Joe asked with exasperating calm. "You know your danger when you came to this island."

"I didn't know my danger," Jerry said. "I thought you and the others would be other guests. I thought it was coming to work instead of this, and I thought you would at least wait for an answer instead of....."

"But I still don't see how I have been unfair.."

"If you aren't being unfair to me by forcing your kisses upon me, I'd like to know if you think you the being fair to Genevieve. She trusts you hopelessly. She has no idea in the world you're the sort of person you are."

"That's it." Joe said. "She doesn't know. And what she doesn't know won't hurt her."

"Besides," Jerry flaunted, "you're crude."

"Now that is a remark I resent," said Joe. "You can call me a thief, say a liar, a robber of orphanages and old folks' homes, but please give me my just due and admit that I am a rather polished old rogue, one with a number of wholly delightful turns to my character."

"You're a braggart and an egotist," Jerry fiamed.

"A braggart. How Jerry, is that kind? I believe in telling stories about interesting people, and it is simply my misfortune to be one of the most interesting people I have ever met. That is all."

"You haven't any shame, or meekness, or respect for anybody or anything. You're a walking insult to every self-respecting girl in the world."

"On the contrary," said Joe, "I'm an ambulating compliment to the entire sex. I'm living proof of their beauty, wisdom and dominance over mere man."

"And worst of all," Jerry wailed, "you won't be serious."

"Serious. Why should I be serious? Only people without a sense of humor are serious, Jerry. They don't know as you and I know that the whole universe is one vast joke and we're the butt of that joke, Jerry.

"Think how the old Olympian gods must be laughing at us now. Think of the celestial humor of the affair. Here we are, we two mortals, caught in a storm large enough to sink the Titanic, and what are we arguing about. We are arguing about whether or not I'm an egotist and whether we should laugh or be serious."

"You are perfectly awful." Jerry said. "You're a perfect, impossible—phebes. I believe you would laugh in the very face of death."

"I have," Joe said simply. For death is even more amusing than life. It is the farcical climax to the whole ridiculous affair."

Jerry had gone over to look out at the storm, which now seemed a little less violent than in the preceding hours. The grandeur of crashing surf by the intermittent moonlight moved her already shaken spirit until she fell on the verge of tears.

"But you must be deeply moved about something, sometimes" Jerry said. "You must be at least that human."

"I am," Joe said coming up beside her and taking her hand very quietly in his. "You more me, Jerry I can laugh at anything. I can find something else in earth or heaven, but I can't laugh at you.

"I love you, Jerry. That is something which doesn't seem amusing to me."

"You haven't any right to love me," she said.

"Love doesn't ask permission," Joe said. "And love knows nothing about legal ceremonies or duty conventions. Love simply comes, and when it comes there is no gainsaying it."

"But ever once have I fallen in love before. You are the first and first love as thought I were a boy of ..."

"What am I to believe?" Jerry asked. "How am I to know the truth of all these things you tell me?"

"That is the tragedy of it," Joe said. "Now, when I am telling you from the very bottom of my heart, you will not believe me. And that distinguish is from the little stories I tell you that are simply lies."

"Listen, Jerry. I have promised you a house and car for the rest of your life if you will only let me give them to you. I'll add some thing to that. I'll settle a trust fund upon you divorce Genevieve ... I'll marry you, Jerry.... I mean it. I am even willing to marry you."

"Divorce that lovely woman? Joe, you're even worse than I thought you were. I wouldn't marry you if you had a million dollars for every one you possessed."

"All right," Joe said. "All right my pretty one. Don't ever say that I didn't offer you the world and the moon and stars before I stole this kiss."

He crushed her roughly against him.

Jerry fought free and pulled away, tripped and fell, and then rushed from the cabin. Outside in the door onto the afterdeck, pulled it open and plunged out into the wind and spray.

If she could only make the safety of her own cabin. But ahead of her lay the wave-swept deck, dark and treacherously slippery under the sheets of foaming water. The spray had wet her to the skin. The wind was modeling her dress against her young and very lovely body.

She fought her way forward clinging to the rail to keep from being tossed into the heaving lake around the yacht. She could hear Joe shouting behind her. He, too, was fighting the waves, and in another moment he would have overtaken her.

She realized now that she could not reach her cabin but must turn into the first door that offered. She found one a step further on. No, it was locked. Again she stumbled on. This time she succeeded and opened and she hurried down the narrow steps of a companionway which seemed to go into the very bottom of hell it was so dark below her.

If she could only find somewhere to hide some-how to look behind her. And then she heard far below a groan that made her flesh creep.

CHAPTER 14

Jerry hesitated for a moment in indecision. Joe evidently had not seen her turn down this companionway and shut the door behind her for now she hear him struggling past her hiding place calling her name.

She wondered whether to risk going back or whether to go on down the stairs to the main room. She turned to look. At last, despite her fear, her curiosity and her sense of duty to the unknown caution.

Groping forward with her hands out on either side she came in contact with an electric button which, when she pressed it, lighted the companionway and a room below.

The room was entered through a heavy steel door with a small grated window at high that Jerry had to stand on tip toe to see through it. What she saw made her wonder as to the advisability of entering. In a far corner, lying inert as a pile of coat-off clothing, was the man Jerry had seen dragged aboard.

She would not turn back now, however.

Turning the heavy key on her side of the door she walked into the little room and across to the prisoner whom she imagined to be bound.

He spoke to him, then touched him with her foot. He did not move and so Jerry leaned nearer to see how he was bound.

She was frightened to see that the bonds of rough cloth were not holding him at all but had been cut through and were merely lying in position.

And then he—for she could recognize the man had sprung to his feet and was facing her, knife in hand. The heavy door had swung shut behind her and she heard with terror the spring lock click.

Now the fear she had felt for Joe seemed as nothing compared to the fear she felt for this unknown man with white sallow complexion and scarred face. He was terrifyingly silent.

"Say something," she screamed. The man said nothing.

"Say something," she whispered, but he did not speak.

The boat was tossing like a tired thing in the deep swells which followed the storm. The water thundered against the hull of the boat which formed one wall of this little prison until Jerry felt the whole scene must be one mad, delirious dream.

Then she heard Joe calling at the head of the companionway and she answered with a cry.

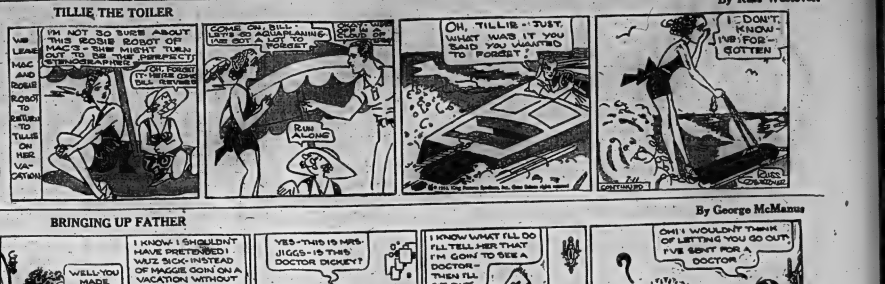
At the same moment the man charged.

"So you're the Tiger's skirt," he said. "Well, he won't have no skirt in another minute."

Jerry had learned to be fast and agile as a fencer during her school days and now she found herself dodging with incredible agility the clumsy rushes of the heavy, angry man.

The knife rang against the steel only three inches from her head, then was imbedded in the wood of the opposite wall as he rushed her again. And in the split second that it took him to dislodge the knife Joe was upon him with a full person under both arms and over the back of the man's neck.

Jerry was cornered and could only watch. The man struggled back, breathing heavily and watching the knife. The knifer had turned a somersault shaking Joe free. They were facing each other. Now Joe was sending sharp right kicks to the man's chin, following with hard blows to the heart.



The knifer was trying to reach his knife, which had been hooked into Jerry's corner. Jerry picked up the knife and threw it through the open door.

The knifer uttered a savage cry and, wading through Joe's hailstorm of blows, tried to reach Jerry. He wanted to break her like a match and then return to Joe.

But Joe was there to protect her. He was lithe as a cat and willowy as a saplng. He laughed fiercely as he fought, calling taunts to the other and snapping the knifer's head back and forth with his continuous blows to his tough chin.

MR. ALLAN REED VISITS OLD HOME

Mr. Allan Reed is renewing native scenes in this city and district after a few days. After his first early years spent here some time of his family life was occupied in Flint and Owasso, Mich.

When twelve years old he went with his parents, William E. Reed and Ada Anderson Reed to Port Stephens, Natal, South Africa, where Mission work and the teaching of natives were carried on. His father, mother, and sister Jean are now in Sigi, Swaziland, S.A., and are due to return to their homeland here before long.

Allan left Natal after three years' residence there, learning some of the 900 odd African languages dialects, and went to Calgary, Alta., for the benefit of his health and further education, among relatives there. His father at one time was a member of the composing room staff of the old Ontario and is well known in this vicinity and Deseronto.

STAMPEDE OF WILD ANIMALS IN CITY SHOWN ON SCREEN

"King or the Jungle," the long-awaited action-thriller featuring the "Lion Man" (Buster Crabbe) opened today (Tuesday) for a two day engagement at the Belle Theatre, and promises to be something entirely new in screen entertainment both for grown ups and children alike. Glimpsed by a terrific stampede of wild animals in the streets of a large city.

Selected for the role of the "Lion Man" after a nation-wide search among athletes and actors, the young swimming champion proves infinitely worthy of the responsibility placed upon him. He is the "Lion Man" to the life, combining charm and personality and real acting ability with his magnificent build. He is distinctly comedian but in addition, succeeds in making a believable human being out of the young man who has been brought up by lions, and who remains always more faithful to his jungle friends than to the human.

Francis Dee, who is one of the most promising of Hollywood's younger group of embryo stars, gives a great deal of charm to the role of Ann Rogers, young school teacher, and the only person who can handle the "Lion Man" when he is captured and brought to America as a circus performer. Hydia Weston, recent recruit from the stage, proves an adroit screen comedienne as Ann's friend and room-mate, and Sidney Toler, Irving Pichel, Douglas Dumbrille and Ronnie Cosby score in other prominent roles.

MINIMUM WAGE, SHORTER HOUR LAW INU.S.?

Blanket Order to Cover Minimum Wage and Limit Hours Roosevelt Plan

Establishment of Codes in Industry Under Way

WORLD TRADE

Expansion of Trade With South America Projected

Washington, July 12 (AP)— President Roosevelt, while pleased with the progress toward establishing industrial codes in the United States, is considering the blanket order to provide minimum wages and limitation of hours until the recovery program gets into effect.

That he is devoting a major part of his attention to work toward these codes, under which industries would voluntarily or be required to set up minimum wage and maximum work hours schedules, became more plain today, but it was emphasized in high quarters he would be guided in his course by the views of Hugh S. Johnson, the industrial administrator, now working on the plan possibly involving a blanket order.

The President, meanwhile, has undertaken other means of helping American business—chief among is getting negotiations with half a dozen countries for new trade relations. South American governments are principally involved.

As to the London Economic Conference, although he had received no official report, the President regards a recess of the conference during August as natural and without significance.

It was said at the White House that in his conversations with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, it was pointed out that the conference was no grouse shooting in August and that on the continent the people like to go to the spas at that time.

Japanese Pest Not Yet Here

Ottawa, July 13 (CP) — The Japanese Beetle pest, according to United States research officials, will eventually spread from coast to coast attacking crops and flowers, but there is no danger to Canada, agricultural officials said today. Whether the Canadian winters would be more protective against the pest is therefore not known.

Close watch is being maintained by the agriculture department at points where United States vegetables and fruits enter Canada—at the ports of Quebec, Yarmouth, N.S., Halifax, Saint John, Toronto and Niagara Falls.

50 CARLOADS BEER READY

"Alfalfa Bill" Still Keeps Mailed Fist in Keg Bung

Oklahoma City, July 12 (AP)— Governor William Murray decided today to let Oklahoma have its beer, but kept under the state's National Guardsmen had prevented overnight unloading of the brew, legalized in a special election yesterday. "Alfalfa Bill" today issued a proclamation announcing sales would not be interfered with.

The proclamation was the signal for fleets of beer trucks to rumble into action, transporting cases of the brew from railroad cars to wholesale and retail dealers.

Applications for beer licenses swarmed the offices of the tax commission.

Oklahoma City, July 12 (AP)— Oklahoma ordered beer and wiped out prohibition at 12:01 o'clock today when Governor William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray let take his mailed fist out of the bung.

While newspaper advertising told of the arrival of beer and trucks for delivery, martial law backed by the National Guard and Governor National Guards prevented unloading of 50 carloads held on the sidings here and elsewhere in the state until the Governor issues a proclamation of yesterday's election results.

"The order is to prevent them from making a joke of the law," he said.

On the basis of returns gathered by the United Press from 2,211 precincts out of 2,213 precincts, Oklahoma voted 197,030 to 110,704 for legalization of 3.2 per cent. beer, becoming the 37th State to legalize the brew.

Attorney General J. Berry King, a solicitor for the Governor, held the beverage became legal when its approval by the voters was assured. However, the Governor was reported to have directed the State Tax Commission to issue no license for sale of beer until his proclamation was issued.

The protest will be sent in a resolution to the Dominion Government officials.

SNAPPING TURTLES KILL OFF THE SWANS

One Has Been Killed "On Suspicion of Murder"

Kitchener, Ont., July 12 (CP)— There is a mysterious warfare being waged in the Victoria Park lake here as large heavily-armored snapping turtles kill young swans and then glide gracefully over the surface of the lake. Two of them are dead and one turtle has been killed "on suspicion" for the quarter.

According to Park Superintendent Kress the turtles attack the young swans as they dive for their necks under the water. The birds are too young as yet to put up an effective fight against the iron jaws of the submarine marauders.

Thomas, was asked in the House of Commons this afternoon whether the British government would seek immediate removal of the annual "dumping duty" imposed by Canada against imports from the United Kingdom.

The minister's reply was the exchange dumping duty had not been levied since early in May.

CENTRAL BANK MOVE BANNED

U. S. Delegates Thrown Into Confusion by Reserve Board

London, July 13 (AP)—The United States, Federal Reserve Board, it was understood in authoritative quarters today, has denied participation by the U.S. delegation at the World Economic Conference in discussion or a resolution calling for Central Bank Co-operation.

This resolution was backed by the European gold bloc and has been referred to Commission No. 1, the committee on permanent monetary problems.

It was stated that Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, told the subcommittee at the Federal Reserve Board felt the resolution was "premature."

U. S. headquarters were in confusion as the result of the Federal Reserve Board's decision, it was said this afternoon to discuss the latest development.

The delegates were authoritatively stated to be sharply divided in opinion regarding the Federal Reserve's move. Some supported the board while others opposed. The conference had been rendered almost useless.

One delegate demanded "What is the use of sending a team into the field and then changing the signals on us."

PARLEY HALLS ARE DESOLATE

Scenes Less Thrilling as Captains Are Departing

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, July 13.—(CP Cable) — Like the sentiment of the past few days the halls of the World Economic Conference were deserted and its arena desolate appearance. A few sub-committees were meeting in private but remaining delegates were wondering how much further the scope would be restricted by unwillingness of the United States government to permit their delegates to talk Central Bank co-operation.

But the capitals are departing. Finance Minister Georges Bonnet, of France, was to talk with another part in the gold discussions, has left for Paris. Many of the other delegates have either left or are preparing to leave. Prime Minister R. G. Bennett expects to take the Canadian delegation back home at the end of the month, when it is believed the Conference will recess for the summer.

The Crown Prince of Sweden and Princess Louise visited the Conference Building—the big new Geological Museum—this afternoon. They were escorted over the lobbies which a few days ago were alive with excitement. But the excitement was gone. The Royal visitors showed polite curiosity and what seemed an obvious touch of disappointment.

INJURED BY FUSE BLOWOUT

Night Foreman John Donaldson Burned by Electricity

John Donaldson, 302 Charles St., night foreman on the New C.N.R. roundhouse, was severely burned about the face and forearms, following the blowing out of a electric fuse in the roundhouse early this morning. Mr. Donaldson was taken to the Belleville General Hospital, where his injuries were attended to by Dr. J. A. Faulkner.

Apparently a short circuit caused the fuse to blow out while Mr. Donaldson was directly in front of the fuse box. The flash of the electric current struck his face and directly into his face.

Mr. Donaldson was up to protect his face from the flash with the result that both of his forearms were burned as well.

According to Dr. Faulkner Mr. Donaldson is resting comfortably but will be a patient in the institution for some little time.

Facing death calmly, Stawycznyj stated: "I am innocent and prepared to meet my Maker." Jake Handel, prison turnkey, interpreted his words. Father Roy, Father John Holiko, Greek Catholic Priest, spent the hours with the condemned man to the death cell.

Dr. J. A. MacArthur had declared Stawycznyj dead and an inquest held at 8 a.m. (C.S.T.).

Speechly, Manitoba Provincial Coroner, the body was claimed by Mrs. Pauline Kania, 22 year old mother who planned to take it to Gimmenille, Man., for burial.

Vernon, Texas, topped all high temperature readings with 115, the city's 21st consecutive day of 100 degree weather. It was a new high for the season as was the 101 recorded at Sherman, Tex.

NEW CHURCH CONSTITUTION

National Bishop Likely to Be Named in Germany

Berlin, July 13 — (AP)— The troublesome question of autonomy for the newly created United Evangelical Church may be settled this week with the adoption of a new Protestant constitution.

An authoritative report today said the main principle of the agreement is that the new church shall not be a state institution whose jurisdiction ends at Germany's frontiers, but shall embrace all Evangelical bishops abroad.

A close approach is made in it to the understanding had last May when Herman Kapler, then president of the German Church United, and two advisers were empowered to negotiate with the Hitlerites for a settlement of the issue.

A framework for the new unified church is based on the "Bible and Law" it was said, and the office of National Bishop is charged with spiritual authority to regulate church and social affairs with the aid of church councils.

Carrying Place Pullet Displays Laying Strain 3 Days Under 4 Months of Age

Carrying Place, July 13 (Special) —When are hens hens? Or rather when are young chickens pullets? is a question which is puzzling Mr. J. G. Dusenbury of Carrying Place, after bringing two eggs in two days from the nest of a young pullet hatched May 3rd, 1933, in the rear. "The first egg was laid on July 11th, the 69th, and was very small and light; but a second followed in the next day, this time much larger one, in fact, a full-sized egg which would easily pass among any average eggs. How soon do pullets lay? The common idea is that they do not, as chicks, much be at least five and a half or six months old; but this enterprising young fowl, who has laid her first egg three days under the four months mark, has apparently set a local record. The pullet is nearly full size, and is one of a pen of Holly-wood laying-strain white leghorns which Mr. Dusenbury keeps exclusively. Who has or has had a pullet to beat this record?

Halifax, July 12 (CP)—Waiving a cheery good-bye, Col. Charles Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh soared away from Halifax harbor at 12.15 A.D.T. this noon, on a compartmental destination but bound northward.

They had clearance papers for Newfoundland, however, and it was believed they would stop overnight at St. John's before beginning their projected flight across the Labrador section over Labrador and Greenland.

English Honesty

Mr. Chris. G. Holmes, manager of the Capitol Theatre, has within his own experience an instance proving the strict honesty of English theatregoers. The event was related by an editorial reference in the Ontario Intelligencer to an incident in an English cinema house when a refund was made to patrons because the show could not go on because of technical trouble and only the exact amount paid in was asked by the patrons. Mr. Holmes relates the following which occurred under his own eyes:

"In 1928 while manager of the Palace Theatre, St. Annes-on-Sea, a theatre owned by the famous Blackpool Tower Co. Ltd., I was showing "Peter Pan", Barrie's famous juvenile story. Owing to the carelessness of the projectionist, the upper magazine of the projection machine was left open and the film stuck in the gate. It immediately caught fire and two reels of "Peter Pan" were destroyed in addition to the theater being filled with fumes of the Pyrene extinguisher.

"After something of what has happened was explained to the audience, they left the theatre in accompaniment of the orchestra and lined up at the box office for refund.

"Although the admission prices were 5d (10c), 8d. (18c), and shilling (22c), and one shilling and three pence (30c), my cashier reported she had exactly her floating change when the last admission had been refunded. At that time I reported this incident to the trade organ and several instances of the same honesty were reported by yellow managers."

South Hastings Demonstration

Camelton, July 12 (by Staff Reporter)—Everything all the preparations of the lodges in South Hastings for the past week and all the local arrangements for the monster procession shortly after noon today in this village when hundreds of Orangemen, members of the Orange Benevolent Association and of kindred societies paraded in memory of the Battle of the Boyne in 1690, but unfortunately failed to fully early this afternoon and the parade was a grand march from the school grounds north of the village to the south and return.

The village was an effective scene with the variegated colors of the banners, the sashes and badges and ribbons and the prancing horses. Band of fife and drum made the air vibrant with music.

An assembly in the park followed at which prominent members of the order addressed the huge gathering. Dangers of Communism Worshipful Brother W. C. Mikel, K.C., speaking before a gathering of Orangemen in the village of Camelton, said "It is to be regretted that Communism has of late shown that a few misguided Canadians have been found to speak favourably of some of the alleged principles of Communism, the effect of which would be the same as the awful British Government now in force in Canada. This, of course, is contrary to the well known principles of the Orange Order. It would be wise for any such persons to give thought to past experiences of history and be guided to distrupt British Government.

Speaks at Lindsay

"General Israel Putnam one of Washington's best friends had said in the revolution which resulted in the separation of the thirteen colonies from the British Crown of his mistake when it was too late. After the battle of Lexington, May 19th, 1783, General Putnam wrote a letter to Lord Shelburne, England's Loyalist, Col. Beverley Robinson in which he says "Now I begin to more seriously upon the situation of this country, I cannot but bewail my fellow men's blindness to their own. There was a time when I firmly believed that the union with the mother country would be the greatest blessing to this country but my opinion was."

Defends Rebellion 1837-38

"William Lyon Mackenzie after unsuccessful in his rebellion of 1837-38, became an outlaw and went to the United States. He was pardoned on February 1st, 1849, and returned to Canada wrote a letter to Lord Grey, Colonial Secretary of the British Government as follows:

"A course of careful observation during my exile has confirmed in my satisfied me that had the violent movement in which I and many others were engaged in 1837-38 been successful, and the United States in the place of the Niagara proved successful, that annexation would have followed the people of Canada, which I then believed to be one of the great risks. I have long been profoundly sorry for errors committed during that period, in which, however, powerful could inflict, or nature punish myself more than I have. My greatest regret is that I have been the cause of any suffering to others. There is not a living man on the continent who more sincerely desires that British Government in Canada may long continue."

Says Communists and Communists

"These two letters were honest enough to acknowledge their mistakes but unfortunately many of us are too late to correct them. Neither Colonel Putnam nor William Lyon Mackenzie were communists, in fact, their lives show that they were opposed to any such principles. Their cases are cited, however, to show that when attempts are made to disrupt British system of Government in Canada it is easier to condemn than to correct them. Their experiences should be a lesson to those who misguidedly would like to take away the farms and property of others and cause chaos of industrious people and give it to persons who have never been able to achieve anything.

Depression

The depression simply means "the sleep of business". It is said that all men dream of things in the future being the lower animal, trees in the forests, flowers in the fields, all have their periods of sleep. What we call depression is simply the sleep of business. Dreams and nightmares come during sleep. When business conditions awake the depression passes and the bad dreams of the depression and recession are soon forgotten.

Scores in Ontario.

Toronto, July 12 (CP)—Today was a gala day for members of the Loyal Orange Lodge in Ontario.

In every city, town and village where a fife, drum and banner could be mustered blue and orange decorated men and women paraded in celebration of the victory of King William of Orange at the Battle of the Boyne 243 years ago. At points along the border the celebration became an international affair with hundreds of United States visitors joining with Canadian lodges. After parading through downtown districts the lodges marched to parks to listen to numerous speeches.

With the exception of Hon. E. A. Dunlop and Hon. Dr. Kennedy, absent in England, nearly all members of the provincial government addressed gatherings at various points through out the province.

In Toronto some 10,000 members formed into a five mile parade with seventy-two bands and marshalled to the grounds of the Canadian National Exhibition where Premier George S. Henry outlined the progress being made in Ontario schools attended by French-speaking children.

French Children and Schools.

It was just five years since the report of the bilingual commission on the schools was compiled, the Premier said, and he felt the results justified the time and energy put in following out the recommendations.

"I feel confident he said, "that results in the next five years not only in English schools but in French education will be equally beneficial."

He was sure, he said, former Premier G. Howard Ferguson would have been delighted with the effect of the improvements in the schools.

Church vs. Atheism.

At Kingston, Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, urged the order to call on the Christian church to aggressively combat the spread of atheism which, he said, was propagated by many dissatisfied people. He further urged all Christians and members of the order in particular, to help in combatting the spread of what he described as certain branches of Bolshism.

French Language and Radio.

Vigorous protest against the use of the French language on Ontario radio governments was continued in a resolution passed at the Kingston meeting. The motion denounced what it said was "the attempt of a fort to make Canada a bilingual country", and scored promotion of bilingualism by the schools of English-speaking provinces.

Hon. Earl Rowe, Minister, was largely attended and the floral tributes were many and beautiful. The chaplain, Rev. H. Hunter Hills conducting the services at Wellington and Christ Church, Deseronto, and Wellington cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Ernie Rose and his son-in-law, Foster Christie, Frank Robin and Garnet Sollnes.

C. P. R. IN TIE WITH DAIRY

Imperial Softballers Defeat Gardenville by 15-1

Trenton, July 12 (Special) — The C.P.R. softballers went into a tie with the Riverside Dairy softballers for first place in the Trenton Softball League when they defeated Gardenville Imperials 14 to 1 after the Legionaires rounded Sager from the ground in the fourth with three on and none out. Both teams hit hard to make the game one of the best of the season. Not knowing a rule of a missed third strike with men on bases caused the Legion to fall into a double to retire the side. Their next batter scored on a triple, Ken Begin has struck his old hitting stride lately and last evening he had a good time in the fifth with two on. The Legion must best Woolvr rine and the Montrose Dairy team to get in the play-offs. The Legion have lost three games, two by one run and two by two runs. Brant started for the Legionaires, but was replaced by Mosier in the fifth.

Game At Gardenville.

George Lathrop and his Imperial softballers journeyed to Gardenville last evening where they trimmed the Prince Edward boys by the score of 10 to 1. The game was played on the large baseball park and ball used in the Prince Edward League. Bruce Burti and Mike Kennedy were in the box for Gardenville while Art Bonter and Tirrill were pounded for 10 hits. The Imperials had too much experience for the strawberry boys.

Gardenville had a lot of fun anyway and the fair maidens from far and near gathered at the ball park to witness the game.

Herb. Mitchell umpired at the plate and T. Young of Gardenville on the bases.

After the game the teams were invited to Mr. LaBrash's cottage near Gardenville where they enjoyed themselves for an hour or so with a delightful supper. Mr. LaBrash of Toronto who is also camping at the lake.

Manager has promised the boys another game at Gardenville with the hopes they will beat Gardenville Imperials 14 to 1 at the game at Trenton.

Dismissed Banker Shoots General Manager Bank of Montreal in Mexico City

David B. Emeno, 50, Native of Lunenburg, N.S., is Victim

C. H. WHALLEY HELD

"Now We Are Square" Man is Said to Have Told Police

Mexico City, July 12—David Burton Emeno, 50, general manager of the Bank of Montreal in Mexico and native of Lunenburg, N.S., was shot and instantly killed Tuesday night at a bank meeting. C. H. Whalley, a former English employee of the bank, was arrested.

Bank employees said Whalley forced his way into the meeting room and shot Emeno five times. The banker slipped to the floor and was dead when associates reached him.

Whalley, about 33 and prominent in social and sport circles here, walked from the room, eye witnesses said, threw the gun into the patio and gave himself up to other bank employees.

According to information police secured from the eye-witnesses Whalley, a native of London, England, opened the boardroom door during a banking discussion. Pretending to have opened the door by mistake, he partially withdrew from the room, meanwhile drawing his gun. Then he swung the door open again and emptied his gun into Emeno's body.

Returned from Vacation

It was learned Whalley, who left three months ago on a vacation to Canada and England, returned here last night. He lodged at a cheap hotel near the bank and stayed there yesterday.

His fellow employees were surprised when he appeared at the bank long after closing hours. They said of Emeno for political revenge.

as far as they knew, he was still in the employ of the bank at a lesser official when he left on his holiday, but it was learned he had been dismissed since departing.

Emeno, who had been here three years, having come from Montreal where he resided for some time, is survived by a widow and three children.

Officials of the bank told police later that Whalley was in London when he was discharged. They said he threatened at that time to return to Mexico and that Mr. Emeno had sought to prevent him from entering the country.

Interviewed at police headquarters Whalley appeared completely composed.

"Now we are square," he said, "I was left in the street without a job and without money. I am completely satisfied with what I have done."

Five Years in Mexico

David Burton Emeno was born in Lunenburg, N.S. He was appointed superintendent of the Bank of Montreal in Mexico about five years ago and his present appointment was made recently. When appointed to the foreign office he was assistant superintendent at Calgary where he met his second and present wife, a Miss Pennyfather of Regina, whose father was a former commandant of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

RIGHT ARM TORN OFF

Mrs. O. A. Porritt, Formerly of Belleville Seriously Injured

Toronto, July 12—Mrs. Cuwald A. Porritt, aged 50, of 4544 Wilson Avenue, Montreal, is in a critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital as the result of a gruesome accident which took place on the Lake Shore road at Mimico Tuesday afternoon.

The injured woman who, with her husband, was staying at a local tourist resort, had just come out from a restaurant, and is said to have been crossing the highway diagonally, with her back partially turned to an approaching car driven by Mrs. Pessie Robbins, also of Harbord Collegiate, Toronto. Although the driver, according to eye-witnesses, swerved in an effort to avoid hitting Mrs. Porritt, the door handle of the car caught her right arm tearing it off from the shoulder. Dr. H. R. Conn was summoned and had the patient rushed to hospital.

Arrived on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Porritt arrived in Mimico on Monday night and intended proceeding to Hamilton and Niagara Falls last night. She was alone at the time of the accident. Mr. Porritt being in Toronto where he was located some time after. Their son in Montreal was notified by wire, and left Montreal for Toronto last night.

The driver of the car furnished a bond of $500 for her appearance if needed, later, and was allowed to proceed to Rochester by Chief Fred Herman, who investigated.

Mrs. Porritt was in Belleville a couple of days ago visiting friends and relatives. Her husband was formerly engaged in the paper mill on the Cannifton Road.

DOMINATED BY COMMUNISM

Charge Made by Defeated Candidate at Council meeting

London, Ont., July 12 (CP)—Charges that the Ontario executive of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, Labor section, was dominated by members of the Socialist Party of Canada and that Verne Reynolds, Communist Labor Party candidate in the last United States presidential campaign was in London organizing the opposition party today confronting the London and District executive of the C. C. F.

The accusations were made at a stormy meeting of the executive last night and resulted in much acrimonious discussion.

Members of the Socialist party, claimed J. F. Thomson, veteran Labor man and secretary of the London Labor Party, had ruthlessly manoeuvred themselves into positions of power on the Ontario executive of the C. C. F. and were boring from within. Fred Hodgett, secretary of the local Socialist party, denied this.

The attack on Reynolds was launched by Charles Heath.

"He is handing out classes right here in this building and I defy any man to tell me that he is not teaching Communism," declared Mr. Heath. "He is a Communist by name but it's Communism just the same."

Delayed by Bad Weather Engine Trouble, Italian Fleet Hops for Labrador

Leave Iceland at Two A. M. (E.S.T.) on 1500 Mile Journey

LARGE TURNOUT

Fliers Entertained, Although Airmen Pleased to Continue Journey

(By Voltyr Stefansson)

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., July 12—(CP Cable)— The weather is fine and clear at Cartwright, Labrador, where the Chicago-bound air armada is scheduled to alight today after a flight from Iceland.

Similar reports have been received from Baikie Harbour, Deadman Island and other points along the Labrador Coast.

Reykjavik, Iceland, July 12 (AP) —After a week of delays occasioned by bad weather and engine trouble General Italo Balbo's armada of 24 Italian seaplanes left today on a 1,200-mile hop to Cartwright, Labrador, the longest leg of their cruise to Chicago.

The aviators, glad to continue their 6,100-mile journey even though their stay here was brightened by many entertainments, departed at 5 a.m. (3 a.m. E.S.T.)

Townspeople were astir at an early hour in anticipation of the mass taking, and a large throng was thrilled as one after another the flying boats rose from the calm waters of Vainagardur Bay and started out over the North Atlantic.

Ordered to Boats

The airmen had been ordered at 4 a.m. to bolg themselves in readiness and when word was given an hour and 30 minutes later that the start was imminent all took their places, inspected their engines and made final adjustments.

They arrived here from London-derry, Northern Ireland, July 5, five days after leaving the training school lagoon at Orbetello, Italy.

From Cartwright they fly to Shediac, N.B., then to Montreal, before the final hop to the Chicago World Fair.

From the moment of their arrival here, townspeople and officials vied to make their visit a pleasant one.

Hundreds of Icelanders made Greenland, July 12 (AP) — Good weather was predicted today for the flight of 24 Italian seaplanes to Labrador, with a gentle westerly breeze and a low fog bank in prospect, but emergency landing base is ready here for the fliers.

Weather Favorable

While the vanguard of the fleet got away promptly, it was not until nearly a half hour passed that the last triads of the squadron left.

Fourteen of the machines were delayed for brief periods by difficulties in towing them out in the harbor.

The weather was calm at the time the flight started, and was partly cloudy.

One weather report from along the route said prospects were excellent, but another reported the weather was deteriorating.

General Balbo, who was the last to enter a seaplane, was partly hidden by his plane, waved farewell to Reykjavik citizens who gathered to bid him Godspeed.

GUTHRIE UPHOLDS SECTION NINETY EIGHT

Describes Duties and Problems of Minister of Justice ..

Calgary, July 12—(CP)—Section 98 of the Criminal Code was upheld by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, in addressing the Calgary Bar Association. This section of the criminal code, regarding prison terms for those advocating constitution changes by violence and declaring violence had proved useful recently, he declared.

In his brief address last night the Minister of Justice touched upon his duties and problems. He said the law as he found it in practice did not interfere with any law-biding citizen. At the same time, he added, he tended to come in very handy in dealing with certain disturbances arising out of unemployment problems.

O'CONNELL'S RELEASE IS IMMINENT

Uncle Leaves Camp For "Ride in The Country" is Report

CONTACT MADE

Two Telephone Calls And Three Letters Received By Family

ALBANY, N.Y., July 12.—(AP) Rumors that the return of John J. O'Connell, Jr., 34, held by kidnappers for $250,000 ransom, was imminent were intensified this morning when Dan O'Connell, uncle of the young man, left his camp "for a ride into the country."

The uncle's destination was not revealed, nor was it disclosed whether he left the camp in the Helderberg mountains by automobile.

A friend at the camp said that Dan had left, and that he was not expected back "for an hour or so".

An attempt to learn where the uncle had gone brought only the reply, "out into the country, nor where there are any telephones."

Meanwhile a general air of heightened expectancy spread among those into the family. Persistent rumors were that a ransom payment, reportedly six figures" had been in readiness since yesterday.

Contact Established

The Knickerbocker Press said today contact had been established with the kidnappers and that ransom negotiations were in progress. According to the newspaper, Dave Hotaling, mutual friend, was the second list of intermediaries, established the contact.

Until today the only communications with the abductors made public were two telephone calls and three letters. The O'Connells had been receiving their go-between's instructions by inserting advertisements in local newspapers as instructed by the kidnappers.

Young O'Connell was forced into a car by several men about 1.30 a.m. last Friday as he got out of his own car in front of his home. The family did not know he had been kidnapped until the next day, when a telephone call was received at the home of John T. O'Connell, Albany County and City Democratic leader. Warning was given the captive would be killed if the authorities were advised.

LICENSE PLATE FRAMES TO GO

Police Told to Order Removal in Interest of Clear Reading

Alarmed by the increasing tendency of Ontario motorists to dress up their numbered plates with frames or other frames, and thereby make the figures less legible, the markings thereon, J. P. Bickell, minister of motor vehicles, issued a warning to all drivers to have such frames removed at once.

Police officials throughout the province are being requested to enforce the regulation, if not otherwise complied with, and those using the cars are reminded that a penalty is provided in the Highway Traffic Act for operating a motor vehicle with the number plates so covered that the numbers are not plainly visible at all times.

"Some years ago," said Mr. Bickell, "Ontario number plates carried a small dark border line. It was only a narrow line, but it was found that this helped to make the figures clearer and make the plates a little more difficult to read. For this reason, plates issued in recent years have been entirely free from any decoration. The frames at present in use, particularly a black officials of the motor arrangement, are much more confusing than were our narrow borders. For this reason it is necessary to remove the latter, we recently passed legislation the use of the heavy frames."

PARLEY DELAY BUT INCIDENT

(By George Hambleton.)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, July 12 —(CP Cable)— From the vantage ground of an interested spectator Mexico has studied the table between gold and non-gold countries at the World Economic Conference. The battle which ended yesterday in an amicable truce, and likewise has provided the conclusion, which they declare as a very singular conclusion indeed, that everybody is right.

In a diverting neorandum to the World Economic Conference the Mexican delegation today summed up the fight in this way:

First, President Roosevelt was fully justified in refusing to accept to a monetary truce, that is to say transitory stabilization of the dollar, while the Conference was going on.

Secondly, countries with stabilized currencies were equally justified when they oppose immediate consideration by the Conference of monetary problems and all matters relating thereto....If a tariff truce is a necessary condition for consideration of monetary and Trade Problems, then a country engaged in devaluing its currency by encouraging exports and limiting imports is making such a truce fruitless.

The Mexican delegation strongly supports that viewpoint which seems to have become dominant in the last few days, that the World Conference recesses until the autumn of 1934, because it is a promising prospect for achieving agreement on a monetary standard.

"The most singular feature of the case," the memorandum adds, "is not that both sides in the debate are equally right, but that they believe there is a conflict which can bring the conference to an end, or at least mutilate it.

"As a matter of fact we are only facing an incident in the ordinary march of the Conference, which has ups and downs and cannot affect its integrity."

TALK OF FALL ELECTION IS HEARD AGAIN

Increased Activity of All Parties Revives Talk

STUMP PROVINCE

No Declaration However of Premier in The Matter

(By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, July 12 (CP)—Is this Ontario's election year? Is the administration of Premier George S. Henry preparing the machinery for an appeal to the electors? Or is Ontario, busy with its harvests and viewing with delight increased commodity prices and better times going to forget the hustings until the appointing time rolls around next year?

These are the questions which today are occupying political observers in all sections of the province. And briefly, here is the line-up for and against:

Premier George S. Henry: "There is no demand for an election."

Mitchell F. Hepburn, Liberal leader: "Ontario demands an immediate election."

Harry C. Nixon, Progressive leader: "Parliament dissolution is the present parliament and an election."

Agnes Macphail, Provincial Co-operative Commonwealth Federation President: "We need a new deal; a new government."

Increased Activity Seen

Increased activity by all parties has again revived the talk of a fall election, however. Premier Henry himself has taken to the stump, and the lighting of a bonfire at Mitchell recently disclosed he had arranged a further speaking programme.

Mr. Hepburn, and Mr. Nixon, sworn partners in the fight against the government, are speaking practically every week in one section or another. Both stumped the north; west and central portions of the province and Mr. Hepburn has just completed a tour of the eastern section.

Miss Macphail, with her stalwart ally, Captain Elmore Philpott, of Toronto, has also been speaking frequently in various districts and is evidently expecting quick action on the part of the government in calling for a vote.

To observers, echoes of the 18th. Legislature, which corrupted some months ago, indicated there might possibly be an appointment than expected. The Legislature voted to cut down its membership by 22 members. At present there are 112. After the next session or upon dissolution, there will be 90. At the same time too, the voting act was amended considerably and the Election Act was changed to provide the writ for an election may be issued not less than 25 days before the nomination instead of 30 days, and the polling day "shall be the seventh day after nomination and not the 11th. day."

Pot Stirred Again

The political pot was stirred again Monday with the announcement Ira A. Humphries, K.C., had been appointed chief electoral officer for the province. The position had been vacant since the death of Alan Dymond, K.C.

Premier Henry had not definitely declared there will not be a fall election; nor has he said there will be. And as leader of the government—a government with a large majority in the Legislature—he has the final say.

The standing in the Legislature: Conservatives 90; Liberals 15; Progressives 5; Labor 1; United Farmers of Ontario 1. Total 112.

KIDNAPPING

Kidnapping has never quite died out in the United States during the past few years. The latest crime is the disappearance of John J. O'Connell, 24, a member of a prominent Democratic family. Why this form of crime should have such a development in the neighborhood country is rather difficult to see, for Canadians know so little of it.

Large law enforcement may explain this as it does the gangster racket which menaces a number of cities more or less thoroughly.

If the criminal can escape detection it is probably one of the most remunerative forms of crime as the quarry of this type of rascal is the wealthy man's family.

People of the United States are, however, determined that this crime shall be crushed, though from the prevalence of attempts to eclat money it this means it would look as if the authorities will have a busy time getting the facts and finally exterminating the offenders as criminals.

A RELIEF PROBLEM

One of the hardest problems in relief is that of the family which owns its own home but is compelled to have assistance through lack of employment for the workers in the home. Without aid it would mean the ultimate loss of their property, which would be one of the most calamitous of events since the ownership of the homes is one of the bulwarks of independence in civic life.

The class with a mortgage on the homes is partially looked after through the moratorium on the payments.

Should actual owners of homes lose their property it is a calamity for there is always grave doubt whether the man so suffering will ever be able to acquire a place in his own name again which he may call home.

The tax season is again at hand and many taxpayers have been compelled to go to endless sacrifice to make the payments to keep them free from debt or obligation to the city.

The situation is doubtless the same everywhere. Toronto faces much the same condition and it is pointed out that "if the city should undertake to pay the taxes of indigent home owners higher taxes must result for those who are not on relief." The Toronto Telegram suggests "If work of value to the city can be performed by unemployed home owners in exchange for funds with which to meet their tax bills, there will at least be some return to the city for the outlay."

The question is one of the hard ones relief boards have to meet for it is clear that an expensive program of construction work or the yielding of a fairly large part of the civic revenue cannot be acceptable to a city.

HOT WALLS FOR STOVES

In the Westinghouse Laboratories in Pittsburgh revolutionary experiments in domestic heating are being conducted. The thermometer records only 55 degrees F. Yet men work the year round in the lightest of Summer clothing in an atmosphere that would ordinarily demand woolens. The walls and ceiling are heated by electric wires or embedded pipes to a temperature of 80 degrees.

What we have is only a workaday application of a second law of thermodynamics with which the creators of oscillating universes have been regaling us. In plain English, the law says that all energy runs downhill, that hot bodies give up their heat to cool surroundings until equilibrium is established. The engineers have made good use of this law in designing better and better engines for power plants, locomotives and automobiles. Only recently have they realized that the human body is but a living heat-engine. If it were not constantly renewing its warmth by chemical and physical processes it would share the fate of a glowing ember tossed upon the ash-heap. It is both a furnace and a machine. How large the amount of heat it radiates is brought out by experiments conducted in the laboratories of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers. At a normal body temperature of 85 degrees F., it seems that we send out enough heat to raise four pints of water from room temperature to the boiling point. If flower vases fail to steam because of our presence, it is by reason of cold walls, cold tables and chairs, cold air. We warm them all. Prevent some of this radiation from being dissipated and we can sit about in the thinnest linen while wintry blasts rattle the windows.

The new principle implies houses constructed with insulated walls. It also means apparatus to change the air eight times an hour. And the cost? Not more than that of coal. Already the steam radiator and the stove seem anachronisms. Our intelligent children will control the body's heat emission instead of crudely creating a warm bath of air. Who says that we have learned nothing from the crack-brained physicists who pull the universe out and push it together again as if it were a colossal accordion? From relativity to a new method of keeping ourselves warm—what, a transition!—New York Times.

This is the desk where the master sat.
This is the pen that's worn words divine.
This s the master's well-worn hat;
Why, these things might all belong to

This is the room where he lived so long,
Simply furnished and plain and old;
Yet in this place he has fashioned song.
Thoughts that with splendors of dawn un-

He was himself, like this quiet room,
Simple and gracious, in word and deed;
But in his spirit such dreams could bloom
As must have sprung from celestial seed.

Does the magic dwell, but he put it there.

Brockville oarsmen won a majority of points with eight wins and also brought back to Brockville the Comstock Challenge Cup, donated by W. H. Comstock, of Brockville, for competition in rowing. Brockville has produced many fine oarsmen including "The Big Four," who made a fine reputation on Canadian and United States waters. The Brockville Rowing Club has a splendid history and has turned a lot of fine young water athletes into keen businessmen, now content with golf, indoor and outdoor, and their memories of that famous regatta course on the mighty St. Lawrence, beneath the great cliffs which drop from the spreading lawns of the high and mighty old wealthy residences of Brockville's East End.

Now that the rowing spirit is coming back to Brockville, Lachine, Ottawa, (Toronto has always has it), and other centres famous in the past for water sports let us hope that even Belleville may catch the contagion, and added to the grand fun of paddling we may have single sculling, doubles, fours and even eights in this grand old aquatic sport.

The vicar's wife was paying a visit to one of her husband's parishioners.

During the conversation her eyes alighted on a pile of empty bottles partly hidden by some sheets of paper.

"Ah, Mrs. Jackson," she said, "I see you have been having a party!"

The parishioner crimsoned somewhat under the direct gaze.

"No, no, ma'am," she hastily replied, "my husband works at a brewery, and that"—she pointed to the bottles—"that's his home-work."

A man walked reluctantly into a hat store.

"I just lost a bet," he said, 'and I want to get a soft hat."

The salesman, selecting a hat from the shelf behind him, handed it to the prospective purchaser, with the remark:

"This is the softest hat we have."

The customer gazed at it speculatively. "What I want," he said reluctantly, "is something a little more tender. I've got to eat it."

The new office boy had an indifferent memory. His employer, tired of reminding him of his duties, instructed him to make a note of everything important he had to do, and to keep it beside him on his desk.

The next day the employer was glad to see a large note prominently displayed on the boy's desk.

"At last!" he murmured to himself, "my warnings have taken effect."

Complacently, he walked over to look at the notice. It read: "N.B. Leave office at six o'clock sharp."

DAILY CARE YIELDS BIG DIVIDENDS

Amazing Results in Way of Self-improvement

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

(Copyright 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.).

It is amazing what one can accomplish in the way of self-improvement or added accomplishment simply by devoting oneself to it, if only for a little while, each day.

Everybody wants to accomplish something more than his regular routine work. One has a liking for writing and he feels he could turn out a story, novel or play, if only he had the time. Another feels his education is not all that it should be. If time could intervene, night school he thinks, or if he could find the necessary time for home study. A third has been eager to pursue some hobby which has been lagging for years. Again it is lack of time that he offers as an excuse.

As a matter of fact the time element is about the easiest thing to arrange if we really want to do something badly enough. And we don't have to cut down on sleep or recreation either.

All we actually need is, first of all, a plan; next perseverance and the will to put it into action.

I am reminded here of several men and women who helped themselves even while they were sick and bed-ridden. One wrote articles for newspapers and magazines; another an historical treatise. Then there is an insurance agent I know who carries around with him a pocket edition of some classic wherever he goes. While waiting for his clients to receive him he reads a few lines or pages. In this manner he has during the past few years, given himself a liberal education.

Suppose, for instance, you want to write a story. To do a hundred words of it should not take more than half an hour even if you are slow at marshalling your thoughts. In a month, therefore, you will have a little over twenty hours' time devoted to your task as thirty minutes daily, you should have a story finished!

Sticking to a plan is, however, the most essential element for the success of any such scheme. Once must be no extra time and no modifications once you have started. For as soon as you skip day or once since yourself you are too tired or too busy, the very foundation for what you intend to build up is endangered. Let nothing interfere with your desire, cling to it at all costs, and before you know it you are able to do your "stunt."

Do you perhaps still feel, my good reader, that although my advice is excellent, the theory I have advanced cannot possibly apply to you? Are you convinced, perhaps, that you could not find time for self-improvement no matter how well you planned?

If so, suppose you ask yourself honestly whether, during your waking hours, you ever waste time.

Could you not perhaps, dress a little faster and so save ten minutes? What about day-dreaming, or lying awake after you open the light, thus wasting your sleeping time with idle fantasies? Do you not spend valuable minutes gossiping? And won't you admit that, in general, you could do much if you have to go, in shorter time if only you tried?

Yes, self-improvement is within the reach of everyone. The hardest part, really is to start.

Few repetition makes a habit and habits of self-help can be developed as well as any others. Try it, anyway. You will see how easy it is and you will be more than gratified for the initial effort it has cost you.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Gout is a disease in which uric acid accumulates in the blood and in the treatment so-called "purine-free" foods are essential. Such foods are milk, eggs, cheese, sugars, gelatin, nuts, fruits, white flour breadstuffs, green vegetables, potatoes, rice, tapioca, and cornstarch. Fat is permissible in moderation. Liver, sweet-breads, kidney and sardines must be avoided.

LINDBERGH MAY BE DELAYED SHORT WHILE

Adjustments to Be Made to Motor of Plane

HALIFAX, July 12.—(CP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh, bound for Labrador and Greenland on a aerial mapping expedition, may be delayed here for a short time today while adjustments are made to the motor of their black monoplane. It was stated at Eastern passage, where they lay night at the home of Robert Dunsmore, oil company official, that 9.30 this morning had not appeared on the waterfront.

Before retiring last night the Colonel said they expected to hop off for Newfoundland early this morning.

The flying couple landed here last night after a flight of two hours and 36 minutes from North River, Maine. Before retiring, the Colonel supervised re-fueling operations and after seeing 1,200 gallons of gasoline poured into the spacious tanks departed for customs officials the customs for Newfoundland.

LONG AWAITED GIANT SLUMP HAS ARRIVED

Seven Straight Games on Wrong Side of Ledger

CARDS WIN

National League Race Becoming a Real Scrap

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.)

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The slump of New York Giants, so long awaited, has arrived, which has been keeping the hopes of various other clubs in the National League alive, appears to be well under way. The losing streak, which began when the Giants lacked in July 4 doubleheader at Boston has extended through seven straight games and now four contending clubs are closer to the league leading leaders than the second place St. Louis Cardinals were on July 3. The Cards by virtue of a 2-1 "gift" victory over the Giants yesterday are only 2 1/2 games behind, Chicago's Cubs, victorious in their last six games, including four straight over the Giants, moved into third place just three games back of the leaders yesterday by defeating Brooklyn Dodgers 4-2. Pittsburgh Pirates were taking a 5-3 decision from Pittsburgh, that left the Bucs and the Reds following at one-game intervals.

A combination of weak hitting and weaker fielding, plus a costly injury, again wrecked the Giants yesterday although Bud Parmelee gave them more of a fine fight than he has since he had right along.

The Cubs needed only one inning, that in the fourth, to beat Brooklyn facing Owen Carroll for four hits and having a couple of errors tossed in for their six runs.

Boston, which has clubbed up 16 victories in 21 games, got an early start and won over Philadelphia's Phils behind Tom Zackary's tight slinging. The Phillies, meanwhile, moved out of the cellar by taking a 2-1 11-innings decision from Cincinnati Reds when Lou Hurst tripled and scored on Wes. Schulmerich's fly.

American League

With the aid of Chicago White Sox, New York Yankees tightened up the American League race. The Yanks pounded Wally Herbert pinned the early innings to defeat St. Louis Browns 5-4 with the aid of boomers by Fred Walker and Tony Lazzeri. The Sox did the same thing even more emphatically to Al Crowder and Washington Senators, winning nine to three by scoring eight runs in the first three innings. The defeat reduced Washington's lead to two games.

The third place Philadelphia Athletics kept pace by rapping Clint Brown for three runs in the first and defeating Cleveland Indians 6-4. Boston Red Sox handed Detroit Tigers their fourth straight loss when a double by Dusty Cooke led to two runs in the fourth and a 2-1 victory in a flinging duel between Bob Weiland and Vic Frasier.

PHILLIPS IN 3 HIT GAME

Wellington Juniors Alone in 1st Place Defeating Moose 5-4

Limiting the local Junior Moose to three singles "Lefty" Phillips breezed through a junior game in the Hastings County League to give the Wellington kids their seventh win in the league, when they downed the "hodge lads" by the score of 5 to 4 at the Alemite grounds last evening and continued to lead the league after sharing the first rung in the loop ladder for a matter of but three days with the new second place Crystalacs.

Harris, who labored on the hilltop for the local kids, was also in fine form allowing but eight hits for the five runs scored. The game opened with the visitors taking the lead only to relinquish it to the home kids in the second inning, when they scored all their runs on two hits and two errors. The Wellington crew tied the game up in the sixth only to go on and bag the winning counter in the eighth.

Both hurlers whiffed ten batters during the eight innings played while the locals, failing to hit in the pinches, had five men left stranded on the paths to but three of the Wellington team's. Bob Green, with a mighty smash to deep left centre in the first inning accounted for two runs when he hit for the circuit with Kirby holding down first at the time by virtue of his previous single. Greer also connected for a single. Besides hurling a masterful game Phillips led all hitters of the day with three singles to his credit. Brown of the Moose team collected two safe blows while Jack Kidd, who superbly handled the stanks of Harris behind the plate, collected the only other hit registered for the home team.

REDWINGS UP

Defeat Bears 8-1 And Tie With Leafs Who Lose to Skeeters

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

In the short span of three weeks Montreal Royals have climbed from the International League cellar to fifth place and now are on the heels of the fourth place Baltimore Orioles.

Their 15th victory in that stretch was handed out by the Royals officially achieved it in the 16th innings yesterday, beating Baltimore 4-3 in the second league game of the season. Doc Cautreau's single drove in Tim McCelthan, who had doubled, with the winning run.

Meanwhile Rochester revived the series with the pace-setting Newark Bears 8-1, and moved into a tie with Toronto for second place, two games out of the lead. Ira Smith allowed the leaders only five hits and blanked them over the last eight frames. Smith likewise collected a home run and double while Al Shires drove out four consecutive hits, including a pair of doubles.

Toronto dropped a 5-2 decision to Jersey City Skeeters as Ray Phelps allowed only five hits. An error by Nolen Richardson on a double play left in the ninth paved the way for the three Jersey City runs, that decided the battle.

Buffalo Bisons stopped the flagging Albany Senators and Buffalo won a night game 10-4. Collins van allowed eight hits and fanned six.

KI-Y SOFTBALL

But two games of softball were played in the midget section of the local K3-Y league last evening when the Q.V.S. "Cubs" downed the "Y" Bruins at Queen Victoria School grounds by the score of 13 to 10 while the "Y" Midgets eked out a 9 to 8 victory over the Maple Leafs at George School grounds. The St. Michael's Midgets defaulted their scheduled game at the Cricket Field to the South End A.C. kids. Messrs. Bisset and Rutlan acted as umpires for the two games played.

Three local boxers, Bob Cook, Art. Argell and Cordie Morris of the South End A.C. have been signed to box at an open air boxing show to be staged by the C.L.C. The former two will be able to appear but owing to the fact, that Morris cut his hand recently it is somewhat problematic whether he will appear on the Kingston card or not.

FRUIT GIRLS LOOP LEADERS

Defeat South End A. C. Girls 11-9 in Well Played Game

"Susie" Barrett's Belleville Fruit lassies hopped into first place in the local girls' softball league last evening at the Victoria Park diamond, when they eked out an 11 to 9 victory over the South End A.C. girls in one of the best played games yet seen this season.

The game developed into a pitcher's battle between "Babe" Lewis, Manager Somerville's elongated hurler, and Beasie Doolittle with the former getting the better support and hurling superb ball in the pinches.

Despite the fact, that the S.E. A.C. nine outhit the Fruit lassies they failed to connect in the pinches, on which hangs the tale of the win and the losers respectively. Three homers were registered during the nine innings played with the S.E.A.C. accounting for two, two by K. Thompson and Hilda McMichael clouting the apple over the outfielders heads to four base clouts, while Helen Smith smashed the horsehide into the harbour inlet for a circuit blow.

Helen Smith with a homer and a double led the Fruit hitters, while B. Burley hit two singles and a double for the losers, and Pat Ethier collected two safe blows as did Doris Bialad.

The win placed the Belleville Fruit team into sole possession of first place with the S.E.A.C. girls, pegging back into second position and the Maple Leafs, who meet the S. E.A.C. on Friday evening in third position.

The lineups:

Belleville Fruit—Kelleher, Tuttle, Donahue; Smith, Bialad, Dey, Morgan, Canning and Lewis.

Beauty .... By Helen Jameson

Footing It Along The Beauty Way

Generally speaking, feet are having happier lives, though they're a long way from paradise. The low shoe gives them better ventilation than did the old time high-topped horrors that laced or buttoned, forcing leather prisons. This season's street shoes have lower heels, for which let us be thankful.

Big there's still better news. Gals who are cavorting round beaches or abhausting over the bounding waves in sail boats, are wearing sandals that are carbon copies of those that were worn in ancient Greece, Rope sandals, too, have appeared. My, what an elegant Summer feet are going to have.

Women who suffer from foot fits —corns, calluses, ingrowing nails —hobble to chiropodists' offices have treatment, pay their fees. While the work is being done the operator explains that there will be no permanent cure as long as the same shoes are worn the wrel-bed swinging growths will return. Does the lady heed? Not at all. Goes in one ear and sticks in the other. She knows the kind of shoes she likes. That's enough.

Despite discomfort, despite the fact she can't run swiftly on spike heels, she keeps right on wearing the. Some of her, I mean. Others have listening to the pleading voice of troubled foot nerves and fibers. They've delved into the problem. Considered shes and lasts of footwear and reformed.

Sensitive creatures they're footloose and fancy free.

If a girl must pig along on spiked heels, let her, for the sake of mercy, be merciful to her little dogs, give them a rest now and then. Get some sandals. Wear them in the house at least.

Remove shoes and stocking from the foot of the average woman. The sole of the foot will be lined with lengthwise creases, showing that the sole of the foot is pinched and crimped. Toes huddle together, big toe and little toe pointing backward. Time's right. At birth the widest part of the foot is across the toes. Good thing we don't have to climb trees as did our simian ancestors; we'd never get a toehold on even the lowest limb.

No sense ripping into the shoe manufacturers; they give the vimmin what the wimmin want. Girls have found that the high heel makes the foot look smaller. Mebbe so. It also makes the back look humped, the chest flat and expression of the face lascivated.

We've chucked steel-riveted corsets, factory hair, heavy underwear, some clothing, over-trimmed millinery. But we are not out of bondage until we wear comfortable footwear. Smart and sensible shoes can be had. One has but to ask for them at the shops.

Corns, bunions are common afflictions. They are self-inflicted. They make women wretched and unhappy. Stupid, isn't it?

There's no best foot to put forward; they're both on the blink.

Know Your Make-Up Faults

(By Helen Follett)

Arrangements of the glorious crown has an effect upon the contour of the face, as every woman knows. It won't do to blindly follow a new mode. Problems must be worked out.

Make-up, too, has an influence upon the features. Rouge casts a shadow and that is why hollow cheeks should not carry counterfeit blushes which only make them appear more gaunt. No rouge on receding chin either. That's bad.

Coloring placed high brings out the color of the eyes, brightens them, gives the countenance an appearance of freshness. Rouge placed low on the cheeks makes the face look drawn and weary.

Even those sour-soused critics who believe that too much time is spent in beautifying agree that finger nails must be up to fashion's trade par. Won't do to let pink shells get out of form. Even when there is the weekly manicure, it is necessary to use an oil or cuticle cream every night to ward off painful hangnails, to keep the flesh from growing too far upon the nail surface.

After bathing the hands, push back the cuticle gently with a soft towel. If this is done, and the cream is used regularly, there will be no need of giving cuticle further attention.

Nail polishes continue to be colorful this season. Gold is one of the most intriguing tiresome. Better a deep rose or a rich coral.

If the nose reddens, stays persistently red, it is worth the time and money expended to consult a medical man who specializes in diseases of the skin and scalp. A flame-colored nose is not necessary at all!

The source of the trouble may be an unbalanced diet, or an internal condition may be smoldering. Anyhow never use water that is extremely hot or cold. Ointment of any kind is beneficial in the early stages of this distressing blemish.

Liver spots belong to the freckle family. They often result from exposure to strong sunlight. It is impossible to free the face of them by wearing gloves in the summer time, avoiding contact with the burning rays of the sun.

Peroxide, cream peroxide and lemon juice, equal parts, are right for bleaching liver spots. To massage lightly with ointment of zinc oxide.

CHOIR HOLDS PICNIC AT WELLINGTON

On Tuesday evening, the Tabernacle choir and friends held their annual picnic at the Wellington Tourist Camp. The cars left Higgs' Garage at six p.m. and the merry song until the camp by the Lake was the scene of a jolly picnic supper. Most sumptuous picnic food including those famous bean beans was spread upon the long tables and there was not long until everyone was heartily enjoying the repast.

At the end of the meal, Mr. Harry McGregor, manager of the choir and master of ceremonies for the evening, informally arranged the party gathered and is a few word extended to Mr. and Mrs. George Wright best wishes. Mrs. Duff Allen presented Mrs. George Wright (nee Beaie Barlow) with a lovely salad dish. Mrs. Wright who was completely surprised responded fittingly.

Mr. Moorman called upon Mrs. Jacobson, who has been a valued member of the choir and a about to leave Belleville. Mrs. Cowrie presented Mrs. Jacobson with a silver cake dish. Mrs. Jacobson replied telling the members how sorry she was to leave and how she had enjoyed working with the choir.

While still about the tables Mr. Bill Colclough conducted a number and sing song. The evening passed speedily and it was time to go home to start for home. Everyone agreed that this was one of the jolliest picnics enjoyed by all.

Provide an Outlet for the Toddler's Busy Imagination

(By Constance Cameron)

When a mother says, as one did the other night, "Don't touch it" as he can be. All I say to him is, Don't," she is admitting utter failure on her part, and convincing me not one whit that Jackie is naughty.

For Jackie's "badness" it seems, consists of touching everything in the living room, spilling ash trays and books, changing vases, dragging books off their shelves, whenever he is allowed to visit living quarters other than his own nursery.

I can see nothing "bad" in those little doings, yet but well, But whose fault is it?

As little child has many new things he longs to investigate, to touch, to experiment with and the living room, if visited only occasionally, presents a breath-taking array of new worlds, and you can be perfectly sure he is going to do something about it.

When the Child Explores

The only answer is to teach him how to handle things carefully and to stay with him while he is among your treasures. Let him realize that things are sure to happen. Let him pick up things carefully. Show him how to put it back. When he looks from out their places, make it a game of putting them back in. Such as much fun, really, to stack things up in a row as it is to pull them out.

Many beautiful gifts testified to the esteem in which the young people were held.

WOMAN LAWYER DEFENDS HUSBAND ON MURDER CHARGE

A decidedly interesting twist has been given the ever-absorbing problem of career versus home in "Ann Carver's Profession," which starts its regular run today for three days at the Capitol Theatre. It is destined to create much excitement and it is hoped to get acquainted early with what the commotion is all about.

Directed by Eddie Buzzell, who made "Child of Manhattan," the story is a screen original by Robert Riskin showing the inevitable conflict that arises when a woman's professional activities threaten her domestic happiness. Fay Wray is cast in the role of a talented woman lawyer whose career seduces attention from the legal affairs causes her husband to leave home and seek forgetfulness in the arms of another woman. Complications tend to widen the breach between the pair and it takes a tragedy to bridge the gap, with the woman making her choice between Love and Luxury. Her choice would be the choice of every woman in the same predicament—or would it? See what you think.

Gene Raymond, remembered as in "If I Had a Million" ait "Zoo in Budapest," is the handsome hubby and it needs only a glance to see why he falls easy victim of the willowy Claire Dodd. Jessie Ralph accounts for a splendid character portrayal, Claude Gillingwater, Arthur Pierson and Frank Conroy

Penn Slab Ace May Prove Star Pitcher Phils Seek

Johnny Jackson

By HAROLD K. GEORGE
Central Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 12.—Burt Shotton was sitting on the edge of the home dugout one day in the Phillies' ball park, when a voice asked:

"How would you like to have a pitcher?"

Now anyone familiar with baseball and especially up to snuff on the Phillies' pitching — at least, that is what it is supposed to be—knows that Burt Shotton not only would like to have one pitcher, but two, three or four, if you have that many to offer him.

Manager Shotton hardly turned his head to reply to his questioner, but out of courtesy to one who would show so much interest in the welfare of his Phillies, casually asked in return:

"Do I need a pitcher? Let's have it. What's the joke?"

X X X

SHOTTON WAS talking to Dr. Walter Carris, baseball coach of the University of Pennsylvania, who said he had a pitcher up in the stands who was quite capable of winning for any National league team, and wanted to join the Phillies in preference to any other club.

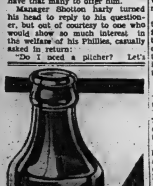
Carris departed and soon returned with a 22-year-old youth, at best two in height, who was discovering to the name of John L. Jackson. He was to be graduated from Penn the next day, and was willing to report to the Phillies immediately.

A right-hander, Jackson was put to work in the ball park and in a few minutes showed Shotton enough to send the manager off to President Gerry Nugent for a blank contract and 7 cents with which to reimburse the collegian for car fare to the park.

X X X

THREE DAYS later Shotton sandbag with Jackson against the Cincinnati Reds. But it proved to be no gamble. He beat the Reds 7 to 4, allowed eight hits, struck out two, walked as many, and hit three batsmen.

Johnny contributed one hit to his triumph and the victory so inspired the Phillies that they went out and swept the series with the Reds.



Four days later Jackson was back on the mound for his second chance. Who should he be chosen to face but the St. Louis Cardinals! The Phillies calmed him down by telling him they were easier to beat then Cincinnati, that they couldn't hit as hard.

X X X

JACKSON'S CALM wore off after five and two-thirds innings and he found himself on the bench, but his relief hurling stopped the Cards and Johnny got, credit for the victory, anyway.

Another four days elapsed and Johnny faced the champion Chicago Cubs. He lasted until the eighth inning, allowed nine hits and four runs, which tied the score and was saved a defeat when the relief pitcher couldn't keep the Cubs away from the plate.

Johnny doesn't have to pitch baseball in Penn. He doesn't have to work at all. His father is said to be a millionaire, and Johnny likes professional baseball, and means to stick with the Phillies and be one of the few collegians to jump right to the majors.

GOLF FACTS
NOT THEORIES!
By
Alex J. Morrison

ALEX ORRISON says:

Too often do you grunt, lunge with your body and jab the club at the ball only to learn that your swing is without power.

Unfortunately, you discover this lack of power only after your club has started forward in the downswing, too late to do anything about it.

In a properly made swing the power is developed during the wind up of backswing and the downswing or unwinding merely serves to transmit this power into the shot.

Therefore, check over what you do in your backswing. Chances are you do like most players, lift your arms outward from your body instead of keeping them in close and making your body windup and thereby fill out your backswing.

Next: One Sure Rule

CURRENT SPORT
Knocks and Boosts

If Ernie Gibbard's "Athletics" can down the league leading Picton intermediates at Napanee and the local Victorias can take the lowly Brighton crew into camp at Brighton this afternoon the Vics will be back on top of the Bay of Quinte loop once again.

The race in the Bay of Quinte loop this year has been most interesting from the outset. Yesterday but a half game separated the league leading Picton club and the third place Napanee crew, with the Vics lying wedged between them. Manager Fanning will carry his strongest team into Brighton this afternoon in order to pull out a win. Of course if the Gibbard crew falter at the hands of the Pictonites, then the Chauncy Gerow-coached crew will be sitting pretty.

With all the flourishes, that go with the opening of a new baseball park the G. W. Gibbard Memorial Baseball Park was officially opened last Saturday, when the Napanee crew downed the Brighton nine by the score of 7 to 4 but, not until 11 innings had been played. Apparently the sailing in the Bay of Quinte loop has proven much rougher than was anticipated by Messrs. Gerow, Pointer and Gibbard. Of course the "Athletics" have won five games and have but four more to play, two at home and two away. The final week of the race between these three league contenders should screw plenty of enthusiasm in local baseball circles.

According to information received by Secretary Vanderveet of the local girls' loop, another attempt is being made to re-open the softball diamond at the Armouries Lawn. The league officials have communicated with Ernie Tennesen M.P. who in turn has been asked to refer the question to those in authority at Ottawa, where a final and definite answer will be received later this week.

According to street gossip considerable rough play is being injected into local men's softball games. After hearing these reports we wandered over to the new diamond on the Coleman Flats and saw the opening game. Although the statements heard on the street were slightly exaggerated we did see a couple of plays that warranted the offenders being ejected from the game. If the umpires would rule these games with an iron hand occasionally such actions as tripping, shoving a baserunner and blocking the base lines would not be so prevalent. As the rules of baseball say—no baseman, and that includes the catcher, is allowed to block a base line or a base without first having the ball in his possession, unless a base line or base is blocked and the defending player has got the ball in his possession it usually leads to trouble. On the other hand this ruling is not practiced by good ball players. Neither is the act of charging a baserunner who has the ball in his possession, in reality what is needed at some of these men's softball games is a couple of rough tough umpires, who'll rule the game with a "tin Hawt."

After carefully scrutinizing the official batting averages of the Nationals yesterday, we were surprised to find out that they have scored 93 runs thus far this season. This gives them an average of 3.1 runs per game or enough runs to win the average ball contest played in any amateur league. Their team batting average of .265 is about the average accumulated by the Nationals since their inception in 1918. As far back as we can remember the Nationals, as a team never has hit over .275, thus showing that the 1933 edition of the Nationals cannot blame their batting ability for their present showing in the C.O.B.L.

Apparently catching sharpens up the batting eye of a amateur ball player. Previous to assuming the catching duties of the Nationals "Sonny" Green was just another hitter as far as opposing hurlers went. Once Green supplanted Manager Mills behind the plate he started to pound the ball apple with the result, that he now enjoys the fine batting average of .346. Green is also making a pretty fair fist of the receiving duties for Roy Smith, who led the local hitters for the forepart of the season, has fallen into a slump of some description and has run afoul of his old batting eye habit. He's still slapping the apple at the .333 rate though.

One month ago Manager Mills' batting average was far below his actual weight. But when the warm weather came around "Tommy" started to hit and now is back in form hitting at the .333 clip. Jim Matthews and Vinny Ulrunki are other Nats regulars to step into the coveted class.

With two bowling tournaments in progress in this district the local bowling fraternity are slightly divided today with some of them competing at Picton and the remainder going to Cobourg for the big annual tournament up there. Out at the Bay of Quinte Country Club the male golfers are trying to beat "old man par" for Geo. Tindall's Tip Top trophy, while a match is also in progress out at the Belleville Golf Club.

TIGER

By Sterling North

Joe was scaled to the skin and shining like a seal. His eyes gleamed with the light of battle. He sparred and crowded and feinted with the skill of a professional prize fighter and punished his ponderous bull-like opponent with rabbit and kidney punches on the infighting.

The other swung with slow crushing blows that usually fell on empty air.

But now they were tangled together on the sloping floor fighting like animals. Outside the waves were pounding against the hull like slow sledge hammers.

They were up again now and breathing heavily. And now a deadly light shone in the knifer's eyes. He was circling toward the only chair in the little room and Joe did not seem to realize his intention.

Now he was raising the chair high above his head and was swinging it down with murderous force.

Joe ducked, but not in time.

The knifer was upon him now, swinging pile-driving left and rights into the gamed, but game Joe. Joe's face was bloody and one eye was closed, but he heard Jerry calling to him and he stayed in.

For a moment the stunning effect of the blow from the chair had subsided, and from his assailant's relentless reserve of energy Joe drew enough to send the other down for the count.

Jerry found she was crying with happiness and relief. She was on her knees beside Joe helping him to the man's hand and foot. She was telling Joe he had saved her life and that she could now forgive him for everything he had ever done.

"You don't have to tell e who this man is or why you have him here," Jerry said. "I know what whatever you have done it is right."

They looked back behind them and were up the companionside ship issued. They passed the yacht one at a time as if in review and disappeared, lakeward into the hazy dawn.

Those were the schooners Jerry had seen in the moonlight. Joe could have sworn that those were the boats they had met.

And while she was still agog concerning this inexplicable phenomenon she was given another startling shock to see a rowboat pulling away from the yacht and heading up the sidesllp with the bound and gagged body of the prisoned captain in one of the seats.

He was carefully lifted to the shore and deposited among the weeds. Then the sailors were relieved of their burden by two other men who carried the captive into one of the rusty, deserted-looking buildings.

CHAPTER 16

Before the first thin crescent of the sun had appeared above the lake the Sea Gull had left the slip and was Chicago Bound. It pulled into its berth in the Grant park yacht harbor just as the sun was rising, the thoroughly competent craft of the unquestionably respectable Joe Middleton.

Jerry asked permission to go home and see Sarah and the children, but promised to be at the office again before noon. She found it humiliating, but necessary, to wear one of the dresses from the wardrobe Joe had provided because the office dress she had worn when she came aboard was so badly torn she had been unable to mend it.

Jerry knew that it would be easier to explain the new dress to Sarah than it would the tear in the old one.

She arrived at their little apartment to find the little family in a perfect frenzy of excitement. They were standing about the dining-room table, on which the breakfast dishes still stood, looking at two letters with foreign stamps addressed to Jerry.

"Oh, Jerry" Kliten cried. "It's just too thrilling Do hurry and open your letters.

"I can't believe it." Sarah said. "I simply can't believe it is true."

"What in the world," Jerry asked, "is this all about?" She crossed the room quickly and picked up the letters. They were postmarked from Paris, Brazil, and in the upper left-hand corner of each in the handwriting she knew so well, was the name Peter Baird.

"Oh Sarah" Jerry cried. "It's too wonderful. But it doesn't surprise me like it does you. I have been thinking of Peter every day for weeks. I felt that he must still be alive. But I do hope he is well and happy and on his way to Chicago.

"Do you suppose he ever got any of those letters we sent him?" Sarah asked. "You know I sent one months after" he disappeared into the void, but I don't suppose they're in Paris. That was after Mary Ann had died. I wanted him to know we had done everything we could for his wife."

Jerry stoped open the first letter with trembling fingers while Kliten and Jackie clustered about her, all out loud, Jerry. Read it to us."

Jerry did not read it out loud, however. In a large, grief-stricken letter written late on the night of Peter's arrival in Paris he found unbearable experiences in the jungle. Much of the writing was illegible and decipherable, and it told almost nothing of Peter himself, only his grief at learning that Mary Ann was dead.

The other letter was written the next morning and had caught the same mail boat. It was shorter than the first, and began:

Dear little Jerry: You will know from the letter I wrote last night that I have heard of the death of Mary Ann. I don't know what I wrote in that letter, I was too dazed with grief to think clearly. But this morning I am a trifle calmer.

I go into Paris last night, having been on the Amazon for three solid months coming down from the sea by dugout and steamboat. I immediately went to the postoffice to see if any letters had come for me during these years I have been missing.

There were several. Frantic, appealing letters from Mary Ann praying that her notes would reach me and telling me that in the jungle, a pathetic letter telling in detail about the birth of Jackie and how she was growing up in body and eyes were, and what Kliten said when she first saw him.

Then there was a final letter from your mother telling me of Mary Ann's death, and how you, Jerry, had taken the children under your care as if you were their own mother.

I don't need to tell you what kind of night I spent in my hot little hotel room going over this in my mind, remembering every moment of my life with Mary Ann as I have remembered it time and time again since I went into the jungle on that ill-fated expedition. And the new black diamond field on the upper reaches of the Amazon.

But what has happened cannot now be helped, and all that I can do to make amends will be to double my efforts to help you and my children. Mary Ann would have thought it all out tossing here on my bed and looking out through the window over the square set with palms and blossoming with tropical flowers.

It was from this very square I set out for the mines so long ago. We hit plenty of the blue dirt there at the first digging and were taking out a reasonable number of stones, but we heard from a half-breed rubber trader of a valley on the eastern slopes of the Andes where these stones were as thick as coffee beans under a coffee tree.

I go, into Para last night, having been on the Amazon for three solid months coming down from the sea by dugout and steamboat. I immediately went to the postoffice to see if any letters had come for me during these years I have been missing.

The knifer uttered a savage cry and with a swift leap sprang to the deck where Dave, who was slowly breaking over a lake where only the mighty rollers told of the storm that had passed.

They went to their respective cabins to bathe and replace their torn and bloody clothes and then joined each other at breakfast.

When a man has fought for a woman and has won she is liable to forgive much. And for the man it is as ready to take advantage of his opportunity as the Middleton the situation gets complex.

Joe, however, was no ordinary strategist.

"My dear," he said, "it is very hard for me to say romantic things through a broken lip, but I want to tell you that you were a little Amazon last night. A very beautiful little Amazon... but now you have had enough of this and will need a rest... We are heading back for Chicago and will be there tomorrow morning."

It was no coudy send a wireless message to mother telling her I am all right."

"Of course," Joe said, "and I suppose it's not to be supposed that the office the unwelcome news that we both lived through the night."

Joe during the rest of the day and evening was so platonic that Jerry wondered if he had at last turned over a new page in the highly colored book of his life. She hoped frantically he hag taken his defeat at the knifer's hands to heart.

Several times during the day, however, she saw him watching her with a wry little smile playing around his lips and a gleam in the corners of his eyes.

She had told Joe she would ask no questions, but she wished she might have had the opening and courage enough to ask what the man had meant when he had said: "So you're the Tiger's skin."

"Skin" meant girl or woman. Jerry understood. But who was the Tiger? Was Joe the Tiger? Was that his reputation on all points of the world from which that creature grew?

More than ever Jerry wondered about this strange employer of hers, whose complex characteristics kept her constantly guessing. He had more personality than any man of the masculine movie stars, and evidently a past that read like a detective thriller. Jerry wished she could turn to the back page and find the answer.

Early the next morning the arrived and slipped out of her luxurious bed went to the porthole to view the fabulous Sea Gull slip in Chicago, she thought with dismay. This must be the story of the big steel mill towns south of Chicago.

The great black smokestacks rising into the sky were not belching smoke, however, and the long, desolate-looking steel-and-brick buildings were filling into disrepair as if long deserted.

The yacht was evidently tied up in this slip for a purpose, but what that purpose was Jerry could not imagine.

Then she startled wide awake by the amazing sight of seven long gray automobiles in line of one of the buildings into which a

CENTRAL SOFTBALL LEAGUE CAUSES MUCH INTEREST

West Huntingdon, July 13—The farmers have their all finished haying. This is perhaps the earliest known in years. It perhaps is due to advanced season, also extra warm weather which made the operation of making hay much earlier. Attention is now turned to fall grain and to the finishing touches to planting fields. A few local showers have visited us of late accompanied by wind storms.

The social side of life is not forgotten. There has been considerable visiting, among local people and attending of picnics, etc., but one feels safe in saying that the most outstanding event in the life of the community as regards the social life has been the ball games. The central softball league has given ample opportunity to prove to the world at large that nestled out here among the beautiful hills and fertile valleys there is some real sports and ball players.

The games played between the five teams which compose this league which are White Lake, Ivanhoe, Minto, Evergreen and West Huntingdon, have all been very interesting and played in a clean sportsmanship manner, but this last week they have become fired with a zeal that seemed to have gripped the entire community. Minto and Evergreen have been in the limelight and both teams put up a great fight to capture the Hon. Robt. Cooke trophy that was won by Minto last year.

So it is little wonder that the game on Monday evening which was played at Minto drew such a large crowd for many miles around. And those who attended were exceedingly well repaid as they received what proved to be one team would out hit the other. Minto was in the lead at first but as the game warmed up Evergreen showed that perhaps they have been carrying the wrong name and that they were not as green as their name implied for at the end of the seventh inning the score was 8-9 for Evergreen.

And now the history of Central League for 1933 is finished except that already plans are under way for a huge banquet, when we will endeavour to have the Hon. Robt. Cooke, M.P.P. present, the cup to be presented by him. Mr. and Mrs. D. Casement who is the manager of the winning team, also to his efficient players who are Jerry Brandworth p, Henry Burrell c, Raymond Brandworth 1st, A. Rodgers 2b, Bruce Stapley 3b, D. Rodgers ss, James Mills, Ken Stapley, Bruce Stapley, Maurice McGee Fielders.

The new minister Rev. R. Merriam and family moved in the parsonage last week.

Miss Evelyn McInroy is receiving many complimentary bouquets as all her five pupils who wrote on entrance examinations have been successful some obtaining honors.

NEGOTIATE TO FREE FACTOR

$200,000 is Set by Kidnappers as Amount Required

Chicago, July 12.—(AP)—Claims that relatives of John Factor held secret negotiations with the kidnappers of John Factor with $200,000 set as the price for his release, were made today by friends of the International Speculator, abducted 11 days ago while returning home with friends from a roadhouse.

The friends maintained Factor's family was convinced the negotiations were genuine when a ring worn by the man was sent to them with instructions written by him regarding the handling of his brokerage accounts.

Besides the Board of strategy maintained by close associates of Factor in a loop hotel, a local detective agency is working on the case and is reported to have received the ring and the notes demanding the $200,000 ransom.

Police said they believed Factor was being held in the chain-of-lakes region near Antioch, Ill. Following an anonymous tip that Factor and his abductors would meet with members of his family, Sheriff Tiffany of Lake County patrolled the vicinity of Grassdale, four miles from Antioch, during the early hours of Tuesday.

At the same time steps were taken to guard Factor's second son, seven-year-old Alvin, from abduction, when a police escort was requested to accompany the youth to his mother's home after his arrival in the city from the summer home of a friend at Crystal Lake in McHenry County.

WHEAT CONTROL PARLEYS NEAR AGREEMENT

World Effort to Raise Wheat Price Meets With Importers' Cooperation

Premier Bennett Says After Meeting Importers Agree

WHEAT AND PARLEY

New Step Forward in Plan to Advance Wheat Prices

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 13—(CP Cable)—Negotiations looking to world-wide co-operation to raise the price of wheat advanced another step this afternoon when Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada attended a meeting of the great wheat exporting and importing nations, afterwards informing the Canadian Press the importers were willing to cooperate.

The representatives of the great wheat exporting nations and the principal wheat importing countries met under chairmanship of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald for a first exchange of views. The Prime Minister urged they reach agreement for regulating wheat production with a view to fitting the demand and increasing the price.

Importers Agreeable

After the meeting Prime Minister Bennett said "the importing countries showed every desire to co-operate."

The point how far she wheat negotiations shall be brought within the framework of the World Economic Conference however brought a division of opinion. Up to now the negotiations have gone on either within the wheat conference of Canada, Australia, the United States and Argentina, or between these countries and others outside the conference itself.

The big four, it is understood, want an agreement completed first, and then submitted to the conference. Some of the importing nations however wanted a conference subcommittee created immediately to discuss the agreement. The big four point out they have made more progress in the last few weeks than has ever before been achieved.

The conversations will continue tomorrow, the meeting being described as "distinctly improved."

Prompt Agreement

Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald appeared to wheat producers and importers alike to get together in an agreement for co-ordinating wheat production and consumption with a view to increasing the prices of the world's principal stable commodity.

He looked not only upon an agreement but upon a "prompt agreement."

As a consequence of the appeal the "big four" producers, Canada, the United States, Australia and Argentina, were hopeful that the Danubian countries would receive more than from their insistence upon a large export quota for their wheat, and approximately 45,000,000 bushels of wheat are the share in figure assigned them as their share in world exports of the big four.

"Big Four" Meet

The big four first meet representatives of Russia and with the Danubian countries again tomorrow.

Not one point in the statement Mr. MacDonald asked one of the American delegates what was necessary for an agreement with the Danubian countries and received the answer: "For them to accept our figures."

A representative from one of those nations arose and said their position was that all that was necessary for an agreement was for the big four "to accept our figure."

Laughter and a joking remark by Mr. MacDonald ended the incident.

Danubian Export

The big four position is that the Danubian nations should accept an export quota of about 45,000,000 bushels and perhaps a little more for a quick agreement. The Danubians insist upon a minimum quota of ten million bushels and a maximum of 17,000,000 if the crop is very good.

A French delegate proposed that the negotiations be thrown into a sub-committee of the economic conference, particularly insofar as co-operation of importing countries is concerned.

However, Kirsi Thomas Brenton of Argentina, then Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, Stanley M. Bruce of Australia and Henry Morgenthau of the United States pointed out that the negotiations thus far have proceeded apart from the world economic conference and reiterated the belief that future progress was contingent upon pursuance of the present course. This was finally accepted without a vote.

GROWERS CANNOT UNDERSTAND WHY

For First Time in History Potatoes Leave St. Catharines

St. Catharines, Ont., July 12.—(CP)—Certainly it's an indication of some kind but agricultural authorities here can't figure it out, because, they say, the case usually is reversed.

What they're trying to figure out is why a carload of potatoes was shipped from here. It's the first time in history, they say, and as a rule potatoes are shipped here. However, three carloads of St. Catharines district "spuds" on their way west for the first time.

HART, Mich., July 13.—(AP)—A farm youth who submitted to a sterilization operation after a court decree of having contributed to the delinquency of a minor girl was awarded $3,250 damages in circuit court here today.

The youth, William Wells had sued for $50,000 on the ground that he had been operated on and was not fully aware of the nature of the operation.

He was awarded $1,750 from Henry I. Palmiter, former probate judge; $1,000 from Ben Franson Hackett, former registrar of probate and $5,000 from Guy Walters, former sheriff of Oceana County.

BRITAIN WILL NOT OPEN UP PUBLIC WORKS

Runciman Tells Conference Experience Has Been Too Costly

ALL ABANDONED

French Spokesman In Favor of Work Projects

London, July 13 (AP)—Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, told the World Economic Conference today the government of the United Kingdom would not initiate any scheme of public works or participate in any international project of the kind nor provide a capital market for loans for such a purpose.

Mr. Runciman said that Great Britain had "abandoned reliance in such schemes which "are the most unremunerative of all efforts to produce unemployment."

He declared that for each £100,000,000 Great Britain had spent in public works for the benefit of the unemployed, experience proved that only 2,000 men had been directly employed while 8,000 more were indirectly benefitted.

"The schemes were expensive and unruly expensive—and we shall not repeat them no matter what other nations do," he said.

Premier Abandoned

"We have abandoned them once and for all."

Mr. Runciman's speech came at the end of a day of oratory in the economic conference, largely concerned with the French proposal for setting up a non-commercial study such projects.

The French spokesman, who received much support in the commission, urged that the world unemployment crisis, which Europe alone feeding, clothing and housing 15,000,000 unemployed persons and their dependents, calls for practical application of work producing projects.

The Yugoslav, Chinese, Persian and Italian delegates supported the French proposal, but most of the spokesmen asked where the money would come from. Their questions met little interest and practically no applause.

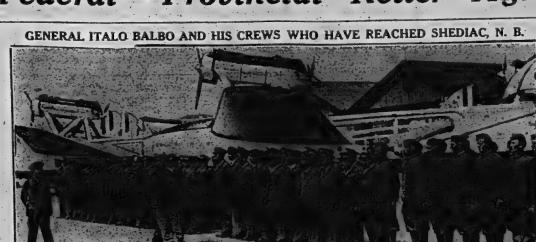
Membership in German Government Labor Union Necessary for Job

BERLIN, July 13.—(AP) —Jews were virtually barred from almost all professional and mercantile fields by a new decree announced today, ordering employees throughout the Reich to submit immediately a declaration that they are of non-Jewish extraction.



The order is predicated upon the government being forced to become members in a huge government-styled "labor front."

It goes beyond a previous decree and describes Aryans as "those having parents and grandparents born of German blood and does not fix the degree of Jewish ancestry as previous orders did.

In the future it will be hard to find a job without a membership card in the Government's labor organization.

Withdrawal of Nazis as commissioners of German Evangelical churches lay to the belief, as expressed by Chancellor Hitler, that the negotiations for settlement of the church conflict ended satisfactorily.

George S. Henry, Premier of Ontario, stated here today. JOHN FACTOR IS RELEASED

Ransom Paid and Speculator in Serious Condition From Breakdown

Chicago, July 13 (AP)—John Factor disclosed today that $50,000 was paid in $5 and $10 bills to his kidnappers as the price of his freedom.

Chicago, July 13 (AP)—Threatened with death by kidnappers who held him prisoner for 13 days, John Factor, the market speculator, was back home with his family today, but was in a serious condition, suffering from a nervous breakdown. Releasing just before midnight last night in Suburban La Grange the usually debonair Factor, who is reputed to have made "big money" in the market, told a story of mistreatment by his captors, but denied, as did members of his family, that any ransom had been paid.

There were reports however, that anywhere from $75,000 to $200,000 had been paid to effect his release.

Captain Dan Gilbert of the State's Attorney's police, frankly said he believed that a large ransom was paid, and traffic policeman Eugene Crowe of La Grange said that Factor himself admitted that there had been a payment, but did not disclose the exact amount. Later Factor denied any payment had been made.

Unshaven, and ill-appearing in comparison to the man who is wanted by the British government for an alleged $7,000,000 swindle in England, approached policeman Crowe on the northwest corner of River Forest, at the main intersection in La Grange and announced: "I am Factor."

He was taken to the police station and later was brought to his Chicago hotel, where he told Captain Gilbert and Lieutenant William Blaul, that his abductors had demanded $50,000 ransom and had threatened him with machine guns and a pair of scissors, when he told them he couldn't raise the money.

The building will be held at auction soon. The Virginians intend to try to purchase it and stock it with what they buy Wednesday.

GARDEN HOSE AS TIRE ON HIGH BICYCLE

What's the Use of This Old High Bicycle Without Tires?

SARNIA, Ont., July 13—(CP)—Deserted late in the "gay eighties" the old bicycle Lloyd Hodgins of Blackwell got as a Red Cross relic, reclaimed from the woodshed and again has been put into action. But there's one difficulty. Lloyd can't get tires for it. The tires, long ago worn out, were replaced with garden hose by Hodgins as an emergency measure but that's too expensive, he says, particularly for the front wheel about five feet high.

Lately Lloyd has been startling Sarnia residents by wearin' his way through downtown traffic. But there's one advantage, he can see over the top of the modern motor cars.

Early this afternoon carloads of people were pouring into the town and thousands of eyes were turned skyward awaiting the arrival of General Balbo and his aerial Armada from Italy.

Although the news that the Italians were coming today, was unexpected in the face of semi-official word last night that they would not be hopping off until Friday at the earliest, preparations had been so far advanced that everything was soon in readiness for the official welcome when the technical part of organization was also prepared for action.

The town presented a busy appearance today as British and Italian flags and bunting fluttered in a gentle breeze.

SAY TOURIST WAS "GYPED"

Complaint Made Through Local Secretary of Motor League

Alleged "spring" of a prominent United States motor tourist by an Ontario highway eating-place has been drawn to the attention of Attorney General W. H. Price, by the Ontario Motor League, with the suggestion that he issue through the press a warning against such "despicable practices by unscrupulous restaurants and garages," or, that failing, institute such disciplinary action as Queen's Park may consider advisable," according to the Toronto Mail and Empire.

While the Ontario Motor League is, indirectly, the complainant in the case, President Hurst of the Continental Optical Company of Indianapolis, is the reported sufferer. His tale of being "gypped" was revealed to J. O. Herlity, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Motor Club, when the latter visited him recently on an industrial tour of the mid-western states.

Mr. Hurst had just returned a few days before from a two weeks' tour in Ontario," Mr. Herlity declared in passing on the story to the O.M.L. "While motoring between St. Catharines and Toronto he saw a sign in large letters reading 'Chicken Dinner 65c.' He and the two others in the party went in and ordered what they supposed went with the regular 65c. meal, such as vegetables and dessert. At the conclusion of the meal they were presented with a bill for $2.85. He protested, but nevertheless paid the bill.

"When he went outside he looked again at the sign and saw under the large letters, in small print 'a la carte' in very small letters that no one would notice unless looking very closely. Mr. Hurst said he thought that between St. Catharines and Toronto there were many other signs similar to design and accordingly intended to attract tourists and at the same time deceive them with the suggestion that meals were the large letters of the sign that a chicken dinner was to be served for the price mentioned, whereas the chicken was served a la carte and all the other items were at the usual high rate."

Attorney General Price could not be reached last night, as he was in Kingston, speaking at the Orange celebration there. From other sources, however, it was learned that he has taken the complaint of Mr. Hurst under inquiry, with a view to determining if something cannot be done to stop such practices as that of which the Indianapolis man complains.

SIGNS APPEAR TRADE TIDE HAS TURNED

Royal Bank Letter on Conditions is Optimistic

"With a rise in the prices of agricultural and mineral products, increased employment, a more than seasonal improvement in employment and an increase in both the volume and rate of business, there is the evidence seems to show that the tide of business has turned and that its flow will quickly spread to those industries which have not yet felt the improvement," says the July letter of the Royal Bank of Canada. "The increase in activity of business, together with the influence of the general improvement in the United States, has tended to generate an optimism which of itself helps to produce further improvement.

"In the early stages business improvement shows itself in rather isolated bit of intangible information. It is not until the movement is well under way that general statistics reflect the change. Experience shows that time will have made itself felt in the plans and policies of a great many companies.

Newsprint production has increased by nearly 20 per cent, while automobile production has almost tripled, construction contracts have increased and carloadings have greatly increased. A large part of this increase undoubtedly is due to the fact that the improvement shown is greater than seasonal which tends to subdue the natural optimism which is general among the farming class, who are now receiving a better price for their wheat, in the mining industry, which is rapidly regaining its position, and in the manufacturing areas of Canada, where employment is increasing at better volume than for the past few years.

There has been a steady improvement in the lumber industry and the immediate outlook is considered more favorable than for several years. A definite demand has been better and the export market has not been so active since the spring of 1930. It is estimated that Pacific Coast mills sold over 70 million feet of lumber during May. The United Kingdom was the best last buyer, the increase, in orders being largely due, it is reported, to the British embargo against Russian timber. Satisfactory orders were also received from Australia, South Africa and China. Business from Japan, however, has been lighter than for some years. Prices are strong, and, as available stocks are comparatively small, mills in various parts of the country are commencing operations to supply the demand continue it is predicted that woods operations will be more active during the coming winter than for some years.

Agricultural Prospects, 1933

As always in the past, a major rise in the price of wheat has brought mounting optimism to Western Canada. Last December the price of wheat reached a low of 30 cents per bushel for No. 1, Northern, a price which means heavy losses to all wheat growers. Spring this year was late, prospects were most discouraging and it appeared that farmers would have to face another year of small crops sold at low prices. Against this bleak background came the spectacular rise in the price of wheat, carrying it to a level which seems to assure moderate profits, and later, the great an improvement in weather conditions that prospects favor a crop about the same size as that of 1932, a comparatively good year, unless the abnormally dry, hot weather of June materially affects ultimate yield.

The report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics indicates that the area sown in spring wheat in the Prairie Provinces increased by 1,475,000 acres as compared with last year. Other crops show even greater reduction in wheat acreage. It is of some interest to note that in a year when there was a decline of approximately one and one-half million acres, 671,000 acres of new land were broken. This means that nearly two million acres of land unusually ready for wheat have not been planted this year.

Spring wheat acreage in the Prairie Provinces is estimated at 26,818,400 acres. Outside the Prairie Provinces a total of 351,000 acres was sown to spring wheat and 578,-000 acres to fall wheat, a total. This brings the total area sown to wheat for the 1933 crop to 28,718,000 acres as compared with 26,646,000 last year. Slight increases are reported for oats and mixed grains and decreases for barley, rye and flax. The decline in flax amounts to about 15 per cent.

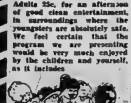
MOTORCYCLE FOUND IN BAY



Brought Up by Dredge Working in Bay Harbor

An air of mystery surrounds the finding of a motorcycle in the Bay of Quinte, which was brought to the surface by the dredge working in the dredging company yesterday afternoon. Apparently the machine was either thrown from the dock or driven off the end and was found in 30 feet of water and 15 feet out from the east side of the dock.

The machine was brought to the surface by the derrick and lodged in the dredge. Police and city were notified and Sergt. Harman investigating found that the cycle was of Excelsior make, painted cream and blue. It carried 1938 plates bearing the number 1-6-6 of four cylinder type, and the two tires were in a good state of preservation.

No records in the police department show any person missing since 1938 who owned a motorcycle in this district. Whether the machine was purposely driven off the dock or accidentally, still lends an air of mystery to the affair. The license plates were removed and will be sent to Toronto for identity. The owner of the machine will likely be found by the registration department and he may be able to explain.

Forty Lodges of North Hastings Commemorate Glorious 12th at Tweed

Fully 5,000 on Hand When Parade Forms at Fairgrounds

MANY SPEAKERS

Program of Sports Follow Walk Through Main Part of Village

Under ideal weather conditions and in the presence of a large number drawn from every community of the northern part of the county, the Orange celebration was held in Tweed on the Glorious Twelfth on Wednesday under the auspices of Tweed L.O.L. No. 767. The main thoroughfare of the village was suitably decorated for the occasion, while the line of march, which took the Orangemen from the fair ground to the Main street up Metcalfe, along Division and back to Main and thence to the place of beginning was gaily decorated with banners. A lot sun shone down on the marchers, who paraded behind the flowing banners of their respective lodges, while the fife and drummers played airs well known to every Orangeman. Fully 5,000 were on the grounds before the addresses were delivered.

Met at Fair Grounds.

The lodges gathered at the fair grounds, where a hot dinner was served in the main building, after which an hour of social intercourse was spent before the marshalls called the parade to fall in. County Master Hart Rollins of Cooper, was in charge, assisted by the County Marshall, E. D. Pitchett, of Tweed. The lodges were lined up in districts and the following line of march was observed: Springbrook L.O.L. 442; Tanner L.O.L. 500; Alnwick Settlement L.O.L. 253; Malone L.O.L. 398; Queensboro L.O.L. 437; Rednersboro L.O.B.A. 465; Eldorado L.O.L. 517; Flinton L.O. 907; Hazard's Corners L.O.L. 1133; Madoc L.O.L. 160; Premier Crookston L.O.B.A. 531; West Huntingdon L.O.B. 200; Halloway L.O.L. 251; Stirling L.O.L. 119; Dawyer Crookston L.O.L. 423; Beulah Ivanhoe L.O.L. 433; Thomasburg L.O.L. 111; Bethlehem Hungerford 392; Carleton Mononcmors 538 and Sulphide L.O.L. 1136. Over 600 were counted in the parade, all headed by a car driven by W. R. Tunnman, M.P., in which were a number of the stalwarts of the party, who were unable to march the route but nevertheless were on hand to celebrate with the rest of their brethren.

Returning to the grounds the lodges disbanded but the fifers continued and far into afternoon one could hear the popular airs being played, while dinners of old with each others in beating the drums in the most approved fashion. The largest number from one lodge on parade went to Hungerford lodge with they having 45 in line, with Halloway and Thomasburg a close second. The ladies' lodges looked smart, the members wearing dresses of white with bandgear of bright straws, covered with the traditional yellow ribbon. No prizes were given by the Tweed lodge for the largest lodge in attendance, the lodge coming from the greatest distance, nor the oldest Orangeman on parade. However it was learned that William Craig of Tweed, on Wednesday, celebrated his 90th anniversary of his birth and was in attendance at the parade, as an honor which comes to few and he was congratulated by the brethren on his long connection with the order.

Hon. T. R. Code Not Present.

Seats were arranged under the spreading trees and from the platform the speeches of the afternoon were delivered. Hon. Robert J. Cooke, M.P.P., and chairman of the Hydro Board was unable to be present through pressure of business and his regrets were tendered the gathering. James F. Hill, M.P.P., for East Hastings, had the honor of attending two celebrations in the afternoon. He walked with his lodge, Shannonville, at Camnitton, and after addressing those in attendance at that place hurried to Tweed and was said a few words before the close of the speech making.

The County Master, H. Rollins of Cooper, was designated as chairman and carried out the program arranged after W. H. Sayers, Reeve of Tweed, welcomed the Orangemen on behalf of the municipality. He stated it was a pleasure to have the Orangemen in Tweed and hoped that the day would be an inspiration to all. The chairman before introducing the next speaker told the gathering that the Orangemen were not present to celebrate but to commemorate an event and that he wished to especially arouse the enthusiasm of the younger generations in what the Orange Order stood for, and that they might better understand the workings.

He stated that he had been in the order for 50 years and that he joined when he was a little over that age, but wanted to mingle with those who had attended a celebration which he had thoroughly read and considered. The speaker mentioned the time when the members of his lodge had allowed whiskey in the lodge room but that year passed one year after his joining for the younger element at that time objected. "No doubt some of you think things that they do not like in the Orange order," the speaker said, "but that is the time to join and try to right the wrong. The Orange order is not the Church of God," continued the speaker, "but the Orange order has the word of God and they may be unworthy but at all times are they trying to do the right thing. I found the order did not prevent me from living a Godly, Christian life." Speaking to the older Orangemen present he told them never to forget the three things they learned at initiation of death, judgment and eternity for those things are most indelibly imprinted on those entering the order. Turning to the younger speaker stated the Orange Order seeks to impress a fear of God, love of the brotherhood and honor to the King.

In Sympathy With Teachings

Rev. R. R. Nicholson, of Tweed United Church, not being an Orangeman, stated he was in sympathy with the teachings of the order. He understood the constitution was based on the Word of God and the Scriptures and that the Word was always open in the lodge room. Speaking on Loyalty, Rev. Mr. Nicholson said "there never was a time when we needed more than at present, Communism," said the speaker, "is the opposite to loyalty for that organization is trying to break down loyalty to the home, the church, the increasing divorces and disloyalty to the country by the breaking of the law. If a law is not satisfactory we must not break it but we can agitate until it is corrected or have it removed from the statutes. There has been a misunderstanding of patriotism," said the speaker, "some thinking that it is hating or fearing another, some think it is boasting or is glorying and exalting their own country above any other country and others think it is loyalty to a political party or organization. We must not confuse patriotism with partisanship. False patriotism is causing many wars and is a curse to world today and should be replaced by internationalism, instead of nationalism, which is fast developing. We should all co-operate for mutual service." Before closing he reminded his hearers there was a great work before the members of the Orange Order.

Rev. Hope Swayne of St. James Anglican Church in Tweed, spoke on the three letters, L.O.L., using the first to represent "Loyalty," the second "Order" and the third "Love." The speaker stated there was need for all Canadians to be loyal to their country and King in the time of crisis and that the more loyal we would grow in stature as a Dominion. He asserted that the daily papers were carrying news from all parts of the world showing countries in disorder, revolutions brewing and strife even among the nations and stated that only when the Order could do much to alleviate these conditions. "We should be the Book," said the speaker, "for it was made open to mankind wherein all should be told the story of the revelation of God to mankind and the Order must practice the principles of brotherhood and strive to further the work of God on earth."

Gives Reasons

"Why I am an Orangeman," was the subject taken by Rev. W. E. Beazer, Anglican rector at Roslin, and the speaker went fully into the discussion of this important question. He stated at the outset of his remarks that he considered it a privilege and a gift unmerited by him to be connected with the Orange Order for the furtherance of civil rights for all and religious liberty. Going back into the history of the Orange Order, the speaker traced the persecutions that people were subjected to and because God saw fit to have a king rule so as to protect the law and that God's people were saved over the 12th celebration as it gave to that faith the religious liberty that they desired. The speaker not wearing these colors for fun," said Rev. Mr. Beazer, "but because what will his members will always fight for God, their King and country." Dertved into the Separate School question, the speaker asked why they existed when Protestant schools teach all that a boy or girl needs in the matter of religion. The Catholics answer that the Protestant schools do not teach religion, but that is an absolute lie for the Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments and the Creed is taught and what more does one want. "I will tell you what they want," he said, "they want Marxology." If the critics would only study the pages of history the Orange Order would go forward in leaps and bounds," said the speaker in conclusion.

Admonishes Periodical

Speaking on an article written in a Catholic periodical and distributed to the homes in Tweed some days before the celebration of the 12th, of July, W. E. Tummon, M.P. for South Hastings, gave the principal address of the afternoon and strict attention was given him during the speech. The speaker explained that Orangism had steadily grown in Canada from a small beginning over 100 years ago until today the lodges in thousands from the Atlantic to the Pacific and that Orangemen are numbered by the hundreds of thousands. "What draws them to the order?" asked the speaker, and he answered by showing it was not the special entertainment provided at lodge meetings, the banquets, the special insurance or sick benefits nor the beating of the drums, but the sacred and eternal principles upon which the order is founded, and which will stand for civil and religious liberties to none. He told of William of Orange picking 10,000 men that were tried and true, who believed in loyalty to God, loyalty to the Church, loyalty to the King and country and from this the great Orange order grew.

The speaker stated without fear of contradiction that Canada was the best country under the British flag and as difficult as it had been in other countries Canada had come through well. "The Canada of today is a product of the past," said Mr. Tummon and we are truly prosperous. A week ago there was a gathering in the north end of Tweed a certain periodical printed not more than 75 miles from this village which scathingly attacked the Orange association and I believe did not have the courage to sign the name and file of the Catholic people or those Catholics living in this village. Some of my best friends in this village are Catholics and friendships have endured, that have been tried and true. We as Orangemen have no quarrel with Catholics, but we may sometimes disagree with what they do. How far would they have gone if the Reformation had been reversed?" the speaker asked. "Had they been burned at the stake? I do not think that the Orange Order would be guilty of such a thing as is done today. Last week," the speaker's article was based on false preface," said Mr. Tummon, "they said they were speaking for 22 per cent. of the population and that the Orange Order represented the small fraction of the population of one province. I am proud to stand for the families of the Orangemen that are in sympathy with the principles of the Orange Order and the Orange Order can speak for a greater number than the circulation of the periodical. The paper also asks why other more important days and events are not celebrated. Interjecting the war between the north and the south, which cost 1,031,000 in the war of 1837. Well, you cannot consider that unless the British Isles are considered as one of the islands have been the centre of the world for over two centuries. Many of the population trace their ancestry to the British Isles and those who came to this country started to achieve what our ancestors had achieved in the old country. The speaker closed with the remark "that the day of Orangism is not dead and Orangism will pass only when the principles for which Orangism stands are not practiced."

Cason Swayne Speaks

"Why am I an Orangeman today?" asked Canon W. G. Swayne of Bonarlaw, in addressing the audience and answered the question by saying the younger element, not members of the Order, in this day and age, have been said from the platform and upheld and propogated the principles which had been upheld by the Orange Order for centuries. The constitution is better than any one man and they tried to wipe the law off the books. The Bible was printed by the Seven Bishops, which is known as the "Grand Remonstrance" and the Bishops were arrested, thrown into prison, tried for high treason and acquitted and on the very night of their acquittal, they sent for William of Orange to come to England, he later going to Ireland, where he freed all and gave to the world religious liberty and equal rights. In closing Canon Swayne exhorted all to be missionaries for the Order.

James F. Hill, M.P.P., arrived previous to the close of the program and was asked to say a few words. Mr. Hill condemned the agitators, classing the Communist, the Red and the C. C. F. as agitators, who went about the country spreading a doctrine that in ordinary times would not be tolerated and hoped that the Orange Order would fight this evil with might and main. He also condemned those who wished the repeal of Section 98 of the Criminal Code and praised Col. W. H. Price, who at the risk of his life, ordered the prosecuting of Tim Buck and others of his followers. The speaker also criticized the leaders who were appealing for the removal of the lieutenant governor of the province and said, "I advised the strengthening of the link with the Mother Country instead of severing same, claiming the Lieutenant Governor was the one link between the Province and the British Empire. Hon. Charles McCrea came in for honorable mention for speaking and showing up Woodsworth and others who were, allegedly, trying to sow discontent in this fair Dominion. "If those from Russia and other countries are not satisfied with conditions in this country let them go back to the country from which they came and Canada will be the richer for their leaving," said Mr. Hill in conclusion.

Tweed Wins Game

During the progress of the program an intermediate O.B.A.A. ball game was played, the first of a series number on the diamond in the fair grounds. Tweed and Madoc were the opponents, Tweed winning in a heavy hitting game by the score of 20 to 4, after making second place in the league race. Don Whytock was on the mound for the losers, while Bert Scapa, the likely looking southpaw, threw them for the winning. Tweed were never asked in the field, supporting their hurler in the pinches, while the game as a whole fell well in the pinches. A big five in the third frame set the pinchers on the right road and they simply breezed home to a victory.

The line-up:

Madoc—Woods, c.; Dingman, 3rd; Whytock, p.; Marshall, 1st; Whytock, p.; Akey, cf.; Caverly, 2nd; Scapa, lf.; Wilson, rf.

Tweed—Cotton, 3rd; Orr, ss; Carey, c; Grose, cf; Quinn, 1st; Lucas, lf; Marston, 2nd; Cordy, lf; Smith, p.

Score, by innings:

Madoc.....100 012 022—8
Tweed.....015 202 02x—12

Batteries—Madoc, Whytock; and Woods; Tweed, Smith and Casey.

Umpires—Sullivan of Madoc, at plate; Sam Curry, Tweed, bases.

WORTHY OF EMULATION

The hand of Mussolini is seen in the flight of the Italian armada under Italo Balbo across from Italy to the Century of Progress Exhibition in Chicago. The fleet is now safe in the New World.

The striking thing about this flight is that it is sane. No stunting for the sake of a moment's fleeting fame, no daring to win renown which might cause the loss of seaplanes of the fleet.

This flight is much the same in its precision as the flight of Lindbergh across the ocean some years ago. Nothing is left to chance.

Information of wind currents, absolute knowledge and expert handling of the machines and above all the directing mind of the Italian chief, who in Rome is absolute. These explain the sureness of the voyage.

Individual flights of individuals take a tendency to the risky and dangerous, but an air fleet is not of that kind.

If there is a reputation made it will be an enduring one, because it is built on fact. In the last analysis if ocean crossing is to become regular it must be based upon the laws of nature and common sense, nothing haphazard must enter into the picture.

Air fleet history is being made. This attempt is like that of Columbus, who, whatever his men thought, knew confidently he would reach land on t'other side. Without a Columbus using the knowledge of his day the world, while it would sooner or later have discovered America, would have been denied the knowledge of the new world. Some one had to reach it backed by reason and expertness. Columbus was the man. If he had not done so it might have been years before the discovery would have been made. Some one has to open the way for ocean crossing. Lindbergh's taking the only way to guarantee safety as well as to acquire knowledge.

AUTHORS HONORED BY KIPLING

Canadian authors yesterday had bestowed upon them the highest praise which writers of this country have ever received —from no less a man than the master of words, phrases and human emotions himself, Rudyard Kipling. Using a background of Canadian history and inheritance from the Motherland, Kipling said, "Canadian writers and poets have dealt directly or by implication with every detail of their country's life and background. Some have chosen the epic of the first adventurers, the men who wandered bewildered across the blind forests and great waterways. Others have illuminated the distracted times of the United Empire Loyalists, or the great Famine Year, the Fenian Raids, Riel's Rebellion. Others also with these periods of doubt and self-distrust following the political birth of your huge subcontinent. Now your men and women are dealing with those later years, when Canada, first of the new powers, came to her soul and strength and incidentally sent 400,000 free men to war.

"Directly or unconsciously then the splendor, the toil, the variety of your national history will have inspired or colored all your work. Somewhere in the mass of this work must be laid up the very lines and phrases which will be taken by the world of tomorrow as the authentic portrayal of your world of yesterday. But who the people are that have already written these words, and for what reason of heart or emotion their words will be accepted like all other words we cannot tell. Mercifully it is not permitted any to foresee his or her literary election or reprobation any more than it was permitted our ancestors to foresee the just stature of their contemporaries whose shrines and former dwellings you are now visiting."

Here Kipling has spoken of the value of the duty of everyone to write that record for his words may be those chosen centuries hence as the record of a great people.

Kipling sees the common strain of the mixture of French and English which two nations have been ever "resolute not to be decivilized on any pretext for any gain."

His words to the Canadian authors are valuable to the usual tourist except in as far as authors are probably more penetrating in their gaze at the new things they see in the old world. As Kipling discovered on his return from Canada years ago it was when he arrived home he began to realize the depth of the impressions he had received. It was "then my impressions clarified and arranged themselves and as I told them out in my head I found I had the key to them all the time in my heart. It will be the same with you on your return. Because one's own heart is the best place to store the few things in life that really matter.'

It was a masterly study of the factors that enter into the make-up of the art life of a people.

What is a stronger breastplate than a heart untainted?—Shakespeare.

A drop of ink may make a million think, —Byron.

GOLD FISH POOL

Flecks of sunlight on the water
Dappled by the oak leaves' shade;
Flecks of light beneath the surface,
Moving light, and rainbow-rayed;

White and golden, black and orange,
Sinuous sunbeams, restless, swift,
Now they flash through moss-green water,
Now, like languid flowers, they drift.

Shafts of sunlight, quivering, sinking
Deep into the emerald pool
Where those other beams are darting
Through the water, clear and cool.

White clouds in the lade-green mirror,
Pie through oak leaf swaying bower
Blend with sky and wind and water
Memories of a summer hour!

JIMMIE MATTERN CAME DOWN on the roof of the world.and wandered about for sixteen days before he reached a telegraph wire. He couldn't have landed in a more desolate spot—any part of Siberia is bad enough but away up on the rim where the Arctic night is six months long real folks are scarce. Jimmie, however, made the best of a bad situation, and after his chelocate bars were gone lived on the country, like his rifle failing he was with small game. These guys who have the courage to attempt world flights have also the courage to find out ways to meet emergencies and refuse to quit no matter what happens. That's the kind of stuff Jimmie Mattern is made of.

CHRISTMASTIDE FARMALEE is again on the Front Page. Parmalee, like his illustrious predecessor, the late Christmas Keough, always confined his criminal exploits to the Christmas season, when it may naturally be supposed there is more or less let down in ordinary business vigilance and suspicion. A man arrested recently in the Western United States is supposed to be Parmalee for whom a reward of $10,000 is offered by Bankers' Associations. Parmalee, a few years ago, victimized Toronto and Hamilton banks of large sums during the Christmas season, playing his favorite role of clergyman, with costume to suit, and a handsome young lady for scenery and effect. Parmalee cleaned up over ten thousand dollars on this occasion, and is wanted in many cities for similar exploits.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is threatened with a diet. Despite his arduous labors and worries he has been gaining in weight and must submit to a reduction in rations. Starting with his breakfast he is reduced to one egg, one rasher of bacon, only nine wheat cakes, without maple syrup and no pie, topped off with two cups of coffee with cream, but no sugar. Poor fellow he is in danger of starvation if his other meals are as badly mutilated.

Both were very proud of their vocal abilities for months they had squabbled over the question as to which possessed the better voice. At last, to settle bets they had made with each other, they arranged to give a recital before an eminent professor and abide by his judgment.

When they had concluded, the professor turned to the first, shaking his head sorrowfully.

"You're the worst singer I've ever heard," he said.

"Hurrah!" shouted the other. "Come on! Pay me that fiver!"

"One moment please," said the professor, quietly. "You—er—well, you can't sing at all!"

"See that man who just got out?" said the man in the corner of the compartment to the man sitting opposite.

The latter nodded.

"Well, I knew him 20 years ago; he had a steady job at a modest but certain salary; he married a sweet-natured girl, and soon he was the father of a happy little family. He had great intellectual ability, vision, and the will to do things. Then, in an evil moment, he yielded to temptation and took to drink. What do you think he is today?"

"A penniless drunkard," replied the other.

"No," retorted the other. "He's a member of Parliament and owns a brewery!"

HOW TO FIND HOW NEUROTIC ONE REALLY IS

Fifteen Question to Ask Oneself Regarding Signs

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Psychology

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.).

To be neurotic means to be suffering from a functional nervous disorder.

The reason I stress the word "functional" is because a clear distinction should be made between that and the term "organic."

In an organic nervous disease the very substance, the structure, of his nerves themselves is affected. That is why certain nervous affections are so difficult to cure or improve. In a functional upset, however, the structure of the nerves themselves remains unchanged. Their trouble being that the nerves are not coordinating properly and messages are being sent out wrongly. Excess. The result is that the patient does not think as clearly and effectively as he should, while his emotional life is in a state of unrest that may render him distinctly miserable.

Yet neurotic conditions are curable. With comparatively few exceptions they are curable no matter how long they have been in existence.

As a matter of scientific fact, we are all more or less neurotic. The hustle and bustle, as well as the stress and strain, of modern living has forced us to be unusually alert and highly sensitized. This sensitiveness has definitely affected the nerves as a whole. When one considers the complexity of modern civilization its conflicts, repressions, uncertainties and what not, one is bound to wonder why most of us are not more neurotic than really are.

I daresay you will be surprised when you read the following list of signs that indicate a neurotic disposition. The person who accepts neurotic traits entirely in indeed a rarity. For instance:

1.—Does lightning put you in a panic?

2. Do you always find it difficult to get up in the morning?

3. Are your feelings easily hurt?

4. Have you aches and pains that doctors say are purely imaginary?

5. Are you afraid when alone in the dark?

6. Are you convinced you can never make good?

7. Are you irritable or given to temper tantrums?

8. Do you find yourself continually dissatisfied?

9. Are you forever wondering whether you have done right or wrong?

10. Are you superstitious?

11. Do you suffer from a feeling of impending danger?

12. Do you exaggerate trifles?

13. Are you given to worry without justification?

14. Are you moody?

15. Is your concentration poor?

In the above list I have set down only neurotic manifestations that are not specially harrassing. Indeed fifteen symptoms could readily be extended to fifty.

A definitely-established neurosis can, however, become a veritable torture. Especially is this the case when obsessions and compulsions—that is, fanciful ideas through which the patient cannot rid his mind although he knows they are foolish—fasten themselves upon the thinking.

Regarding the ordinary neurotic, on the other hand, there is nothing to worry about unless the symptoms become so strong and persistent that the individual's general mode of living and work are interfered with. In such cases he should then also consult a medical psychologist.

A neurotic can often do a great deal for himself by realizing that he is not organically ill and by trying repeatedly to overcome his symptoms through an act of will. This should diligently be tried, at least, in every case.

Dr. Fisch's Daily Diet Hint

During the summer months, drinking water should be boiled and then cooled unless the purity of the water supply is beyond suspicion. A good plan is to cool the water, after boiling, in a large container, such as an earthen jug, from which quantities may be taken as needed. Water for drinking should never be too cold. Placing ice in it is bad practice.

Nationals Fail to Chase Jinx, Kingston Ponies Win Close Game by 7-6 Count

Vinny Utronki Helps to Lose Own Game by Errors

RALLY FAILS

Juniors Introduced And Will be Heard From Later

Costly errors accounted for the 7 to 6 win of the Belleville Nationals at the hands of the Kingston Ponies at the local Exhibition Park yesterday afternoon when the Ponies took a firm grip on first place in the O.S.B.L. by virtue of their win.

Despite the fact that Vinny Utronki proved slightly wild at times and issued six free tickets to the initial sack, the ex-Stirlner had lurkid good enough baseball to win the average game but, errors by himself, Chambers and Barrigue proved the local's downfall. With the exception of the second and fourth innings Utronki had the situation well in hand and effectively checked the batting in the fifth, when he retired the side accordingly, after filling the bases on three successive walks, with no one out.

"Yammy" Jamieson was Manager Smith's choice as the Pony hurler of the day and the cocky little right hander continued to holt his own with the "Stirling" clique despite the fact, that they hit his delivories for nine hits, the same amount collected by the visitors. In the fourth frame when the Nationals launched their greatest onslaught of the season by pounding out five hits, including triples and doubles and singles the ball game seemed literally "in the bag" but the Pony fielders once again rose to the occasion to weather the storm after the locals had come within one run of tying the score.

Rigby Makes Good

Manager Mills introduced a new face to the fans in Mason Rigby of the Crystalac juniors and the big blonde lad was not found wanting when he scored a run, collected a nice double and fielded perfectly. Art Scarlett was an shemless from the pastime and was sadly missed in the defensive works of the Nationals. Again Jim Matthews ran afoul of "old man hard luck" when he tripped over Albert Joyce's foot on first base and was forced to retire due to injuries sustained in the eighth frame. Alex Weir led the local batters with a long triple in the fourth, while Vinny Utronki was the big hitter of the day, collecting two safe blows. Jamieson was the best swat-smith presented by the Ponies, when the Kingston pitcher collected three safe hits, while McQuade and Quinn accounted for two hits each. Harry Morgan in centre field provided the sensation of the game when he raced far back into deep centre to pull down Smith's long drive.

The Ponies opened the scoring in the second frame, when they scored two runs on a walk, a hit and an error by Chambers. They added three more in the fourth on a walk, two hits and two errors, one by Utronki and the other by Barrigo. Then in the seventh they counted a single run on successive doubles by Compeau and McQuade and ended their scoring in the sext frame, when Joyce walked and Weir scored on Jamieson's double, after being advanced a base on Quinn's one base blow.

Stage Rally.

Staging a great rally the locals scored four runs in the fourth, Smith singled, Weir crashed a triple to centre, Utronki singled, Chambers crashed a double to left centre and Matthews ended the scoring by blasting a single scoring Chambers. In the seventh successive singles by Morgan and Green accounted for a run after Joyce had stolen second. The locals made their final stand in the ninth when Biggins opened by smashing a single past second, Mills, batting for Morgan advanced Rigby to third on an infield out. Joyce drove in the junior score on Barrigo's infield out later.

The loss practically eliminates the Nationals from the O.S.B.L. race and almost assures the Kingston Ponies and the Peterboro senators of a position in the league playoffs, which follow the regular league schedule.

In left field for the Kingstonians was the next best hitter counting three singles out of five times at bat while E. Fraser hit a triple.

The game between the Kingston club and the S.E.A.C. was of the exhibition type but plenty of rivalry ensued, when a large number of supporters from each city was on hand. Lois Carter started on the mound for the home team but was afforded rather weird support by his fielders, who committed numerous errors of omission and commission alike. Failure to take advantage of the opportunities presented to them cost the S.E.A.C. fans the ball game. Beside Doolittle relieved Miss Carter in the fifth.

Pat Ehlker was the big hitter for the locals with a home run to his credit while E. Burley contributed a triple with Hilda McAlichael getting a double and a single and sister Nellie hitting a three base blow.

ERRORS BEAT S.E. GIRLS 18-7

Capitols of Kingston Under-Bill Shaw Much Too Smart

Errors and weird baseball cost the S.E.A.C. girls a 18-7 ball game at Victoria Park last evening when the Kingston Capitols scored 18 runs, most of them on the misplays of the locals, to bat 7 registered by the home club.

Marion Walker was on the hilltop for the Limestone City aggregation and was in rare form, allowing but nine safe blows. Besides pitching a masterful game Miss Walker proved to be the big hitter of the evening as she crashed out two mighty hits counted home runs for her on the score sheet. Miss Campbell,

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

With their backs to the wall the Belleville Victorias gave game through with flying colors at Bridgen yesterday with a 12 to 7 win. The Vics are now up even with the Picton club tied for first place in the Bay and Quinte loop, with Ernie Gibbard's charges in Napanee but a half a game behind both the leaging leaders. If that's not a race worth mentioning—well, we don't know our baseball.

Apparently plenty of busy hitting was registered at Brighton yesterday when two base blows were quite common, some eight or nine being counted in the box score, along with a triple, "Pat" Blaker, the Vic's first sacker came into his own when he flattened his batting average by slapping the apple for four busy hits out of six frips—"just a bad afternoon's work", we'd say.

Apparently Ralph Ibey, with his slide-stipping crew working to perfection, had the well known pirates working on the Brighton batters. His team mates gave him plenty of margin (in runs) to work on and Ibey literally cuffed them.

Up until yesterday Vinny Utronki was the leading hurler in the C. O. B. L. now he's just another pitcher; that's the test of fame. It just seemed as though the Nationals have to commit errors and each misplay counted in the eventual scoring. Then Utronki had to pass a few, and the majority of them crossed in front of Sonny Green for a nice day's work.

Oh well the fans had a lot of fun in the fourth when the locals hit every delivery tossed up by Mr. Jamieson for singles, doubles and even triples. That frame alone was worth the price of admission and must be said in favour of the Ponies, however, that they showed the real quality on July 12th, when the majority of them appeared with speed in "Package and Express" sweaters. The win was the fifth consecutive of the season over the Nationals. "Feeney" Mills' charges still have one more tilt with Frank Smith's crew and don't be surprised if they foal 'em.

Manager Mills introduced a new face to the fans in Mason Rigby of the Crystalac juniors. The big blonde lad gave a good account of himself when he hit in three at every time at bat and collected one double. He was showing at Rigby only proves, that the local junior league is not futile. As a matter of fact we understand that Manager Mills may carry a couple of junior infielders for the remainder of the season. Perhaps it might be a good idea to start one of the local junior harlers one of these fine days. For some time past we have advocated "give the kids a chance" and it looks as though yesterday was the day. Perhaps we'll call out a last innings with Belleville, "Youth must be served."

When "Bill" Shaw's Kingston Capitols trimmed the local South End A. C. girls by the score of 18 to 7 at Victoria Park last evening, Bill informed us, that it was the most consecutive win, that a softball team managed by him had defeated. Belleville girls' softball club. "Congratulate as Bill." Of course they never stop to think down in the Limestone City, that with a population twice as large as Belleville they never had but one half as many softball teams. "What's the answer?" Maybe they like quality well we like to have all the girls playing, who want to play and annually have casualty.

Ernie Gibbards "Athletics" downed the fast Cannington nine by the score of 9 to 4 at the new ball park in Napanee yesterday as Tenny Fuhrer informed us last evening. That makes two victories when the Coach Gerwe's charges on their new diamond. Incidentally we understand that the Kingston Ponies have been invited to play in Napanee on July 26th. Also in August. It is quite probable, that the Nationals will play in the new Napanee park as their way to Kingston next week.

FRUIT LASSIES WIN FROM MOUNTAIN VIEW

Mountain View, July 13 (Special) —Belleville Fruit girls of Belleville played an exhibition game at Mountain View on Wednesday afternoon to come out on the right side of the ledger due to the considered advancement of the girls from the Mountain View Orchard. The score was 14-11 and the splurges put on by Stub Barrett's crew in the early innings put them from a early inning. The newly formed team at Mountain View is progressing most favorably under efficient coaching and will yet be a power in softball in this section. Kellar and Gray hurled for the Fruit Lassies, while in Woods were the route for the losers ably handled by F. Weddon.
